Russians Trapped South Of Scene of Their Loss Of Thousands of Troops

Invaders Driven Out of Finland at Four Points; 200 Left Dead on Field Near Lake Ladoga

Helsinki, Jan. 10 (AP) — Finnish troops were reported to have surrounded a new Soviet division in central Finland today after hurling the remnants of the routed Red army's 44th and 163rd divisions back into Russia east of Suomussalmi.

This third Russian division of 25,000 men was reported trapped at Ilomantsi, about sixty miles south of the recent victories at Suomussalmi.

The Finns set up positions along forty miles of the Russian frontier east of Lake Kianta and Suomussalmi. This covers four points at which Finland has thrown the invaders back on to their own soil.

A Finnish communique said that a Red army battalion had been dispersed northeast of Lake Ladoga with the enemy leaving "200 dead on the field." The Finns took forty prisoners.

"At Suomussalmi our troops, advancing in the direction of Raate, have reached the frontier and cleared the area of enemy troops," the communique said.

Russians in Flight

Associated Press Correspondent Thomas F. Hawkins, with the Finnish army at Raate, reported the Russians in full flight as the Finns move right up to the border in cleaning up operations.

It was the first time the Suomussalmi sector had been cleared of Russians since the war started.

Hawkins, recounting the huge war stores left on the battlefield by the fleeing Red army said that evidence on the bodies of the dead Russians indicated the 44th division was one of the Red army's crack units engaged in the Polish campaign.

He found the town of Suomussalmi completely demolished by savage warfare, with only blackened chimneys and shell-riddled frame buildings left standing.

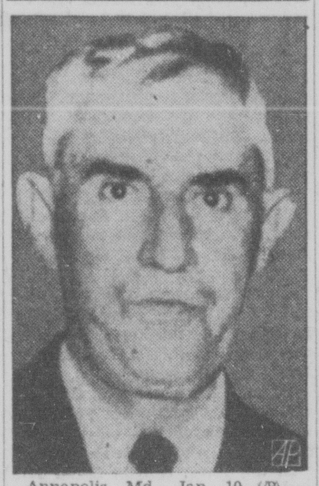
SEN. DUDLEY G. ROE CANDIDATE FOR HOUSE



Annapolis, Md., Jan. 10 (AP) — Matching words with actionf, State Senator Dudley G. Roe today filed formal notice he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U. S. House of Representatives from the first district.

The district covers the nine Eastern Shore counties.

Roe is majority floor leader of the Senate and chairman of the powerful Finance Committee. He is a lawyer and has been engaged in banking and grain brokerage in Sudlersville.

Rumania Willing To Sign a Pact With Hungarians

But Will Refuse To Make any Territorial Concessions

Bucharest, Jan. 10 (AP)—Rumanian officials asserted tonight that Rumania was ready to settle long-standing differences with Hungary but that any territorial cession was out of the question.

Hungary wants Rumania to give up Transylvania, part of the territory Rumania won when the Austro-Hungarian empire broke up after the world war.

Despite the insistence of Rumanian authorities that they would not even discuss cession of any soil, the feeling grew among foreign diplomats that King Carol might

British and Nazi Planes in Battle Over North Sea

Reports Differ as to Number of Bombers Brought Down

GERMAN SHIPS ARE FORCED TO RETREAT

Three Attacks over Sylt and One above Helgoland Bight

London, Jan. 10. (AP)—Fast new British bombers struck back today at Germany's air and sea strength, raiding German air bases on the North Sea island of sylt and an important Helgoland anchorage in swift reply to the first warning lightning of the vaunted Nazi "Blizkrieg."

The crash of anti-aircraft fire, vivid flashes, the dancing pencils of searchlights and the roar of many planes told observers on the nearby Danish coastline and islands of the first battle over Sylt, shortly before dawn.

Reports from various sources indicated there were at least three battles over Sylt and one at sea, above Helgoland bight.

One British Plane Lost

The air ministry announced one British plane had been lost in a half hour running fight "far out over the North Sea" when an R. A. F. formation met a number of long range German fighters. It said, however, that the German planes were beaten off and that the British formation continued "to the easterly limit of its reconnaissance" and back.

This compared with German contentions that three out of nine British Bristol "Blenheim" bombers had been shot down over Helgoland bight by four German planes.

The British communique said one

Appointment of Murphy Opposed

But Confirmation Is Predicted Despite Several Protests

Washington, Jan. 10. (AP)—A number of protests against the appointment of Attorney General Frank Murphy to the Supreme Court have been filed with the Senate Judiciary Committee, Senator Burke (D-Neb) said today.

Burke, who is chairman of a subcommittee named to consider the appointment, said he would call this group together tomorrow to go over the protests. He added that if there was "any substance to these complaints" the committee probably would hold a meeting.

Most senators predicted prompt confirmation for Murphy, however. They recalled that the red-haired former Michigan governor won Senate confirmation as attorney general by a 78-7 vote last year.

Three other Senate committees recommended prompt confirmation of numbers other nominations recently submitted by Mr. Roosevelt.

Charles Edison's appointment as secretary of the navy was approved by the Naval Affairs Committee.

The Financ. Committee approved Daniel W. Bell to be under secretary of the treasury and John L. Sullivan to be assistant secretary of the treasury.

The Foreign Relations Committee approved the following nominations:

James H. R. Cromwell, husband of Doris Duke, minister to Canada; Breckinridge Long, assistant secretary of state; George Messersmith, ambassador to Cuba; John Cudahy, ambassador to Belgium; R. Henry Norweb, ministe: to Peru; Robert M. Scotten, minister to the Dominican republic; and Clarence E. Gauss, minister to Australia.

All nominations must be ratified by the Senate.

CHAMBERLAIN TALKS OF WAR

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, speaking at the Lord Mayor's luncheon in London's Mansion House, declares Britain's aid to Finland is no mere formality and that events thus far in the war with Germany are merely preliminary to the main struggle to come. Woman's Suicide Leap Fatal to Floor Walker

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP) — A woman who plunged from a seventh floor railing in the Marshall Field department store today not only killed herself but also fatally injured a floor walker.

The dead were Mrs. Mary Margaret Robbins, 27, wife of Dr. R. H. Robbins, Waukegan, Ill., physician, and Herman Kohlman, 50.

Scores of shoppers were nearby when Mrs. Robbins' body landed partly on a display show case and partly on Kohlman.

The floor walker, knocked unconscious, was taken to Alexian Brothers hospital where he died about three hours later.

Mrs. Robbins' father, Howard S. Cook, said she had suffered a nervous breakdown a month ago.

Mikhail M. Kaganovich Replaced by M. Shakhurin

London, Jan. 10 (AP)—Reuters (British news agency) quoted an official Moscow announcement tonight saying Mikhail M. Kaganovich had been relieved of his duties as commissar for the aviation industry.

The commissar is being transferred to another post, the announcement said, and M. S. Shakhurin has been appointed to succed him.

Kaganovich, brother of Lazarus Kaganovich, a confidant of Joseph Stalin and administrator in several successive key posts of the Soviet, formerly was assistant commissar of defense industry and in that capacity visited Washington in 1937.

He was interested in promoting Soviet Russian distance flights over the Polar route to the United States in 1937, and subsequently succeeded

Communist Pleads Guilty To Using Forged Passports

Nicholas Dozenberg Expected To Be Witness against Browder

TELLS OF ACTING AS SPY FOR SOVIET UNION

Describes Work for Russia in Unnamed European Country

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Nicholas Dozenberg, a recanting Communist said by the government to have been a member of the Soviet secret police, pleaded guilty today to misuse of passports obtained through false representations, and indicated he would testify against his erstwhile American party chief, Earl Browder, on similar charges.

At the same time, federal authorities said privately he had told an extraordinary story of military espionage in a European country which they identified only as one which might be regarded as standing in the way of Russian expansion.

This story—which might conceivably come out in Browder's trial, set for Jan. 15—was along these lines:

Dozenberg, a pale little middle-aged man with a lined face and a weary manner, went to the European country carrying an American passport and by taking photographs of certain ladies of the court so ingratiated himself with a friend of the ruler that he wangled an introduction to that dignitary. Then, through the ensuing friendship, he was able to borrow the ruler's own airplane to take pictures of military value for the Soviet Union.

There was no official comment upon all this, but it was stated authoritatively that Dozenberg, who will be sentenced on Jan. 17, had been "cooperating" fully with the government and would take the stand against Browder.

Three other Communists also are under indictment for passport misuse. Of the five thus accused, the authorities have described Dozenberg as second in importance only to Browder himself.

Quintuplets May Be Seen at Fair

Offer Awaited, but Some Opposition Is Evident

Toronto, Jan. 10 (AP)—Visitors to the New York World's Fair next summer may get a peek at the chubby Dionne quintuplets on the site of the Soviet pavilion which won't be there.

Papa and mama Dionne are all for showing the little girls at the fair but some opposition has developed amongst their guardians.

"The World's Fair is nibbling, we have had no direct proposals yet," Percy D. Wilson, official guardian for the Ontario government and member of the quints' board of guardians, said today.

Another guardian, Judge J. A. Valin of North Bay, commented:

"They won't go to New York with my consent. It's too risky. We shouldn't let them out of the country."

Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario said the decision was up to the board of guardians and Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the quintuplets' physician. Dr. Dafoe would have nothing to say until a definite bid was forthcoming for the fair.

Henri St. Jacques, Olivia Dionne's attorney, said he believed it "likely" the famed sisters, who will be six in May, would go to the fair, possibly between mid-May and mid-June.

Reports from New York said fair officials wanted the sisters for their main attraction.

Rescue Crews Making Slow Progress and May Not Reach Disaster Zone for Several Hours

Bartley, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—An explosion, possibly presaging the worst West Virginia mine disaster in more than a decade, killed at least two men and caught an estimated ninety-four others two miles underground today.

W. C. Sturgiss, a district mine inspector, announced shortly before midnight that the number of men trapped had been revised upward from 85 to 94.

Eight rescue crews from this southern West Virginia village and nearby communities dug their way toward three blast-wrecked sections of the mine but progress was slow and midnight found them still 2,500 feet from the estimated location of the disaster.

Three hundred men stood by above ground, to help when needed.

Sturgiss expressed the opinion that a group of twenty-five miners in the "fourth left" area of the mine had the "best chance" of surviving. He did not speculate on the fate of the others.

Company officials headed by Vice President R. E. Salvati of Holden, remained hopeful that a majority of the men had escaped.

47 Men Come Out

Salvati reported that forty-seven men, in the eastern section of the operation, came out unscathed at 4 p. m., unaware there had been a blast.

One of the dead men, whose bodies were found a half-mile from the bottom of the 620-foot shaft, was identified as Charley Moffitt. The other was not identified. Their bodies were left below while the crews pressed on.

This valley mining community, scene of the blast, is in the southeastern tip of McDowell county, one of southern West Virginia's busiest and richest coal sections. Two other Pond Creek mines rear their shafts within sight of No. 1, along the banks of shallow Dry Fork river.

Eighty-Two-Year Old President Pleased with Result of Poll

Johnson City, N. Y., Jan. 10. (AP)—An 82-year old man smiled from his sickbed tonight as most of his 15,000 employes and their families danced, paraded and otherwise celebrated a 5 to 1 defeat of a proposal for company unionization.

The ailing industrialist is George F. Johnson, who began work as an $18 a week shoe maker and now is chairman of the $36,000,000 Endicott-Johnson Shoe Corporation, a pioneer in employe profit-sharing, and the heavy subsidizer of many benevolent undertakings in his home area.

Tonight's celebration, which began this morning when workers awoke to learn Endicott-Johnson employes, in a National Labor Relations Board poll, had overwhelmingly decided against any type of

Roosevelt Budget Increases Barred By House Group

And in the Senate a Sweeping Fiscal Study Is Ordered

Washington, Jan. 10. (AP)—Led by an embattled economyite, Rep. Woodrum (D-Va), the House Appropriations Committee was reported today to have erected a bar against increases in the Roosevelt budget, while the Senate voted a sweeping fiscal study.

The House group, it was said, voted to forbid its sub-committees to increase the sum total of any money bill beyond the amount recommended by the House. This, it was explained, would hamper attempts by legislators to tack on such appropriations as the $225,000,000 for farm payments voted last year.

The resolution approved by the Senate was offered by Senator Harrison (D-Miss), who said it would help start a retrenchment program which might lead eventually to a balanced budget. Under it, a Senate-House committee of twenty-four members would study the Roosevelt spending and tax recommendations and make its own recommendations in sixty days.

No Real Dissent

The resolution passed on a voice vote, without audible dissent, but some expect it to die in the House.

At the White House, meanwhile, members of the House Democratic Steering Committee conferred with President Roosevelt. One of the legislators said the president emphasized that Congress should not exceed his budget estimates, which call for record defense outlays but for reduced expenditures for other activities.

Senator Adams (D-Col) told his colleagues that the president "with a twinkle in his eye, has again outsmarted Congress."

Congress Baffled

"The budget contains material cuts," Adams continued, waving his arms, "but the figures are such that if Congress raises them it either will have to break through the president's $45,000,000,000 debt limit or raise new taxes.

"The president has cut certain items that are very dear to the heart of Congress," he added, "saying it might be well to cut down the defense estimated and apply the money to domestic uses.

"There is a suggestion that we cut down on relief to farmers and others in order to build battleships," he said. "Battleships to fight who? To fight nobody. We are preparing for a war that is not coming."

Admiral Stark

Engineering, that throughout his thirty years' experience the navy had been making mistakes similar to those which gave the newest destroyers a tendency toward topheaviness.

He testified that "we make changes either to correct mistakes or to improve military characteristics, or for some other purpose, on every ship that we build" and that the defects in stability of the new destroyers had been corrected for about one-seventh of one per cent of the ships' total cost.

Sees Peril From Coalition

Inquiring into the need for expansion of the navy as proposed in a $1,300,000,000 authorization measure, the naval committee heard from Stark, chief of naval operations, that shifts in international political alignments since 1938 have presented the possibility of a coalition attack on this hemisphere.

The "size of navy we have now" could not defend the hemisphere "comfortably" against attack by such a group of powers as Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia, Stark testified, and if we attempted to defend the hemisphere from Maine to southern Brazil and in the Pacific also, "we hight have to sacrifice southern Brazil for the time being." Stark would not say, however, that the present navy could not defend the hemisphere.

Explains Proposal

Testifying cautiously, Stark began his discourse with an explanation of a $4,000,000 appropriation proposed for harbor improvement at Guam, Pacific island near Japan, without a request for specific authority from Congress.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) declared that he would challenge on the House floor the navy's right to make the improvements without specific authorization but Stark said that navy vessels and planes would continue to use the Guam harbor, in spite of hazards, whether the funds were voted or not.

Asked by Rep. Church (D-Ill) if the proposed navy increases were intended for maintaining the 300-mile neutrality zone around the Americas, Stark replied that protection of United States interests was not necessarily confined to that zone.

For patrolling our section of that zone and strengthening sea defenses, the appropriations committee recommended $145,082,238 for the navy and $4,442,325 for the coast guard up to June 30.

Also, $116,218,345 was recommended for the army and $1,475,000 for the counter-espionage work of the FBI. Total recommendations fell $4,801,615 short of the $271,999,423 recommended by the president.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The growing hostility of Herr Hitler's one-time favorite pal, Mussolini, to the fuehrer's new love, Dictator Stalin of Moscow, is approaching an acute stage. The Rome-Berlin axis is turning on dangerously hot bearings.

Italian resentment over the Moscow-Berlin tie-up is beginning to take on the definite complexion of Italian cooperation with Germany's foes against Germany's Russian "friend". Whether in Finland or in southeastern Europe, Italy's moves on the international checkerboard fit much more neatly into the war pattern the Franco-British Allies are trying to shape against their Nazi enemy than into any Russo-German scheme of things.

The new Italian-Hungarian mutual assistance deal emphasizes that trend. It cannot be read as anything less than a blunt notice to Moscow — and hardly less to Berlin — to keep off Italian economic grass in the Balkans.

Problem for Hitler

That is something for Herr Hitler to ponder over. It contains a direct threat of Italian armed aid to Hungary, or even to Rumania under certain conditions, if the doubtful Russo-German relationship should develop into a full-fledged military alliance aimed at steam-rollering the Balkans and the Danubian basin neutrals into submission.

That Germany's predicament is causing gleeful smiles in London and Paris cannot be seriously doubted. Whether so intended or not, the Italian-Hungarian deal is a diplomatic companion piece for the Anglo-French-Turkish mutual assistance pact barring Russian advance to the Black sea or domination of the Dardanelles.

Although details are lacking, the Italian-Hungarian pact has an even more significant aspect, by all available accounts. It operates as a definite spur to Rumania to resist Russian aggression, political or military, and regardless of whether Russia moves alone or in combination with Germany.

The implied threat is that, failing a Rumanian-Hungarian settlement, Rumania would be left to paddle her own canoe against Russia. She might even share Poland's plight and find Hungary, abetted by Italy, moving in on her from the west as Russia moved in from the north.

There apparently has been grave doubt in Allied capitals at times as to just what Rumania would do if Russia sought to force the issue in Bessarabia by arms, particularly if Berlin winked at such a Russian thrust as it winked at the Soviet invasion of Finland. The effect of the Italian-Hungarian pact might be to insure Rumanian resistance in expectation of prompt help from Hungary and Italy, help which the Franco-British-Turkish group could not give as quickly or effectively.

Yet while Italy's antagonism to the Russian-German partnership, if it invades her sphere of influence in southeastern Europe, is a heavy and increasing strain on Italian-German relations, in another way it is reassuring for Berlin. Germany must be hoping for peace in the Balkans and the Danube basin because war might interrupt the flow of vital oil, grain and other necessities into the Reich. In the light of Russia's disastrous experience in Finland and the diplomatic checkmates being established in the Balkans both by the Franco-British Allies and by Italy, Berlin's influence on Moscow to avert a Russian military adventure in southeastern Europe is obviously enhanced.

unionization, developed rapidly. Benches were abandoned and plants closed.

Two years of organization, by both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, was climaxed by the balloting. A formal announcement gave 1,612 votes for the AFL, 1,079 for the CIO, and 12,693 against both.

Praises Loyalty of Workers

Charles F. Johnson, Jr., vice-president and general manager of the shoe company, which operates about twenty plants here, and in nearby Endicott, Binghamton and Owego, announced the vote proved policies of the company were "sound." "They couldn't shake the loyalty and faith of the workers in George F.," he asserted.

CIO and AFL organizers declined comment. Previously they announced a protest was being considered because of an anti-union demonstration Monday by an estimated 8,000 persons. Last Friday William Green, AFL president, came to Johnson City and voiced a personal plea for support of his union.

Demonstrate for Hours

Monday's protested demonstration was mild compared to today's celebration. Workers marched and counter-marched, carrying banners and shouting their loyalty. An estimated 2,500 persons paraded to the George F. Johnson home in Endicott, but dispersed quietly when told the noise might bother their employer, recovering from pneumonia. Endicott public schools closed because of lack of attendance. A dance started at 2 p. m., continued tonight.

Relatives said the company chairman received news of the vote calmly, and with no comment. A daughter, Mrs. Lillian Sweet, said "he lay there and smiled."

In both Johnson City and Endicott an open shop policy predominates. In Binghamton, however, the workers are organized.

Rumania Willing

yield soon to an Italian-backed plan for an adjustment.

Budapest reports said that the Italian and Hungarian foreign ministers, Count Galeazzo Ciano and Count Istvan Csaky, in their meetings at Venice last weekend had worked out such a program.

May Settle After War

Under this plan, to which the Budapest government is said to have agreed, Hungary would give up claims to Transylvania for the present in return for a Rumanian promise of territorial revision after the present European war.

In payment for that promise, which would be guaranteed by Italy, Rumania would receive assurance of full Italian and Hungarian support against any Russian attack on Bessarabia, the former Russian province she gained after the World War.

Italy was understood to have a similar plan for settling differences between Rumania and Bulgaria, who desires return of the Dobruja district, which like Transylvania is an area of mixed nationalities that Rumania took after the war.

The Italian plan was understood to call for outright cession of purely Hungarian and Bulgarian districts contiguous to Hungary and Bulgaria and for plebiscites in districts of mixed nationality.

Reports from Belgrade indicated that Italy was trying to draw Yugoslavia also into her front against possible Russian expansion into southeast Europe.

Entente Meets Feb. 2

The Yugoslav government announced that the Balkan entente would meet in Belgrade Feb. 2-4. Entente members are Yugoslavia, Rumania, Greece and Turkey. It was assumed that Italian efforts to line up a southeastern European front would be the center of entente attention.

Rumanian officials, in informally rejecting the idea of territorial concessions, said that Rumania was quite willing to begin talks for economic concessions and other moves to improve relations with Hungary.

Budapest sources considered this Rumanian attitude as a natural starting point in the international poker game and professed belief that Bucharest was striving for the best possible terms.

Gov. Price Wants Cash for Schools, Message Asserts

Virginia Executive also Requests Merit Ratings for Employers

Richmond, Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—Governor Price asked today for an increase of $2,519,465 for the public schools in the next two years and recommended merit ratings for employers estimated to save them $7,000,000 in unemployment taxes in a like period.

His lengthy message, delivered to the opening session of the 1940 general assembly in an address of an hour and twenty-seven minutes, laid emphasis on greater state aid for schools, changes in the unemployment compensation act of 1938, and the need for solution of Virginia's criminal cost and jail and prison population problems.

The chief executive reserved for his budget message next Monday his proposals for meeting costs of expanded or additional state activities, especially in the field of education and old age assistance.

Will Help Teachers

The increase recommended for schools, while far short of the state board of education's request for $5,100,000 a year for its "three point" program, would go far toward meeting the first point—a state appropriation of $720 per teacher unit per year. The governor's intention is that the state appropriation shall be increased from the present $500 per teacher unit to $550 in the first year of the biennium and $610 in the second year.

The governor asked changes in the unemployment compensation act to conform to those already made in the federal act. The federal change limits the tax to three per cent of the first $3,000 of salary paid an individual.

Anticipating further changes in the federal act, he asked legislation to permit him to lower the state rate by executive order to conform to any change in the federal rate.

Merit Plan Views

Under the merit rating plan as outlined briefly by the governor, the assembly would authorize abatement of taxes, in accordance with the determined plan, for industries with good employment records.

Governor Price commended to the attention of the legislators the reports of the advisory council on jails and prison reform and the report of the state auditor on criminal costs. He expressed himself in accord with most of the recommendations, urged especially that sheriffs and city sergeants be paid salaries in lieu of fees.

them, instead of being regarded as belonging to his estate.

Charles Wright, Jr., attorney for Mrs. Seyburn and Mrs. Sloane, said he would appeal the ruling to circuit court within twenty days. Renville Wheat, Mrs. Johnson's attorney, said he had not decided whether to appeal.

Annie Dodge, 21, will continue to receive the $5,000 monthly allowance she has had since Daniel's death, until litigation over the estate is ended.

$6,000,000 in Taxes

Judge Murphy's decision cut state and federal governments in for a $6,000,000 slice of the estate, through collection of inheritance taxes.

Daniel Dodge's mother, Mrs. Mathilda R. Wilson, will receive approximately $3,500,000.

Daniel Dodge, 21 years old when he died, left his entire estate except for minor bequests to his mother. His widow was provided for by a $250,000 pre-nuptial agreement but she exercised her widow's right, under Michigan law, to disregard her husband's will and take her statutory one-fourth of the estate.

Britain Protests Neutrality Act Is Harming Commerce

By ANDRUE BERDING

Washington, Jan. 10. (AP)—Great Britain has protested to the United States that the neutrality act is discriminating against her ships, it was learned today.

The protest that the neutrality act discriminates against Britain because it requires transfer of title to goods carried on British (or other belligerent) ships to certain portions of the globe, but does not require it with regard to neutral ships.

Section two makes it unlawful to export goods from the United States to any country designated as a belligerent by the president until all right, title and interest therein shall have been transferred to a foreign purchaser.

But the statute exempts from this provision neutral vessels carrying goods, other than war implements, to certain ports in the Western Hemisphere, or to any port of the Pacific or Indian oceans, including the China Sea, the Tasman Sea, the Bay of Bengal and the Arabian Sea.

In effect, a Dutch freighter could pick up a cargo in New York consigned to Halifax, Nova Scotia, and not have to transfer title from the American producer to a foreign purchaser. Or a Japanese freighter could take on a cargo in San Francisco for India without transferring title. And in both cases a British freighter would have to obtain transfer before it could sail.

The British believe that the transfer requirement will aid neutral shippers, to the disadvantage of Britain.

The state department has the British protest under advisement, but is not certain it can do anything about it, without a change in the neutrality act.

German Freighter Attempting To Run The British Blockade

Rio De Janeiro, Jan. 10 (AP)—The German freighter Sao Paulo, 4,977 tons, heavily loaded with cotton, sailed from Cabedello, last Monday, joining one other German ship attempting to run home through the British blockade.

The 4,118-ton Bahia sailed from Bahia, Brazil, last Saturday and has not been reported since.

The 6,062-ton German freighter Rio Grande, which sailed from Rio Grande Do Sul the same day, put back into port on Sunday, reporting her engines damaged. Brazilian naval planes reported the British cruiser Ajax was sighted off Rio Grande Do Sul at about the same time.

Fourteen other German ships, besides the Rio Grande, are in Brazilian ports.

The Finnish army communique said there was comparatively quiet on the other fronts.

Only minor engagements were reported in the air and on the sea.

Associated Gas & Electric Company Files an Application To Reorganize

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Associated Gas & Electric Co., top holding unit in the $1,035,000,000 Associated Gas utility system, filed application to reorganize in federal court at Utica, N. Y., today, the biggest power combine to seek protection of the bankruptcy courts since the collapse of the $5,000,000,000 Insull utility empire in 1932.

The company controls electricity, gas, water, transportation and other public service concerns in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, and has two operating units in the Philippine islands.

Unable To Pay Interest

Forcing the top unit of the system into the courts was the matter of lack of cash to meet a $262,400 interest payment on outstanding bonds, officials said. The company has outstanding $11,686,500 of 4½ percent debentures, maturing 1949 and interest amounting to $262,400 was payable on these bonds next Monday.

The company, officials explained, seldom keeps over a few thousand dollars on hand in its treasury. It had been the custom for funds to be passed on up to the top company in the form of operating subsidiary dividends or interest on borrowings whenever debenture interest payments became due.

Changed by Commission

However, all this was changed last November when the Securities & Exchange Commission ordered subsidiaries to halt dividend and interest payments to the top company "to protect the financial integrity" of the various operating units.

Associated Gas & Electric Co., and its far-flung power empire has been the subject of Senate and other official investigations and government tax suits in the past fifteen years.

The system today is made up of around 172 companies serving 6,200 communities with a population of 7,000,000 persons.

Cause of Blast Unknown

The cause of the blast was undetermined, although Sturgiss said it was possible the men had cut through to some long unused, gas-filled entry.

(The department of mines at Charleston said Bartley No. 1 was gaseous but was thoroughly rock-dusted).

The western area of the mine only was affected. The men who escaped were in the eastern section.

On the western side the tunnel leaves the foot of the shaft and runs back several thousand feet and branches.

25 Have Best Chance

"Twenty-five men in the fourth left have a better chance than any others, providing the explosion occurred in main 6, and indications are that is true."

U. S. bureau of mines rescue cars were ordered from Eckman, McDowell county, and from Pittsburgh. Oxygen equipment was on hand at the shaft mouth, manned by crews ready to help any who were brought out alive.

N. P. Rhinehart, chief of the state mines department who had been attending a safety meeting in Pittsburgh, was enroute to the mine.

Rescue Progress Slow

Progress toward the blast sector was slow and mine department officials said the ventilating system had to be rebuilt as the crews moved ahead. The main ventilating system of the mine continued in operation, however.

(At Charleston H. G. Houtz, chief engineer for the department, said the chances were "slim" that the men had been able to build barricades and conserve what pure air remained in the affected areas).

There were reports that the known death list was seven but both company and mine department officials said nothing was known of the fate of the men, except for the two found dead a half mile in.

Ropes 100 yards from the tipple kept back a crowd of between 1,000 and 2,000, while a roped-in area about seventy-five feet from the shaft was reserved for families and relatives of the men below.

The members of the families stood about apathetically, hoping for word but knowing it might be hours before anything definite was learned. Crews reported every few minutes over the mine telephone system but their only word was "moving ahead."

Salvati fixed the time of the blast at 2:20 p. m. but said it was more than an hour before it was determined there had been an explosion. He said it was first believed the accident was a slate fall.

47 Men Escape

The blast-torn area is on the western side of the mine. Officials said the forty-seven men who came out were in the eastern section and did not know there had been a disaster, when they reached the bottom of the shaft about 4 p. m.

Roy Ashworth, a motorman, was almost at the foot of the shaft at the time of the blast. He said he did not hear it because of the noise but that "a big cloud of dust rolled out over me."

A crowd of between 1,000 and 2,000 persons stood outside a roped area 300 feet from the mine, warming themselves at bonfires while they settled down to wait for word from the bottom of the shaft.

Another enclosure was roped off about seventy-five feet from the tipple and into this area gathered more than a hundred wives and relatives of the men caught below.

Lights Brighten Area

Hastily strung lights brightened the area around Bartley No. 1, the glow reaching to hundreds of cars parked on the highway across Dry Fork.

E. J. Stalling, general manager, joined Salvati in vigil at the telephone while Superintendent W. M. Haslam joined the crews digging away a mile back in.

Officials said the men known dead apparently had disobeyed orders and were walking out of the mine. The rule is that although work is finished the men must wait and come out on regularly scheduled "man trips", hauled by mine motors.

Notorious Mail Robber Ends Life

San Francisco, Jan. 10 (AP)—Roy Gardner, notorious mail robber and escape artist of the early twenty's, killed himself with poison gas tonight in a small downtown hotel room.

Gardner, whose career followed almost a routine pattern of crime, capture, conviction, escape and recapture in 1920 and 1921, left notes saying he was "tired of the struggle," investigators said.

Gardner made his own lethal chamber out of the bathroom, dropping pellets into a bowl of water which generated deadly fumes, much in the manner some states execute condemned men.

Officers were called to the hotel by Madelyn Langston, a chambermaid, who investigated a long-displayed "do not disturb" sign outside Gardner's door.

Inside the room she was confronted with another sign on the bathroom door reading "do not open this door. Poison gas. Call the police."

When officers arrived, Gardner, who was about fifty-six years old, was found crumpled on the floor of the bathroom in his shirtsleeves.

In the room, officers found several notes, one addressed to newsmen asking that they "let me down easy." I am tired of the struggle and am checking out myself."

British and Nazi

German fighter had been shot down and forced to land in Denmark.

Still later reports said a second of the 370-mile-an-hour German Messerschmidts fighters had been seen to fall in the sea.

The Helgoland anchorage which also was bombed by the British was not further identified. It was said to be "heavily fortified," however.

While the Royal Air Force thus carried the aerial war into Germany's domain, British naval vessels closer home were sowing some of the last mines needed to complete Britain's "Maginot" line of the sea—a 30,000,000-pound protective shield for east-coast shipping.

Other British official reports were meager, saying merely that bombs had been dropped "near" Sylt during patrol and reconnaissance flights. British "security patrols" of the air are intensifying their flights over the North Sea and Frisian islands, it was stated, to keep German bombers and mine-layers at home.

It was indicated from Danish advices, however, that both sides had infringed that country's neutrality in today's battles. One plane, presumably British, dropped three bombs on the Danish island of Roem, near Sylt, doing little damage. The German Messerschmidt fighter which landed near Ballum, Denmark, was reported to have bullet holes in its gasoline tanks. The pilot was interned and the plane confiscated.

An official British statement promised full restitution if it was discovered, on investigation, that the plane which dropped bombs on Danish soil was British.

The German aerial invasion of British costal waters was extended, meanwhile, to the southeast Scottish coast.

Watchers there said they saw two Nazi bombers attack and unidentified steamer with bombs and machine-gun fire.

The steamer zigzagged until British fighters appeared and chased off the attackers.

The toll of Tuesday's mass attacks by German warplanes on British and neutral shipping was increased with the announcement that a second British steamer, the 1,985-ton Oakgrove, had gone down after an assault from the air. The Gowrie, a 689-ton coastal boat, also was sunk yesterday. The Oakgrove's casualties were not determined.

It also was disclosed that the 1,000-ton British ship Upminister was bombed, but not sunk. Three of her crew were killed. Survivors said they were machine-gunned in the lifeboats.

(Germans claimed eight British ships were sunk in Tuesday's raids off the east English coast, in which at least twelve ships were attacked from the air).

British fishing boat operators, who had five vessels raked by Nazi machine-gun fire yesterday, discussed defensive arming of fishing trawlers with admiralty representatives today

Chester B. Duryea in Ma house for the Last 25 Years

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 10 Chester B. Duryea, 69-year-old ricide, acknowledged today in Supreme Court that he had the "foolish" assertion that twenty-five-year residence madhouse was simply a plot to vent him from hunting moose.

"I'm sane now," he said. "I that was foolish."

This bizarre explanation for incarceration, for which he pr pally blamed a sister, Mrs. E Anderson, was made by the ma a letter addressed to Presi Roosevelt.

It was introduced today by state in resisting his demand he now be declared sane and lowed to wipe the slate clean going on trial for the killing two six years ago of his eighty-year-old father, Brig.-Gen. H Duryea, millionaire starch ma facturer and commander of Northern Zuoaves in the war tween the states.

Stakes His Life

In this extraordinary gam Duryea is staking his life again return to Matteawan State hosp for the criminal insane where said, he had "drudged" at mop floors and the like for more tha quarter of a century.

He testified that for eight y after the killing he had lived mental darkness, but that now:

"My mind is clear and I wan stand trial."

The state, unwilling to have enter the dock, is seeking to pr that he still is insane.

Mind Began to Clear

Neatly dressed in brown, pi cheeked, with a close-cropped moustache, the aged slayer insis that his mind "began to clear in 1922" and was definitely clear 1936—"when I stopped the foll signing myself 'Major Gen God.'"

Then a minute later he ackno edged that on Jan. 31, 1936, wrote a letter at Matteawan, da "Vancouver, B. C.," billing Pr dent Roosevelt, Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York and other ficials for $2,190,000,000 damages said he suffered at the asylum.

Another Damaging Letter

There was another letter, which brought the old man alm to the verge of tears. Anxiously searched the faces of psychiatr and other officials in the courtro as Assistant State Attorney-Ge eral W. J. Cahill read a miss Duryea had written in 1937, lodg a claim for $250,000 for "heinc damages" incurred over an $83 ra he bought and which he protes he was not allowed to play.

"I thought a big figure would get the attention of the authorities," Duryea explained, in rush of words.

"I was badly treated, abused and insulted. The claim also accounted for my mental suffering at the hands of ward attendants at Matteawan."

"What did they do to you?" Cahill asked gently.

"They threatened to cut my hair off," the old man said.

Roosevelt Budget Increases Barred By House Group

And in the Senate a Sweeping Fiscal Study Is Ordered

Washington, Jan. 10. (AP)—Led by an embattled economyite, Rep. Woodrum (D-Va), the House Appropriations Committee was reported today to have erected a bar against increases in the Roosevelt budget, while the Senate voted a sweeping fiscal study.

The House group, it was said, voted to forbid its sub-committees to increase the sum total of any money bill beyond the amount recommended by the House. This, it was explained, would hamper attempts by legislators to tack on such appropriations as the $225,000,000 for farm payments voted last year.

The resolution approved by the Senate was offered by Senator Harrison (D-Miss), who said it would help start a retrenchment program which might lead eventually to a balanced budget. Under it, a Senate-House committee of twenty-four members would study the Roosevelt spending and tax recommendations and make its own recommendations in sixty days.

No Real Dissent

The resolution passed on a voice vote, without audible dissent, but some expect it to die in the House.

At the White House, meanwhile, members of the House Democratic fiteering Committee conferred with President Roosevelt. One of the legislators said the president emphasized that Congress should not exceed his budget estimates, which call for record defense outlays but for reduced expenditures for other activities.

Senator Adams (D-Col) told his colleagues that the president "with a twinkle in his eye, has again outsmarted Congress."

Congress Baffled

"The budget contains material cuts," Adams continued, waving his arms, "but the figures are such that if Congress raises them it either will have to break through the president's $45,000,000,000 debt limit or raise new taxes.

"The president has cut certain items that are very dear to the heart of Congress," he added, "saying it might be well to cut down the defense estimated and apply the money to domestic uses.

"There is a suggestion that we cut down on relief to farmers and others in order to build battleships," he said. "Battleships to fight who? To fight nobody. We are preparing for a war that is not coming."

Admiral Stark

Engineering, that throughout his thirty years' experience the navy had been making mistakes similar to those which gave the newest destroyers a tendency toward topheaviness.

He testified that "we make changes either to correct mistakes or to improve military characteristics, or for some other purpose, on every ship that we build" and that the defects in stability of the new destroyers had been corrected for about one-seventh of one per cent of the ships' total cost.

Sees Peril From Coalition

Inquiring into the need for expansion of the navy as proposed in a $1,300,000,000 authorization measure, the naval committee heard from Stark, chief of naval operations, that shifts in international political alignments since 1938 have presented the possibility of a coalition attack on this hemisphere.

The "size of navy we have now" could not defend the hemisphere "comfortably" against attack by such a group of powers as Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia, Stark testified, and if we attempted to defend the hemisphere from Maine to southern Brazil and in the Pacific also, "we hight have to sacrifice southern Brazil for the time being." Stark would not say, however, that the present navy could not defend the hemisphere.

Explains Proposal

Testifying cautiously, Stark began his discourse with an explanation of a $4,000,000 appropriation proposed for harbor improvement at Guam, Pacific island near Japan, without a request for specific authority from Congress.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) declared that he would challenge on the House floor the navy's right to make the improvements without specific authorization but Stark said that navy vessels and planes would continue to use the Guam harbor, in spite of hazards, whether the funds were voted or not.

Asked by Rep. Church (D-Ill) if the proposed navy increases were intended for maintaining the 300-mile neutrality zone around the Americas, Stark replied that protection of United States interests was not necessarily confined to that zone.

For patrolling our section of that zone and strengthening sea defenses, the appropriations committee recommended $145,082,238 for the navy and $4,442,325 for the coast guard up to June 30.

Also, $116,218,345 was recommended for the army and $1,475,000 for the counter-espionage work of the FBI. Total recommendations fell $4,801,615 short of the $271,999,423 recommended by the president.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The growing hostility of Herr Hitler's one-time favorite pal, Mussolini, to the fuehrer's new love, Dictator Stalin of Moscow, is approaching an acute stage. The Rome-Berlin axis is turning on dangerously hot bearings.

Italian resentment over the Moscow-Berlin tie-up is beginning to take on the definite complexion of Italian cooperation with Germany's foes against Germany's Russian "friend". Whether in Finland or in southeastern Europe, Italy's moves on the international checkerboard fit much more neatly into the war pattern the Franco-British Allies are trying to shape against their Nazi enemy than into any Russo-German scheme of things.

The new Italian-Hungarian mutual assistance deal emphasizes that trend. It cannot be read as anything less than a blunt notice to Moscow — and hardly less to Berlin — to keep off Italian economic grass in the Balkans.

Problem for Hitler

That is something for Herr Hitler to ponder over. It contains a direct threat of Italian armed aid to Hungary, or even to Rumania under certain conditions, if the doubtful Russo-German relationship should develop into a full-fledged military alliance aimed at steam-rollering the Balkans and the Danubian basin neutrals into submission.

That Germany's predicament is causing gleeful smiles in London and Paris cannot be seriously doubted. Whether so intended or not, the Italian-Hungarian deal is a diplomatic companion piece for the Anglo-French-Turkish mutual assistance pact barring Russian advance to the Black sea or domination of the Dardanelles.

Although details are lacking, the Italian-Hungarian pact has an even more significant aspect, by all available accounts. It operates as a definite spur to Rumania to resist Russian aggression, political or military, and regardless of whether Russia moves alone or in combination with Germany.

The implied threat is that, failing a Rumanian-Hungarian settlement, Rumania would be left to paddle her own canoe against Russia. She might even share Poland's plight and find Hungary, abetted by Italy, moving in on her from the west as Russia moved in from the north.

There apparently has been grave doubt in Allied capitals at times as to just what Rumania would do if Russia sought to force the issue in Bessarabia by arms, particularly if Berlin winked at such a Russian thrust as it winked at the Soviet invasion of Finland. The effect of the Italian-Hungarian pact might be to insure Rumanian resistance in expectation of prompt help from Hungary and Italy, help which the Franco-British-Turkish group could not give as quickly or effectively.

Yet while Italy's antagonism to the Russian-German partnership, if it invades her sphere of influence in southeastern Europe, is a heavy and increasing strain on Italian-German relations, in another way it is reassuring for Berlin. Germany must be hoping for peace in the Balkans and the Danube basin because war might interrupt the flow of vital oil, grain and other necessities into the Reich. In the light of Russia's disastrous experience in Finland and the diplomatic checkmates being established in the Balkans both by the Franco-British Allies and by Italy, Berlin's influence on Moscow to avert a Russian military adventure in southeastern Europe is obviously enhanced.

unionization, developed rapidly. Benches were abandoned and plants closed.

Two years of organization, by both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, was climaxed by the balloting. A formal announcement gave 1,612 votes for the AFL, 1,079 for the CIO, and 12,693 against both.

Praises Loyalty of Workers

Charles F. Johnson, Jr., vice-president and general manager of the shoe company, which operates about twenty plants here, and in nearby Endicott, Binghamton and Owego, announced the vote proved policies of the company were "sound." "They couldn't shake the loyalty and faith of the workers in George F.," he asserted.

CIO and AFL organizers declined comment. Previously they announced a protest was being considered because of an anti-union demonstration Monday by an estimated 8,000 persons. Last Friday William Green, AFL president, came to Johnson City and voiced a personal plea for support of his union.

Demonstrate for Hours

Monday's protested demonstration was mild compared to today's celebration. Workers marched and counter-marched, carrying banners and shouting their loyalty. An estimated 2,500 persons paraded to the George F. Johnson home in Endicott, but dispersed quietly when told the noise might bother their employer, recovering from pneumonia. Endicott public schools closed because of lack of attendance. A dance started at 2 p. m., continued tonight.

Relatives said the company chairman received news of the vote calmly, and with no comment. A daughter, Mrs. Lillian Sweet, said "he lay there and smiled."

In both Johnson City and Endicott an open shop policy predominates. In Binghamton, however, the workers are organized.

yield soon to an Italian-backed plan for an adjustment.

Budapest reports said that the Italian and Hungarian foreign ministers, Count Galeazzo Ciano and Count Istvan Csaky, in their meetings at Venice last weekend had worked out such a program.

May Settle After War

Under this plan, to which the Budapest government is said to have agreed, Hungary would give up claims to Transylvania for the present in return for a Rumanian promise of territorial revision after the present European war.

In payment for that promise, which would be guaranteed by Italy, Rumania would receive assurance of full Italian and Hungarian support against any Russian attack on Bessarabia, the former Russian province she gained after the World War.

Italy was understood to have a similar plan for settling differences between Rumania and Bulgaria, who desires return of the Dobruja district, which like Transylvania is an area of mixed nationalities that Rumania took after the war.

The Italian plan was understood to call for outright cession of purely Hungarian and Bulgarian districts contiguous to Hungary and Bulgaria and for plebiscites in districts of mixed nationality.

Reports from Belgrade indicated that Italy was trying to draw Yugoslavia also into her front against possible Russian expansion into southeast Europe.

Entente Meets Feb. 2

The Yugoslav government announced that the Balkan entente would meet in Belgrade Feb. 2-4. Entente members are Yugoslavia, Rumania, Greece and Turkey. It was assumed that Italian efforts to line up a southeastern European front would be the center of entente attention.

Rumanian officials, in informally rejecting the idea of territorial concessions, said that Rumania was quite willing to begin talks for economic concesalons and other moves to improve relations with Hungary.

Budapest sources considered this Rumanian attitude as a natural starting point in the international poker game and professed belief that Bucharest was striving for the best possible terms.

Gov. Price Wants Cash for Schools, Message Asserts

Virginia Executive also Requests Merit Ratings for Employers

Richmond, Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—Governor Price asked today for an increase of $2,519,465 for the public schools in the next two years and recommended merit ratings for employers estimated to save them $7,000,000 in unemployment taxes in a like period.

His lengthy message, delivered to the opening session of the 1940 general assembly in an address of an hour and twenty-seven minutes, laid emphasis on greater state aid for schools, changes in the unemployment compensation act of 1938, and the need for solution of Virginia's criminal cost and jail and prison population problems.

The chief executive reserved for his budget message next Monday his proposals for meeting costs of expanded or additional state activities, especially in the field of education and old age assistance.

Will Help Teachers

The increase recommended for schools, while far short of the state board of education's request for $5,100,000 a year for its "three point" program, would go far toward meeting the first point—a state appropriation of $720 per teacher unit per year. The governor's intention is that the state appropriation shall be increased from the present $600 per teacher unit to $550 in the first year of the biennium and $610 in the second year.

The governor asked changes in the unemployment compensation act to conform to those already made in the federal act. The federal change limits the tax to three per cent of the first $3,000 of salary paid an individual.

Anticipating further changes in the federal act, he asked legislation to permit him to lower the state rate by executive order to conform to any change in the federal rate.

Merit Plan Views

Under the merit rating plan as outlined briefly by the governor, the assembly would authorize abatement of taxes, in accordance with the determined plan, for industries with good employment records.

Governor Price commended to the attention of the legislators the reports of the advisory council on jails and prison reform and the report of the state auditor on criminal costs. He expressed himself in accord with most of the recommendations, urged especially that sheriffs and city sergeants be paid salaries in lieu of fees.

British Plane Lost

them, instead of being regarded as belonging to his estate.

Charles Wright, Jr., attorney for Mrs. Seyburn and Mrs. Sloane, said he would appeal the ruling to circuit court within twenty days. Renville Wheat, Mrs. Johnson's attorney, said he had not decided whether to appeal.

Annie Dodge, 21, will continue to receive the $5,000 monthly allowance she has had since Daniel's death, until litigation over the estate is ended.

$6,000,000 in Taxes

Judge Murphy's decision cut state and federal governments in for a $6,000,000 slice of the estate, through collection of inheritance taxes.

Daniel Dodge's mother, Mrs. Mathilda R. Wilson, will receive approximately $3,500,000.

Daniel Dodge, 21 years old when he died, left his entire estate except for minor bequests to his mother. His widow was provided for by a $250,000 pre-nuptial agreement but she exercised her widow's right, under Michigan law, to disregard her husband's will and take her statutory one-fourth of the estate.

Britain Protests Neutrality Act Is Harming Commerce

By ANDRUE BERDING

Washington, Jan. 10. (AP)—Great Britain has protested to the United States that the neutrality act is discriminating against her ships, it was learned today.

The protest that the neutrality act discriminates against Britain because it requires transfer of title to goods carried on British (or other belligerent) ships to certain portions of the globe, but does not require it with regard to neutral ships.

Section two makes it unlawful to export goods from the United States to any country designated as a belligerent by the president until all right, title and interest therein shall have been transferred to a foreign purchaser.

But the statute exempts from this provision neutral vessels carrying goods, other than war implements, to certain ports in the Western Hemisphere, or to any port of the Pacific or Indian oceans, including the China Sea, the Tasman Sea, the Bay of Bengal and the Arabian Sea.

In effect, a Dutch freighter could pick up a cargo in New York consigned to Halifax, Nova Scotia, and not have to transfer title from the American producer to a foreign purchaser. Or a Japanese freighter could take on a cargo in San Francisco for India without transferring title. And in both cases a British freighter would have to obtain transfer before it could sail.

The British believe that the transfer requirement will aid neutral shippers, to the disadvantage of Britain.

The state department has the British protest under advisement, but is not certain it can do anything about it, without a change in the neutrality act.

German Freighter Attempting To Run The British Blockade

Rio De Janeiro, Jan. 10 (AP)—The German freighter Sao Paulo, 4,977 tons, heavily loaded with cotton, sailed from Cabedello, last Monday, joining one other German ship attempting to run home through the British blockade.

The 4,118-ton Bahia sailed from Bahia, Brazil, last Saturday and has not been reported since.

The 6,062-ton German freighter Rio Grande, which sailed from Rio Grande Do Sul the same day, put back into port on Sunday, reporting her engines damaged. Brazilian naval planes reported the British cruiser Ajax was sighted off Rio Grande Do Sul at about the same time.

Fourteen other German ships, besides the Rio Grande, are in Brazilian ports.

Thousands of Russians were reported killed and more than 1,000 captured.

The Finnish army communique said there was comparatively quiet on the other fronts.

Associated Gas & Electric Company Files an Application To Reorganize

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Associated Gas & Electric Co., top holding unit in the $1,035,000,000 Associated Gas utility system, filed application to reorganize in federal court at Utica, N. Y., today, the biggest power combine to seek protection of the bankruptcy courts since the collapse of the $5,000,000,000 Insull utility empire in 1932.

The company controls electricity, gas, water, transportation and other public service concerns in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, and has two operating units in the Philippine islands.

Unable To Pay Interest

Forcing the top unit of the system into the courts was the matter of lack of cash to meet a $262,400 interest payment on outstanding bonds, officials said. The company has outstanding $11,686,500 of 4½ percent debentures, maturing 1949 and interest amounting to $262,400 was payable on these bonds next Monday.

The company, officials explained, seldom keeps over a few thousand dollars on hand in its treasury. It had been the custom for funds to be passed on up to the top company in the form of operating subsidiary dividends or interest on borrowings whenever debenture interest payments became due.

Changed by Commission

However, all this was changed last November when the Securities & Exchange Commission ordered subsidiaries to halt dividend and interest payments to the top company "to protect the financial integrity" of the various operating units.

Associated Gas & Electric Co., and its far-flung power empire has been the subject of Senate and other official investigations and government tax suits in the past fifteen years.

The system today is made up of around 172 companies serving 6,200 communities with a population of 7,000,000 persons.

miles away and Welch is twenty miles away.

Cause of Blast Unknown

The cause of the blast was undetermined, although Sturgiss said it was possible the men had cut through to some long unused, gas-filled entry.

(The department of mines at Charleston said Bartley No. 1 was gaseous but was thoroughly rock-dusted).

The western area of the mine only was affected. The men who escaped were in the eastern section.

On the western side the tunnel leaves the foot of the shaft and runs back several thousand feet and branches.

25 Have Best Chance

"Twenty-five men in the fourth left have a better chance than any others, providing the explosion occurred in main 6, and indications are that is true."

U. S. bureau of mines rescue cars were ordered from Eckman, McDowell county, and from Pittsburgh. Oxygen equipment was on hand at the shaft mouth, manned by crews ready to help any who were brought out alive.

N. P. Rhinehart, chief of the state mines department who had been attending a safety meeting in Pittsburgh, was enroute to the mine.

Rescue Progress Slow

Progress toward the blast sector was slow and mine department officials said the ventilating system had to be rebuilt as the crews moved ahead. The main ventilating system of the mine continued in operation, however.

(At Charleston H. G. Houtz, chief engineer for the department, said the chances were "slim" that the men had been able to build barricades and conserve what pure air remained in the affected areas).

There were reports that the known death list was seven but both company and mine department officials said nothing was known of the fate of the men, except for the two found dead a half mile in.

Ropes 100 yards from the tipple kept back a crowd of between 1,000 and 2,000, while a roped-in area about seventy-five feet from the shaft was reserved for families and relatives of the men below.

The members of the families stood about apathetically, hoping for word but knowing it might be hours before anything definite was learned. Crews reported every few minutes over the mine telephone system but their only word was "moving ahead."

Salvati fixed the time of the blast at 2:20 p. m. but said it was more than an hour before it was determined there had been an explosion. He said it was first believed the accident was a slate fall.

47 Men Escape

The blast-torn area is on the western side of the mine. Officials said the forty-seven men who came out were in the eastern section and did not know there had been a disaster, when they reached the bottom of the shaft about 4 p. m.

Roy Ashworth, a motorman, was almost at the foot of the shaft at the time of the blast. He said he did not hear it because of the noise but that "a big cloud of dust rolled out over me."

A crowd of between 1,000 and 2,000 persons stood outside a roped area 300 feet from the mine, warming themselves at bonfires while they settled down to wait for word from the bottom of the shaft.

Another enclosure was roped off about seventy-five feet from the tipple and into this area gathered more than a hundred wives and relatives of the men caught below.

Lights Brighten Area

Hastily strung lights brightened the area around Bartley No. 1, the glow reaching to hundreds of cars parked on the highway across Dry Fork.

E. J. Stalling, general manager, joined Salvati in vigil at the telephone while Superintendent W. M. Haslam joined the crews digging away a mile back in.

Officials said the men known dead apparently had disobeyed orders and were walking out of the mine. The rule is that although work is finished the men must wait and come out on regularly scheduled "man trips", hauled by mine motors.

Notorious Mail Robber Ends Life

San Francisco, Jan. 10 (AP)—Roy Gardner, notorious mail robber and escape artist of the early twenty's, killed himself with poison gas tonight in a small downtown hotel room.

Gardner, whose career followed almost a routine pattern of crime, capture, conviction, escape and recapture in 1920 and 1921, left notes saying he was "tired of the struggle," investigators said.

Gardner made his own lethal chamber out of the bathroom, dropping pellets into a bowl of water which generated deadly fumes, much in the manner some states execute condemned men.

Officers were called to the hotel by Madelyn Langston, a chambermaid, who investigated a long-displayed "do not disturb" sign outside Gardner's door.

Inside the room she was confronted with another sign on the bathroom door reading "do not open this door. Poison gas. Call the police."

When officers arrived, Gardner, who was about fifty-six years old, was found crumpled on the floor of the bathroom in his shirtsleeves.

In the room, officers found several notes, one addressed to newsmen asking that they "let me down easy." I am tired of the struggle and am checking out myself."

British and Nazi

German fighter had been shot down and forced to land in Denmark.

Still later reports said a second of the 370-mile-an-hour German Messerschmidts fighters had been seen to fall in the sea.

The Helgoland anchorage which also was bombed by the British was not further identified. It was said to be "heavily fortified," however.

While the Royal Air Force thus carried the aerial war into Germany's domain, British naval vessels closer home were sowing some of the last mines needed to complete Britain's "Maginot" line of the sea—a 30,000,000-pound protective shield for east-coast shipping.

Other British official reports were meager, saying merely that bombs had been dropped "near" Sylt during patrol and reconnaissance flights. British "security patrols" of the air are intensifying their flights over the North Sea and Frisian islands, it was stated, to keep German bombers and mine-layers at home.

It was indicated from Danish advices, however, that both sides had infringed that country's neutrality in today's battles. One plane, presumably British, dropped three bombs on the Danish island of Roem, near Sylt, doing little damage. The German Messerschmidt fighter which landed near Ballum, Denmark, was reported to have bullet holes in its gasoline tanks. The pilot was interned and the plane confiscated.

An official British statement promised full restitution if it was discovered, on investigation, that the plane which dropped bombs on Danish soil was British.

The German aerial invasion of British costal waters was extended, meanwhile, to the southeast Scottish coast.

Watchers there said they saw two Nazi bombers attack and unidentified steamer with bombs and machine-gun fire.

The steamer zigzagged until British fighters appeared and chased off the attackers.

The toll of Tuesday's mass attacks by German warplanes on British and neutral shipping was increased with the announcement that a second British steamer, the 1,985-ton Oakgrove, had gone down after an assault from the air. The Gowrie, a 689-ton coastal boat, also was sunk yesterday. The Oakgrove's casualties were not determined.

It also was disclosed that the 1,000-ton British ship Upminister was bombed, but not sunk. Three of her crew were killed. Survivors said they were machine-gunned in the lifeboats.

(Germans claimed eight British ships were sunk in Tuesday's raids off the east English coast, in which at least twelve ships were attacked from the air).

British fishing boat operators, who had five vessels raked by Nazi machine-gun fire yesterday, discussed defensive arming of fishing trawlers with admiralty representatives today

Seeks To Leave Asylum To Face Charge of Murd

Chester B. Duryea in Ma house for the Last 25 Years

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 10 Chester B. Duryea, 69-year-old ricide, acknowledged today in Supreme Court that he had the "foolish" assertion that twenty-five-year residence in madhouse was simply a plot to vent him from hunting moose.

"I'm sane now," he said. "I that was foolish."

This bizarre explanation for incarceration, for which he pri pally blamed a sister, Mrs. E Anderson, was made by the ma a letter addressed to Presi Roosevelt.

It was introduced today by state in resisting his demand he now be declared sane and lowed to wipe the slate clean going on trial for the killing two six years ago of his eighty-year-old father, Brig.-Gen. H Duryea, millionaire starch ma facturer and commander of Northern Zuoaves in the war tween the states.

Stakes His Life

In this extraordinary gam Duryea is staking his life again return to Matteawan State hosp for the criminal insane where said, he had "drudged" at mop floors and the like for more tha quarter of a century.

He testified that for eight y after the killing he had lived mental darkness, but that now:

"My mind is clear and I wan stand trial."

The state, unwilling to have enter the dock, is seeking to p that he still is insane.

Mind Began to Clear

Neatly dressed in brown, pa cheeked, with a close-cropped w moustache, the aged slayer insi that his mind "began to clear in 1922" and was definitely clear 1936—"when I stopped the foll signing myself 'Major Gen God.'"

Then a minute later he ackno edged that on Jan. 31, 1936, wrote a letter at Matteawan, da "Vancouver, B. C.," billing Pr dent Roosevelt, Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York and other ficials for $2,190,000,000 damages said he suffered at the asylum.

Another Damaging Letter

There was another letter, which brought the old man alm to the verge of tears. Anxiously searched the faces of psychiatr and other officials in the courtro as Assistant State Attorney-Ge eral W. J. Cahill read a mis Duryea had written in 1937, lodg a claim for $250,000 for "heinous damages" incurred over an $83 ra he bought and which he protest he was not allowed to play.

"I thought a big figure would get the attention of the authorities," Duryea explained, in a rush of words.

"I was badly treated, abused and insulted. The claim also ac counted for my mental suffering at the hands of ward attendants at Matteawan."

"What did they do to you?" Cahill asked gently.

"They threatened to cut my hair off," the old man said.

A Good Omen

COINCIDENT with the Jackson day dinner fund raising by the Democrats came the announcement by John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, that the debt hanging over that party had finally been almost completely wiped out.

That is a most encouraging thing and, as the New York Herald Tribune points out, it is clear indication that confidence in the party is being restored. It is a political truism, as the Herald Tribune says, that when a party's standing is low it finds it hard to raise funds, but that when its moral credit is high, its financial credit is also good. More than $600,000 was still owed by the party organization last summer; and during the last two months it has collected a million dollars, the most of which was used in paying off that debt. The organization is still functioning, however, and its upkeep expenses continue.

The liquidation of this big debt does not mean, however, as the Herald Tribune says, that the party's financial problems are solved. "Far from it," it says. "Not only does the party have to raise enough money for all the work preparatory to the presidential campaign, but it must have a large sum at its command when the last three months of the campaign approach. It has often been said that the party in power has a lead of at least $10,000,000 over the opposition, thanks to the army of office holders which it has at its disposal. Although, in theory, the power of this army of vote getters has been curtailed by the Hatch act, nobody acquainted with practical politics would for a moment deny that the Democrats have an enormous advantage over the Republicans because of their control over vast sums of public money.

"Fortunately, the Republican leaders realized a year or more ago that concerted and consistent efforts were required if money was to be raised for the support of the party throughout the nation. It is not alone a question of the presidential campaign. There are congressmen and senators to be elected, and governors, state legislators, county officials, mayors and city fathers. In order to establish a measure of coherence in the collection and disposition of funds, the Republicans organized a united fund drive which has centralized the solicitation of contributions, and which distributes funds among the federal, state and local organizations on an equitable basis.

"In attempting to raise money, the party leaders have done everything possible to obtain as many subscriptions as possible — to stress numbers as much as the size of contributions. Although large contributions have been and will, of course, continue to be, welcome, the objective is to swell the campaign chest by the largest possible number of small gifts. It is encouraging to realize that all the money to be contributed henceforth can be concentrated on productive expenditures, instead of having to be used to liquidate past obligations."

The plan of obtaining small gifts in number, which has been followed in late years by the party, is good and, if it receives the proper response, will be productive of excellent results, not only fiscally but also in stimulating a wider self-interest in the work of the organization.

Don't Forget the Birds

SPORTSMEN and the public in general are asked by E. Lee LeCompte, state game warden, to co-operate in distributing grain, which will be furnished by the Maryland State Game and Inland Fish Commission to those who will make it their business to find coveys of birds and provide feeding stations in order to save brood stock.

LeCompte points out that the birds cannot find the feed on the snow. The snow, he says, must be scraped to the ground and the feed scattered on the bare ground.

Weather reports are to the effect that bitter cold weather and heavy snows are still to be expected and unless wildlife is fed by the public the shortage of brood stock for the coming season will be very noticeable.

The district game wardens in every county of the state have been notified to purchase feed and deliver it to those persons who are interested and who will assist in this feeding program. LeCompte solicits continued interest and co-operation in this needful work.

Cumberland people, this newspaper is glad to note, have been giving this attention to the birds, but likely a number have failed to realize the need. These might help the good work along by providing food for the birds in their yards.

The Case Completed

AS the House investigation of the National Labor Relations Board gets under way after the holiday recess, with interesting and revealing disclosures being made daily by payrollers from this outfit, opposition to amendment of the act has no longer a leg to stand on.

The final blow was dealt by the three supreme court decisions, confirming the extreme powers given the board in deciding what constitutes an appropriate bargaining unit and what unions may or may not be permitted to participate in employe elections.

These decisions established beyond question that under the law as it stands the type of union—industrial, craft or independent—favored by the board majority not only has a tremendous advantage—it has a monopoly of the dues in question. Employees must accept the mandate of the board unless after certification of a union as bargaining agent the employer should challenge the order.

Of the necessity for curbing such broad discretion, the evidence taken by the special committee of the House offers convincing proof, and more is produced daily. Interdepartmental memoranda and admissions by NLRB staff members, were self-condemnatory also of interpretative and administrative methods. They were upsetting to those who had conceived the board as an impartial tribunal for adjustment of labor disputes arising from organizational and collective bargaining activities and for redress of grievances.

The decisions and the evidence, taken together, make a rather complete mosaic of administrative defects. They may be expected to have a wider influence than the curbing of the Labor board alone.

Curious

AS A NEW MEMBER of the cabinet, unusual curiosity attaches to Secretary of the Navy Edison's request that Congress give the president "emergency" powers in peace time comparable to those he now may exercise by statute only in the event of war.

These embrace authority to take over factories and ships, cancel or modify contracts, even fix prices of materials the government may want for the Navy. It is only about two weeks since Mr. Edison was commissioned, and it is perfectly obvious that his request embodies a step toward totalitarianism that must have been under consideration for some time.

No reason has yet been advanced for asking that these powers be conferred upon Mr. Roosevelt at this time. There is a careful disclaimer that the request had any bearing on the wars in Europe.

Such emergency powers with reference to the Navy were accorded President Wilson in March, 1917. Then, of course, diplomatic relations with Germany had been broken off and the nation was on the verge of war. Mr. Roosevelt in his message to Congress expressed conviction that we shall remain at peace.

It is unthinkable that Congress will confer any such power upon the chief executive. Congressional comment has properly been violently hostile to the Edison plan. Perhaps more of Mr. Edison's views will be brought out before a congressional committee before he is confirmed as a member of the Roosevelt cabinet.

Music and Emotions

IT MUST HAVE BEEN the age of innocence in music when Bach, Beethoven and Hayden were content with melodies of folk songs, the harmonies of nature and the resources of their own imaginations as the inspiration of musical masterpieces. Modern composers must produce musical creations of rivets, city noises, tropic cruises, trans-oceanic airplane flights, machinery and the clash of ideas.

There is good authority for the proposition that the enjoyment of good music is an emotional rather than an intellectual experience. That is probably true of the old classics, but unless some of this modern music, which is said to be good, is made intelligible by an explanation of what it is all about, the only likely experience is one of jarred senses with now and then a moment's release from pain.

A special article in Izvesta, official Soviet newspaper at Moscow, charges the United States with "imperialism against small weak countries" in Latin America. You'd think that by now Stalin's boys would have learned that small weak countries aren't weak.

Uncle Bub says he knows a fellow who hates Russian Communists so much that this year he is wearing blue flannels.

It now appears well established that the Russian bear is not of the polar species.

The Brave Old Lady

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Mary went today to visit an old lady, friend of a friend, who was being taken away to the county hospital—because she was ill and had no family and could no longer live by herself.

Marshall Maslin

A brave old lady who lived all by herself in a little house behind another home and would accept no public pension for her old age and earned her own way by sewing.

But she had had a "stroke" and some one had called a doctor and the doctor had reported her condition to the authorities and she was going to the public hospital for observation and treatment, and perhaps to stay there until she died.

Poor thing! you say in impulsive pity? Yes, she is poor, but not pitiable, not ever to be pitied. . . . Because Mary was there when a public nurse came to examine her and to ask questions and to fill in those long, long blanks that must be covered with words before any official action can be taken to admit a sick old lady to the hospital. (I'm not sneering at those statistical details, I'm merely mentioning them.)

Mary wanted to leave when the nurse came but she had to stay in the room. She had thought she might embarrass the old lady but it was no embarrassment at all. . . . When you're old, as she is, and wise, as she is, you have passed beyond such small trivalities. . . . She was cheerful and didn't mind answering questions. Not a bit of it. No, she had no husband or sister or brother. Yes, she had a son but she had no idea where he wandered on the earth. (She gave that information with no self-pity.) And finally Mary heard the nurse asking for the name of her father's father and what was the maiden name of her mother. And when the nurse asked those questions the old lady chuckled gently and whispered, almost to herself, "Poor things!" (They'd been dead so long, long ago, in the far country in which their daughter had been born, that it amused the old lady to be telling a brisk young American nurse the maiden name of her mother.)

So the brave old lady was taken away to the county hospital. . . . She could not take her neighbor's cat—the cat she had been feeding while the neighbor was away—and she left instructions that her front door be left open so the cat could come in at night. It did not matter, she said. Nothing in the little house was worth stealing; nothing, it seemed was more valuable than the cat's warmth at night. . . . The petty things of the earth mattered no more, if they ever did at all, to the brave and humorous old lady.

Mary told me about the old lady as we sat this evening at dinner, and all evening long the thought of her has been alive in my heart. And, somehow, I think I'll never be forgetting her.

Our Heritage Is Unequalled

By EDWIN C. HILL

Thomas E. Dewey's get-away speech, in which he invoked a new and fervid belief in the high destiny of America, was good psychological medicine regardless of what one may think of Mr. Dewey's candidacy. It also helped to warm up an interesting year-end discussion and appraisal of assets and liabilities, mainly directed to Mr. Dewey's challenge of defeatism in the national outlook.

Edwin C. Hill

Rounding up the exchanges, a few magazines and a timely book or two, in which the editorial railbirds clock the 1939 run-around, we noted several drifts or attitudes pertinent to Mr. Dewey's attention-getter. One is that the unhappy state of most of the rest of the world has shocked us into a realization that we have something worth believing in, over here. Another observation is that these chastening years seem to have made us more toughminded than we used to be.

Not Banished by Words

We know that the spectres of poverty, insecurity, civil strife and a disordered economy aren't banished by any noble pipe-organ utterance or by merely verbal genuflections to the beautitudes and the eternal verities. Mr. Dewey found a respectful and attentive national audience because he has demonstrated his ability to translate moral fervor into definite social gains—or knock-out victories, to put it differently. We feel that if someone should say "for instance?" he would have something convincing to say about why, when and how.

Most interesting, it seemed to me, was the evidence of unshaken national faith, after years of buffeting, disclosed by Dewey's challenge and the subsequent discussion, and that this faith is more informed, more rational and quite possibly cleansed and hardened by a decade of disillusionment. In my view, Mr. Dewey could have brought forward no more important question than the degree of our belief in what we are presumed to believe in America, and who does, or doesn't do the believing.

Current Issue Stated

I believe it was Heraclitis who offered as a method of polemics the statement of a possibly absurd extreme as the beginning of clarification. A hard-bitten, cynical friend states for me the current issue of national faith.

"We in America," he says, "are supposed to believe in democracy, labor, education, and religion, taking a few of cultural and institutional commitments at random. What happens? Democracy doesn't really believe in democracy. We are suckers for foreign titles and decorations. Any adenoidal princeling from overseas can overwhelm us with a sense of our own social inferiority. We don't want equality; we want privilege. The average millionaire, who could buy a thousand fight tickets, will cadge one from his friend, the sporting editor, if he can—just to be one up on the boys at the club. That's human.

Human Beliefs

"Labor doesn't believe in labor. It believes in getting a patch of ground or a business or a white collar cinch and getting out of labor. That's human, too. Religion doesn't believe in religion, if we believe the preachers who reproach us for rendering only occasional lip service to its saving obligations. Law doesn't believe in law. It believes in rigging things for its side and trimming the Constitution to its Procrustean bed. Education doesn't believe in education. In secondary schools it believes in processing students through the regents' examinations and, in colleges, in a football team good enough to pay the mortgage on the stadium. I could go through a long list of things we are supposed to believe in and ought to believe in, but don't."

Is Helpful

I am not prepared to defend my friend's gloomy analysis. But I think it is helpful in breaking down Mr. Dewey's general statement of faith into a few of its more important components. I believe we have today a heritage more worth believing in than that of any other people. I believe that we have been recreant in that belief. I hope that in the national forum, Mr. Dewey's thesis will be winnowed down into minutely specified detail and that thereby we will find the new fervor of belief which Mr. Dewey extolls.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

FINNISH VISITOR

Maurice Ansel

One of the first persons to come to the United States from Helsinki since Russia started its invasion of Finland, Maurice Ansel arrives in New York to arrange shipment of wood pulp to Finland, which bought most of its pulp from the Soviet.

THE SHEPHERD MAKES HIS USUAL REPORT

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Like nearly everyobdy throughout the country, Washington officialdom has been delighted by the strong showing that the Finns started off with against Russia.

Chas. P. Stewart

However, professional military men have not had any idea, from the beginning, that the little republic's plucky, competent soldiery could, for very long, fight successfully against the enormous numerical odds in the Soviets' favor. With an alignment which permits the Muscovites to sacrifice 60 men for each lone Finnish casualty, experts have agreed, "Oh, what's the use in gambling on Finland?" The Finns' morale has been recognized as out of all proportion to the Russians'. Nevertheless, it takes a lot of morale to offset 60-to-1 in numbers.

Even supposing that the Finlanders get considerable help from sympathetic outsiders, the consensus of professional opinion has been that the small body of northern scrappers are outclassed hopelessly. The field of combat is frightfully unhandy for most pro-Finnish outsiders to get into. A modicum of Swedish and Norwegian manpower is available. Its quality is superlative, but, in quantity, it's only a drop in the bucket.

Guns versus Spears

Money, credit, guns, ammunition, hospitalization and miscellaneous supplies are to be had by the Finns from other democratic countries, but they're required in a tremendous quantity to offset a 60-to-1 disproportion numercially.

To be sure, War Secretary Harry Woodring made a cabinet report recently in the course of which he remarked that a 1,000-man regiment, with modern weapons undoubtedly could wipe out a 1,000,000-man army of naked savages, armed with spears only.

Secretary Woodring wasn't discussing the Russo-Finnish situation. He was speaking only generally, in favor of an up-to-date equipment for Uncle Samuel. He was right, most likely.

But the Russians aren't actually naked savages, with nothing but spears to fight with. Man for man, it's conceded that they're inferior to the Finns—their leadership is inferior, anyway. And perhaps their shooting irons and planes and explosives aren't on a par with the Finnish standard. But they're not mere savages and they have better than spears to fight with. Odds of 10-to-1 might be a fair comparison—but not 60-to-1. At least our best military authorities don't think so.

Another Picture

Our state department takes a somewhat different view of the matter.

From its observers in Russia it gets an impression that Comrade Stalin is decidedly bothered by the dilatoriness, from home discontent, with his campaign in Finland.

On account of the censorship, naturally internal Russia doesn't realize in what fashion the Soviets' push into Finland has been lagging.

That is to say, Moscow and the back-country don't realize it. But Leningrad does, because Leningrad's on the very edge of the undeclared conflict. And Leningrad is no trifling four corners. Its population is about 3,000,000, and it's getting the overflow from casualties from the stricken area. It can't but know how fast the Russians are NOT winning on a 60-to-1 basis.

The state department's dope is that there certainly has been a leakage of information into internal Russia.

The state department argues:

A couple of decades ago, Russia could have licked Japan—only the czar had a revolution on his hands at home.

Now hasn't Comrade Stalin another on his hand—to distract him?

It may be a chance for Finland.

Weakest Link In the Chain

From the Parkersburg, W. Va., News

Among the major issues expected to come before Congress is a proposal to curb the power of the National Labor Relations Board.

To the activities of this agency have been charged considerable of the unrest that provoked sitdown strikes, union disagreements and hampering of industry. Both employers and unions allege the Board leaves much to be desired.

Both the A. F. of L., and the National Association of Manufacturers have demanded amendments to the Wagner act that would curtail the NLRB's powers. John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. on the other hand, demands that the law be strengthened by adding criminal penalties to the civil orders that the NLRB is now permitted to impose on employer-violators of the Wagner Act.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L.., declares that the evidence presented before the House committee showed that the N. L. R. B. had favored the C. I. O.

Dissatisfaction with the NLRB as now constituted has been expressed in the ranks of both parties as well as among both capital and labor. The long drawn out hearings of Weirton Steel a year or two ago, cost that company more than one million dollars and interrupted its working schedule immeasurably.

The News has always regarded the Labor board as the weakest link in the administration claim. It is badly in need of revamping, if not absolute abolishment.

Charges Cannot Be Ignored

From the Philadelphia Inquirer

The charges of figure juggling which Chairman May of the House Military Affairs committee brings against TVA is not new—plenty of testimony to this effect was brought out by the congressional investigation—but it is especially timely in view of the agency's annual report.

This purports to show that TVA is out of the red and beginning to pay its way. The object, according to Mr. May, is to obtain more appropriations from Congress. He can find nothing to support Chairman Morgan's contention that TVA makes allowances for the taxes it would have to pay if a privately owned corporation.

Chairman May also touches on the promise of TVA to make up lost taxes to states deprived of revenue by the taking over of private utilities. He asserts that on a power investment of $143,000,000 TVA proposes to pay in lieu of taxes the small sum of $610,000. The private concerns paid out sixteen per cent of gross revenues in taxes.

These are charges which can not be ignored when TVA again seeks more handouts of the people's money from Congress.

Handbill Law Change Is Not Understood

Mr. Grayson Thinks Two City Ordinances Cannot Stand Up in Court

Editor The Cumberland News:

Today's Cumberland News reports that the charges of violation of the handbill ordinance and picketing ordinance, preferred by the city of Cumberland against a group of religionists, was dropped by the city solicitor when the case was called in the circuit court.

On September 25, 1939, the Cumberland News reported the second arrest within a week of members of the religious group and quoted that the "City Hall Ready To Go To Mat in Handbill Scrap," and other comments by Mayor Irvine that the law will be vigorously enforced.

I have not yet read that Mayor Irvine has given any reason for his change of mind. First, these people were arrested and released when the magistrate found them not guilty. Second, they are re-arrested a week later and found guilty. Third, they appeal to a higher court while the mayor announces that those who protest against the handbill and picketing ordinances should do so through court action. Fourth, when such action is taken the city runs out on the issues and withdraws the charges!

Does Cumberland need any further examples of such irresponsibility? And, is everyone satisfied now that the handbill ordinance and picketing ordinance cannot stand up in court?

Tariffs Technical And Difficult

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

Washington, Jan. 10—I do not one person in ten of us knows what is meant by "reciprocal trade agreements under the unconditional most favored nation clause." They are what the lawyers call "words of art." But few of us are artists in such words. Yet, over these words will wage one of the greatest battles in the coming Congress. The issues are so technical that I shrink from the task of trying to make them plain.

Tariffs have been the curse of American politics. When we were colonies of England, she would let us manufacture so much as she wanted her own factories for that. We were to produce raw materials.

Created Industry

It was one of the causes of the Revolution. Our lack of any industrial capacity handicapped us in that fight. When we won it Alexander Hamilton properly insisted that for our own defense and balanced prosperity we must encourage an American manufacturing industry. He proposed a tariff so high that low cost production from England could not prevent creation of our own "infant industries." It was probably right at the time. The whole country, North and South, fell for it. It did create both an American manufacturing and shipping industry.

But the South and West were not industrial areas. They were agricultural and their prosperity depended on export trade. Behind high tariff walls they had to pay higher for the products of American industry than they would have to pay for European industrial products. But no tariff, no matter how high, can protect any agricultural surplus crop. Farmers bought it at a tariff protected price level. They sold it at the much lower price level.

Cause of Civil War

The South soon saw that the tariff was simply a tax laid on Southern agriculture to protect New England industry. That, and not slavery, was the economic cause of the Civil war.

The tariff has cursed politics administrations ever since. Then the device of trading in Congress between one industrial minority pressure group and another, called "log-rolling", tariffs have been used to boost prices and profits without regard for the general interest of the vast majority of consumers or the economic welfare of the United States. It became a veritable racket which culminated in the Grosse Smoot-Hawley tariff of abominations under Hoover. This is regarded by many economists as the root cause of the collapse of 1929 and the following years of destruction and depression.

Commerce Frozen

In 1932, Mr. Roosevelt proposed a scientific trading-down of tariff barriers, partly in defense against our Hawley-Smooth tariff as all nations had adopted similar restrictions and the commerce of the world was frozen into a honeycomb of nationalistic watertight compartments.

Mr. Hull's reciprocal trade agreements were an effort to restore some export trade by scientific economic trading. The idea was to find those areas in which tariff concessions to the other countries in return for tariff concessions to us would not greatly interefere with our standards of living for workers and farmers but would give them the outlet without which their surplus production could not move and many of them could not live.

A Delicate Business

This is a delicate technical business. Our whole history proves that it could be done in the log-rolling political methods of a congressional enactment. Congress was there persuaded to let Mr. Hull attempt this according to certain standards and within certain limits laid down by the legislature. The reults are the "reciprocal trade agreements" so far negotiated. There is no room here to discuss the subject fully or in detail. But in view of its importance in the coming session of Congress the discussion will be continued in two subsequent columns.

A Good Omen

COINCIDENT with the Jackson day dinner fund raising by the Democrats came the announcement by John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, that the debt hanging over that party had finally been almost completely wiped out.

That is a most encouraging thing and, as the New York Herald Tribune points out, it is clear indication that confidence in the party is being restored. It is a political truism, as the Herald Tribune says, that when a party's standing is low it finds it hard to raise funds, but that when its moral credit is high, its financial credit is also good. More than $600,000 was still owed by the party organization last summer; and during the last two months it has collected a million dollars, the most of which was used in paying off that debt. The organization is still functioning, however, and its upkeep expenses continue.

The liquidation of this big debt does not mean, however, as the Herald Tribune says, that the party's financial problems are solved. "Far from it," it says. "Not only does the party have to raise enough money for all the work preparatory to the presidential campaign, but it must have a large sum at its command when the last three months of the campaign approach. It has often been said that the party in power has a lead of at least $10,000,000 over the opposition, thanks to the army of office holders which it has at its disposal. Although, in theory, the power of this army of vote getters has been curtailed by the Hatch act, nobody acquainted with practical politics would for a moment deny that the Democrats have an enormous advantage over the Republicans because of their control over vast sums of public money.

"Fortunately, the Republican leaders realized a year or more ago that concerted and consistent efforts were required if money was to be raised for the support of the party throughout the nation. It is not alone a question of the presidential campaign. There are congressmen and senators to be elected, and governors, state legislators, county officials, mayors and city fathers. In order to establish a measure of coherence in the collection and disposition of funds, the Republicans organized a united fund drive which has centralized the solicitation of contributions, and which distributes funds among the federal, state and local organizations on an equitable basis.

"In attempting to raise money, the party leaders have done everything possible to obtain as many subscriptions as possible — to stress numbers as much as the size of contributions. Although large contributions have been and will, of course, continue to be, welcome, the objective is to swell the campaign chest by the largest possible number of small gifts. It is encouraging to realize that all the money to be contributed henceforth can be concentrated on productive expenditures, instead of having to be used to liquidate past obligations."

The plan of obtaining small gifts in number, which has been followed in late years by the party, is good and, if it receives the proper response, will be productive of excellent results, not only fiscally but also in stimulating a wider self-interest in the work of the organization.

Don't Forget the Birds

SPORTSMEN and the public in general are asked by E. Lee LeCompte, state game warden, to co-operate in distributing grain, which will be furnished by the Maryland State Game and Inland Fish Commission to those who will make it their business to find coveys of birds and provide feeding stations in order to save brood stock.

LeCompte points out that the birds cannot find the feed on the snow. The snow, he says, must be scraped to the ground and the feed scattered on the bare ground.

Weather reports are to the effect that bitter cold weather and heavy snows are still to be expected and unless wildlife is fed by the public the shortage of brood stock for the coming season will be very noticeable.

The district game wardens in every county of the state have been notified to purchase feed and deliver it to those persons who are interested and who will assist in this feeding program. LeCompte solicits continued interest and co-operation in this needful work.

Cumberland people, this newspaper is glad to note, have been giving this attention to the birds, but likely a number have failed to realize the need. These might help the good work along by providing food for the birds in their yards.

The Case Completed

AS the House investigation of the National Labor Relations Board gets under way after the holiday recess, with interesting and revealing disclosures being made daily by payrollers from this outfit, opposition to amendment of the act has no longer a leg to stand on.

The final blow was dealt by the three supreme court decisions, confirming the extreme powers given the board in deciding what constitutes an appropriate bargaining unit and what unions may or may not be permitted to participate in employe elections.

These decisions established beyond question that under the law as it stands the type of union—industrial, craft or independent—favored by the board majority not only has a tremendous advantage—it has a monopoly of the dues in question. Employees must accept the mandate of the board unless after certification of a union as bargaining agent the employer should challenge the order.

Of the necessity for curbing such broad discretion, the evidence taken by the special committee of the House offers convincing proof, and more is produced daily. Interdepartmental memoranda and admissions by NLRB staff members, were self-condemnatory also of interpretative and administrative methods. They were upsetting to those who had conceived the board as an impartial tribunal for adjustment of labor disputes arising from organizational and collective bargaining activities and for redress of grievances.

The decisions and the evidence, taken together, make a rather complete mosaic of administrative defects. They may be expected to have a wider influence than the curbing of the Labor board alone.

Curious

AS A NEW MEMBER of the cabinet, unusual curiosity attaches to Secretary of the Navy Edison's request that Congress give the president "emergency" powers in peace time comparable to those he now may exercise by statute only in the event of war.

These embrace authority to take over factories and ships, cancel or modify contracts, even fix prices of materials the government may want for the Navy. It is only about two weeks since Mr. Edison was commissioned, and it is perfectly obvious that his request embodies a step toward totalitarianism that must have been under consideration for some time.

No reason has yet been advanced for asking that these powers be conferred upon Mr. Roosevelt at this time. There is a careful disclaimer that the request had any bearing on the wars in Europe.

Such emergency powers with reference to the Navy were accorded President Wilson in March, 1917. Then, of course, diplomatic relations with Germany had been broken off and the nation was on the verge of war. Mr. Roosevelt in his message to Congress expressed conviction that we shall remain at peace.

It is unthinkable that Congress will confer any such power upon the chief executive. Congressional comment has properly been violently hostile to the Edison plan. Perhaps more of Mr. Edison's views will be brought out before a congressional committee before he is confirmed as a member of the Roosevelt cabinet.

Music and Emotions

IT MUST HAVE BEEN the age of innocence in music when Bach, Beethoven and Hayden were content with melodies of folk songs, the harmonies of nature and the resources of their own imaginations as the inspiration of musical masterpieces. Modern composers must produce musical creations of rivets, city noises, tropic cruises, trans-oceanic airplane flights, machinery and the clash of ideas.

There is good authority for the proposition that the enjoyment of good music is an emotional rather than an intellectual experience. That is probably true of the old classics, but unless some of this modern music, which is said to be good, is made intelligible by an explanation of what it is all about, the only likely experience is one of jarred senses with now and then a moment's release from pain.

A special article in Izvesta, official Soviet newspaper at Moscow, charges the United States with "imperialism against small weak countries" in Latin America. You'd think that by now Stalin's boys would have learned that small weak countries aren't weak.

Uncle Bub says he knows a fellow who hates Russian Communists so much that this year he is wearing blue flannels.

It now appears well established that the Russian bear is not of the polar species.

The Brave Old Lady

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Mary went today to visit an old lady, friend of a friend, who was being taken away to the county hospital—because she was ill and had no family and could no longer live by herself.

Marshall Maslin

A brave old lady who lived all by herself in a little house behind another home and would accept no public pension for her old age and earned her own way by sewing.

But she had had a "stroke" and some one had called a doctor and the doctor had reported her condition to the authorities and she was going to the public hospital for observation and treatment, and perhaps to stay there until she died.

Poor thing! you say in impulsive pity? Yes, she is poor, but not pitiable, not ever to be pitied. . . . Because Mary was there when a public nurse came to examine her and to ask questions and to fill in those long, long blanks that must be covered with words before any official action can be taken to admit a sick old lady to the hospital. (I'm not sneering at those statistical details, I'm merely mentioning them.)

Mary wanted to leave when the nurse came but she had to stay in the room. She had thought she might embarrass the old lady but it was no embarrassment at all. . . . When you're old, as she is, and wise, as she is, you have passed beyond such small trivalities. . . . She was cheerful and didn't mind answering questions. Not a bit of it. No, she had no husband or sister or brother. Yes, she had a son but she had no idea where he wandered on the earth. (She gave that information with no self-pity.) And finally Mary heard the nurse asking for the name of her father's father and what was the maiden name of her mother. And when the nurse asked those questions the old lady chuckled gently and whispered, almost to herself, "Poor things!" (They'd been dead so long, long ago, in the far country in which their daughter had been born, that it amused the old lady to be telling a brisk young American nurse the maiden name of her mother.)

So the brave old lady was taken away to the county hospital. . . . She could not take her neighbor's cat—the cat she had been feeding while the neighbor was away—and she left instructions that her front door be left open so the cat could come in at night. It did not matter, she said. Nothing in the little house was worth stealing; nothing, it seemed was more valuable than the cat's warmth at night. . . . The petty things of the earth mattered no more, if they ever did at all, to the brave and humorous old lady.

Mary told me about the old lady as we sat this evening at dinner, and all evening long the thought of her has been alive in my heart. And, somehow, I think I'll never be forgetting her.

Our Heritage Is Unequalled

By EDWIN C. HILL

Thomas E. Dewey's get-away speech, in which he invoked a new and fervid belief in the high destiny of America, was good psychological medicine regardless of what one may think of Mr. Dewey's candidacy. It also helped to warm up an interesting year-end discussion and appraisal of assets and liabilities, mainly directed to Mr. Dewey's challenge of defeatism in the national outlook.

Edwin C. Hill

Rounding up the exchanges, a few magazines and a timely book or two, in which the editorial railbirds clock the 1939 run-around, we noted several drifts or attitudes pertinent to Mr. Dewey's attention-getter. One is that the unhappy state of most of the rest of the world has shocked us into a realization that we have something worth believing in, over here. Another observation is that these chastening years seem to have made us more toughminded than we used to be.

Not Banished by Words

We know that the spectres of poverty, insecurity, civil strife and a disordered economy aren't banished by any noble pipe-organ utterance or by merely verbal genuflections to the beautitudes and the eternal verities. Mr. Dewey found a respectful and attentive national audience because he has demonstrated his ability to translate moral fervor into definite social gains—or knock-out victories, to put it differently. We feel that if someone should say "for instance?" he would have something convincing to say about why, when and how.

Most interesting, it seemed to me, was the evidence of unshaken national faith, after years of buffeting, disclosed by Dewey's challenge and the subsequent discussion, and that this faith is more informed, more rational and quite possibly cleansed and hardened by a decade of disillusionment. In my view, Mr. Dewey could have brought forward no more important question than the degree of our belief in what we are presumed to believe in America, and who does, or doesn't do the believing.

Current Issue Stated

I believe it was Heraclitis who offered as a method of polemics the statement of a possibly absurd extreme as the beginning of clarification. A hard-bitten, cynical friend states for me the current issue of national faith.

"We in America," he says, "are supposed to believe in democracy, labor, education, and religion, taking a few of cultural and institutional commitments at random. What happens? Democracy doesn't really believe in democracy. We are suckers for foreign titles and decorations. Any adenoidal princeling from overseas can overwhelm us with a sense of our own social inferiority. We don't want equality; we want privilege. The average millionaire, who could buy a thousand fight tickets, will cadge one from his friend, the sporting editor, if he can—just to be one up on the boys at the club. That's human.

Human Beliefs

"Labor doesn't believe in labor. It believes in getting a patch of ground or a business or a white collar cinch and getting out of labor. That's human, too. Religion doesn't believe in religion, if we believe the preachers who reproach us for rendering only occasional lip service to its saving obligations. Law doesn't believe in law. It believes in rigging things for its side and trimming the Constitution to its Procrustean bed. Education doesn't believe in education. In secondary schools it believes in processing students through the regents' examinations and, in colleges, in a football team good enough to pay the mortgage on the stadium. I could go through a long list of things we are supposed to believe in and ought to believe in, but don't."

Is Helpful

I am not prepared to defend my friend's gloomy analysis. But I think it is helpful in breaking down Mr. Dewey's general statement of faith into a few of its more important components. I believe we have today a heritage more worth believing in than that of any other people. I believe that we have been recreant in that belief. I hope that in the national forum, Mr. Dewey's thesis will be winnowed down into minutely specified detail and that thereby we will find the new fervor of belief which Mr. Dewey extolls.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THE SHEPHERD MAKES HIS USUAL REPORT

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Like nearly everyobdy throughout the country, Washington officialdom has been delighted by the strong showing that the Finns started off with against Russia.

Chas. P. Stewart

However, professional military men have not had any idea, from the beginning, that the little republic's plucky, competent soldiery could, for very long, fight successfully against the enormous numerical odds in the Soviets' favor. With an alignment which permits the Muscovites to sacrifice 60 men for each lone Finnish casualty, experts have agreed, "Oh, what's the use in gambling on Finland?" The Finns' morale has been recognized as out of all proportion to the Russians'. Nevertheless, it takes a lot of morale to offset 60-to-1 in numbers.

Even supposing that the Finlanders get considerable help from sympathetic outsiders, the consensus of professional opinion has been that the small body of northern scrappers are outclassed hopelessly. The field of combat is frightfully unhandy for most pro-Finnish outsiders to get into. A modicum of Swedish and Norwegian manpower is available. Its quality is superlative, but, in quantity, it's only a drop in the bucket.

Guns versus Spears

Money, credit, guns, ammunition, hospitalization and miscellaneous supplies are to be had by the Finns from other democratic countries, but they're required in a tremendous quantity to offset a 60-to-1 disproportion numercially.

To be sure, War Secretary Harry Woodring made a cabinet report recently in the course of which he remarked that a 1,000-man regiment, with modern weapons undoubtedly could wipe out a 1,000,000-man army of naked savages, armed with spears only.

Secretary Woodring wasn't discussing the Russo-Finnish situation. He was speaking only generally, in favor of an up-to-date equipment for Uncle Samuel. He was right, most likely.

But the Russians aren't actually naked savages, with nothing but spears to fight with. Man for man, it's conceded that they're inferior to the Finns—their leadership is inferior, anyway. And perhaps their shooting irons and planes and explosives aren't on a par with the Finnish standard. But they're not mere savages and they have better than spears to fight with. Odds of 10-to-1 might be a fair comparison—but not 60-to-1. At least our best military authorities don't think so.

Washington, Jan. 10—I d one person in ten of us know is meant by "reciprocal agreements under the uncond most favored nation clause." They are what the lawyers call "words of art." But few of us are artists in such words. Yet, over these words will wage one of the greatest battles in the coming Congress. The issues are so technical that I shrink from the task of trying to make them plain.

Tariffs have been the cu American politics. When we colonies of England, she w let us manufacture so much a She wanted her own factories that. We were to produce ra terials.

Created Industry

It was one of the causes Revolution. Our lack of any trial capacity handicapped that fight. When we won it, ander Hamilton properly in that for our own defense an anced prosperity we must e age an American manufactu dustry. He proposed a tar high that low cost production England could not prevent cr of our own "infant industries was probably right at the The whole country, North South, fell for it. It did both an American manufac and shipping industry.

But the South and West not industrial areas. They we ricultural and their prosperit pended on export trade. Behin tariff walls they had to pay for the products of America dustry than they would have t for European industrial pro But no tariff, no matter how can protect any agricultural s crop. Farmers bought it at a h protected price level. They s at the much lower price leve

The South soon saw that tariff was simply a tax la Southern agriculture to protect England industry. That, and slavery, was the economic ca the Civil war.

The tariff has cursed po administrations ever since. Th the device of trading in Co between one industrial mi pressure group and another, "log-rolling", tariffs have been to boost prices and profits wi regard for the general interest o vast majority of consumers o economic welfare of the U States. It became a veritable r which culminated in the Grou Smoot-Hawley tariff of abo tions under Hoover. This is re ed by many economists as the cause of the collapse of 1929 the following years of destru and depression.

Commerce Frozen

In 1932, Mr. Roosevelt pro a scientific trading-down of tariff barriers, partly in de against our Hawley-Smooth t all nations had adopted simila strictions and the commerce o world was frozen into a honeyc of nationalistic watertight compartments.

Mr. Hull's reciprocal trade a ments were an effort to restore export trade by scientific econ trading. The idea was to find areas in which tariff conces to the other countries in return tariff concessions to us would greatly interefere with our st ards of living for workers and f ers but would give them the ou without which their surplus pro tion could not move and man them could not live.

A Delicate Business

This is a delicate technical iness. Our whole history proves it could be done in the log-ro political methods of a congressi enactment. Congress was there persuaded to let Mr. Hull att this according to certain stand and within certain limits laid d by the legislature. The reults are "reciprocal trade agreements" far negotiated. There is no r here to discuss the subject fu or in detail. But in view of its portance in the coming session Congress the discussion will be c tinued in two subsequent colu —Distributed by United Fea Syndicate, Inc.

Brushing Away Your Hair Ills

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN THE hair thins at the temples, there's a chance that this condition is caused by slapping the brush there, being too violent, the bristles dragging out the soft new downy hair that is forming. An idea prevails that the proper way to groom the topcrest is to brush from the crown, forward, at the sides and back, as the hair falls naturally. Hair shafts emerge from the scalp on a slant. The hair of the newborn baby falls toward forehead and nape line; that's the way the little fuzzers are planted by Mama Nature.

Brushing stimulates the blood streams in the scalp upon which the glorious crown lives and thrives and has its being, so dig in with the bristles. To give the shafts shine and shimmer, treat a tress at a time, holding it away from the head, using a rolling motion of the brush, so each hair is curried. After the brushing give yourself a three-minute scalp friction. The flesh will glow and be happy.

Some women fear that brushing will cause the finger wave to wilt; often it makes the pattern clearer, wider, more fluid.

Have a high-grade brush, one with bristles that don't bend. A narrow brush isn't likely to tangle the hair as will a wider one. Select one with bristles set in groups; it is easier to keep clean.

Sallow complexions are usually caused by a digestive machine that is not working properly. Women who suffer from constipation often have dingy faces.

The one who suffers from this beauty ailment will find her skin improving if she will drink unsweetened lemonade and buttermilk. Pastries should be cut down to the limit, also fats, which may make her liverish.

Local treatment consists of the free use of a massage cream with plenty of friction, followed by applications of a bleach made by combining equal parts of peroxide and strained lemon juice.

WIFE PRESERVERS

For your very fine china; felt pads between dishes are helpful in protecting the glaze from scratching.

A Real Mystery

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—Police recovered a stolen automobile but now they're more perplexed than ever.

The car, said the officers, was found in the middle of a wired-in field, the fence apparently had not been disturbed and the car apparently had left no tracks.

Smelling Salts Are Good for Restoring Color to Fabrics

College Park, Jan. 10—When perspiration changes the color of your dress, try smelling salts to restore the color, says Helen Shelby, clothing specialist for the extension service of the University of Maryland.

She points out that if you will hold the stain over a bottle of ammonia, the alkaline fumes may bring back the color affected by acid in perspiration.

Perspiration causes one of the most common and troublesome stains on clothing. Though it washes very easily with soap and water, it often ruins the garment by changing the color. Dry cleaning may help but not wholly remove the stain or restore the color of the garment.

On the other hand, Miss Shelby says that old perspiration stains may become alkaline by decomposition and need an acid treatment to restore the color. With such a condition as this try sponging with diluted lemon juice followed by water. On white material old perspiration stains often bleach out easily with peroxide of hydrogen to which a few drops of ammonia have been added. Lay the stain over a bowl of steaming water and apply the solution with a medicine dropper. Follow this with a thorough rinsing.

Tracing Child's Development Is Interesting

Most Children Can Walk by Time They Are 18 Months Old

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

The child learns to walk alone between the ages of eleven and eighteen months. But he arrives at this achievement gradually. He usually develops in the following order: First he crawls with his abdomen dragging. He then creeps, with the abdomen lifted clear and some teamwork of the arms and legs. Next he pulls himself to a standing position by taking hold of furniture or other objects, and finally makes stepping movements which culminate in walking.

Here are more detailed stages in these developments (for the average child).

Side to side movement of the head, two to three weeks of age, Raises self by the arms, clearing chest, two to four months. Sits with support, three to five months. Sits alone momentarily, five to six months. Rolls from back to stomach, six to seven months. Sits alone steadily, seven to nine months. Creeps, nine to eleven months. Walks when led, 10 to 11 months. Pulls self up to stand by furniture, ten to 11 months. Stands alone twelve to fifteen months. Walks alone, twelve to eighteen months.

Trips Easily At First

In the early walking stages the baby moves almost as if on stilts, easily tripping over small obstacles. But within the next few years he will learn to run, jump, climb, hop, walk a narrow rail or box, jump rope and so on. It is important during this period for the child to have the opportunity to develop control over his muscles by using them in a wide variety of ways, manipulating many materials.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

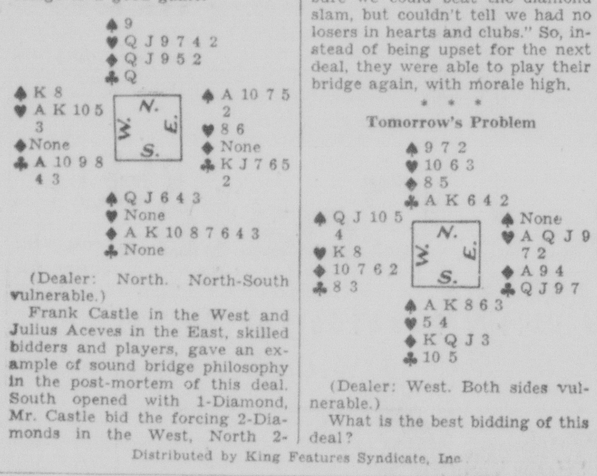
"The Authority on Authorities"

NOBODY INFALLIBLE

BIDDING tactics never can be developed to such a precise point that you can be sure fire on freak hands. Sometimes the arrangement of the unseen cards is so queer that nothing but very bad bidding could possibly put you in the most profitable contract. When that occurs, and you find you have taken a licking on a deal which might have produced a good score, don't lose confidence in your methods and logic. Remember they are devised with the idea that they will work well the greatest possible percentage of time, but that occasionally they must miss. That is one reason why bridge is a good game.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

Frank Castle in the West and Julius Aceves in the East, skilled bidders and players, gave an example of sound bridge philosophy in the post-mortem of this deal. South opened with 1-Diamond, Mr. Castle bid the forcing 2-Diamonds in the West, North 2-Hearts and Mr. Aceves in the East 2-Spades. Then it went South 3-Diamonds, West 4-Clubs, North 4-Diamonds, East 5-Clubs, South 5-Diamonds, West 6-Clubs and this passed around to South, who then called 6-Diamonds, which Mr. Castle doubled.

The contract was, of course, a cinch, by means of a cross-ruff, only one trick in spades being lost. But at the end of the hand everybody realized 7-Clubs could have been just as easy for East and West.

"Neither of us could know that," said Mr. Castle. "My partner, hearing my strong bidding and having an ace himself, must feel sure we could beat the diamond slam, but couldn't tell we had no losers in hearts and clubs." So, instead of being upset for the next deal, they were able to play their bridge again, with morale high.

Mrs. R. Finley Thompson Is Indorsed For State Office by D.A.R. Chapter

Mrs. R. Finley Thompson was indorsed unanimously by Cresap Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution for the position of State Registrar at a meeting of the chapter yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joseph Williams, 220 Schley street. Mrs. G. Wilbur Seymour, regent, presided.

The following were elected delegates to the State Conference to be held March 13 and 14 in Baltimore: Mrs. R. Finley Thompson, Mrs. Joseph Williams and Miss Mary Brengle. Alternates elected are: Mrs. Walter L. Pierce, Mrs. Ralph Luman and Mrs. Albert A. Doub, Sr.

The chairman of the Ways and Means committee, Mrs. E. R. Kellough, announced that a card party would be given February 2 at a place that is as yet undecided.

A very enlightening talk on "The American Youth Congress" was given by the National Defense chairman of the chapter, Miss Pearl A. Eader.

Delegate Is Chosen

At a meeting of the Merici Veteran unit of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade last night at the home of Joseph J. Defibaugh, 202 Glenn street, Miss Helen McKenzie was elected delegate to the Cumberland Inter-Veteran Unit Council to succeed Miss Mary Frances Mosser, who has taken a position at Chapel Hill, N. C.

William Rohr spoke on "India and Its Missions", and Miss Helen McKenzie on "The Negro American, the Mission of the Month." Announcement of the topic of the annual archdiocesan oratorical contest, "Personal Views on Vocations to the Priesthood, Brotherhood, and Sisterhood", was made and plans for local participation were formed.

On January 18 and 25, the unit will observe the Church Unity Octave, which is a time of special prayer for the union of all Christians with the see of Peter.

Marriage Is Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Nellie Noel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Russell Noel, of Rawlings, and Hayden Lester Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alby Phillips, of Rawlings, which took place January 5 at the First Methodist church, Bedford street. The pastor, the Rev. George E. Baughman, conducted the ceremony.

Miss Nora Louise Noel, sister of the bride; Miss Bette Noel, first cousin of the bride, Granville Shumaker and C. Harold Armstrong were the attendants.

Entertains Club

Miss Dorothy Shires entertained the members of her bridge club last night at her home in Park Heights, LaVale.

Howe Will Address Club

John Howe, superintendent of shops of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in Cumberland, will be the principal speaker at a covered dish supper to be given at 6 o'clock Friday evening at the Baltimore and Ohio Y. M. C. A. by the Women's division of the Baltimore and Ohio Co-operative Traffic Club. The losing team of the recent membership drive will be host to the winning teams at this time.

Joseph K. Trenton will give several horn selections and will be accompanied on the piano by Miss Mary Moore. A humorous sketch will be given by Miss Kathleen Catlett.

Howe will speak on "Our Railroad and Its Problems."

Celebrated Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. John Abbott, of Bowling Green, entertained with a skating party Tuesday evening at the State armory, South Centre street, followed by refreshments at the Queen City hotel, in honor of their daughter, Mildred, who celebrated her seventeenth birthday.

Guests included Miss Alberta Canfield, Miss Suzan Jones Phillips, Earle Edmunds, Jack Edmunds, Wilbur Theis, Robert Retalic, Harold Smith, Kenneth Kisamore and Fritz Wheeler.

Club Plans Play

At a meeting of the Bowling Green 4-H Girls' Club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Jean Heavener, McMullen highway, plans were completed for a Valentine party to be held Tuesday, January 13, at the home of Miss Suzan Jones, Bowling Green.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. E. O. Edmunds, Mrs. Edward Heavener, Miss Suzan Jones, Miss Karmyn Reinke, Miss Camilla Athey, Miss Betty Blank, Miss Juanita Blank, Miss Louise Jones, Miss Joan Hyde, Miss Alberta Canfield, Miss Mildred Abbott and Miss Rose Marie Grabenstein.

Church Class Meets

The Amoma class of the First Baptist church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Taylor Tuesday evening. Mrs. Walter Alexander and Mrs. J. E. Tritt were assistant hostesses. The devotional was in charge of Mrs. Harper White. Others taking part were Mrs. Victor Athey, Mrs. Virgil Rice, Mrs. Thelma Athey.

Those present were:

Mesdames Fred Driscoll, Oda Flora, Elroy Fox, Earl Gauntz, Wm. Golden, Earl Gross, Cecil Green, Gertrude Herpich, Roy Green, Lester Little, Stanly Morris, Edgar Mathews, Leona Pullin, John Resley, E. E. Sullivan, Arnald Turner, A. M. Weaver and A. F. Wilson; Lorena Thompson, Miss Mary Moxley, Miss Grace Cassin, Carl Herpick, Stanley Moris and Wayne Herpick.

The February meeting will be a covered dish supper at the church at 6 p. m.

Brushing Away Your Hair Ills

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN THE hair thins at the temples, there's a chance that this condition is caused by slapping the brush there, being too violent, the bristles dragging out the soft new downy hair that is forming. An idea prevails that the proper way to groom the topcrest is to brush from the crown, forward, at the sides and back, as the hair falls naturally. Hair shafts emerge from the scalp on a slant. The hair of the newborn baby falls toward forehead and nape line; that's the way the little fuzzers are planted by Mama Nature.

Brushing stimulates the blood streams in the scalp upon which the glorious crown lives and thrives and has its being, so dig in with the bristles. To give the shafts shine and shimmer, treat a tress at a time, holding it away from the head, using a rolling motion of the brush, so each hair is curried. After the brushing give yourself a three-minute scalp friction. The flesh will glow and be happy.

Some women fear that brushing will cause the finger wave to wilt; often it makes the pattern clearer, wider, more fluid.

Have a high-grade brush, one with bristles that don't bend. A narrow brush isn't likely to tangle the hair as will a wider one. Select one with bristles set in groups; it is easier to keep clean.

Sallow complexions are usually caused by a digestive machine that is not working properly. Women who suffer from constipation often have dingy faces.

The one who suffers from this beauty ailment will find her skin improving if she will drink unsweetened lemonade and buttermilk. Pastries should be cut down to the limit, also fats, which may make her liverish.

Local treatment consists of the free use of a massage cream with plenty of friction, followed by applications of a bleach made by combining equal parts of peroxide and strained lemon juice.

SIGRID GURIE . . . her glorious crown thrives on frequent brushing.

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

The child learns to walk alone between the ages of eleven and eighteen months. But he arrives at this achievement gradually. He usually develops in the following order: First he crawls with his abdomen dragging. He then creeps, with the abdomen lifted clear and some teamwork of the arms and legs. Next he pulls himself to a standing position by taking hold of furniture or other objects, and finally makes stepping movements which culminate in walking.

Here are more detailed stages in these developments (for the average child).

Side to side movement of the head, two to three weeks of age. Raises self by the arms, clearing chest, two to four months. Sits with support, three to five months. Sits alone momentarily, five to six months. Rolls from back to stomach, six to seven months. Sits alone steadily, seven to nine months. Creeps, nine to eleven months. Walks when led, 10 to 11 months. Pulls self up to stand by furniture, ten to 11 months. Stands alone twelve to fifteen months. Walks alone, twelve to eighteen months.

Trips Easily At First

In the early walking stages the baby moves almost as if on stilts, easily tripping over small obstacles. But within the next few years he will learn to run, jump, climb, hop, walk a narrow rail or box, jump rope and so on. It is important during this period for the child to have the opportunity to develop control over his muscles by using them in a wide variety of ways, manipulating many materials.

The young child can develop only as he can make the larger movements earlier and easier than the small ones. Therefore, modern playground equipment is made up of large

A Real Mystery

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—Police recovered a stolen automobile but now they're more perplexed than ever.

The car, said the officers, was found in the middle of a wired-in field, the fence apparently had not been disturbed and the car apparently had left no tracks.

Smelling Salts Are Good for Restoring Color to Fabrics

College Park, Jan. 10—When perspiration changes the color of your dress, try smelling salts to restore the color, says Helen Shelby, clothing specialist for the extension service of the University of Maryland.

She points out that if you will hold the stain over a bottle of ammonia, the alkaline fumes may bring back the color affected by acid in perspiration.

Perspiration causes one of the most common and troublesome stains on clothing. Though it washes very easily with soap and water, it often ruins the garment by changing the color. Dry cleaning may help but not wholly remove the stain or restore the color of the garment.

On the other hand, Miss Shelby says that old perspiration stains may become alkaline by decomposition and need an acid treatment to restore the color. With such a condition as this try sponging with diluted lemon juice followed by water. On white material old perspiration stains often bleach out easily with peroxide of hydrogen to which a few drops of ammonia have been added. Lay the stain over a bowl of steaming water and apply the solution with a medicine dropper. Follow this with a thorough rinsing.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

By Marie Blizard

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

FABIENNE heard the telephone ring and came out of a deep, peaceful sleep to hear Prunella's muffled voice in the other room.

She called: "Prunella! I'm awake and I'm starving!"

Prunella, with a broad smile on her face, opened the bedroom door. "Mah goodness, you still hungry, chile? After all that food you et las' night? I'll have you brekfuss in a minute."

"Run the tub first, Prunella."

"You ain't gonna git up, Miz Fabienne? Miz Ellen sez you is to stay abed this mawnin'. She had to go to the settlemen' house fo' a little while, but she's comin' home any minute."

"I can't stay in bed. I've got things to do. Get the porter and have him bring my trunk up here."

"You goin' away?" Prunella asked, her smile disappearing into the cloud of her face.

Fabienne nodded. "Go along, Prunella. Bath first, trunk and then breakfast."

"All mawnin' the telephome's bin ringin' and people askin' for you, Miz Fabienne."

"I don't want to talk to anyone, Prunella."

"Doctor Mallory, he say you is to call him when you wakes up."

Fabienne's heart turned over with a bitter-sweet pain.

"He sez you kin git him at his office up to ha'pas' ten. He's operatin' at St. Joseph's hospital at 'leben o'clock. You best hurry, honey. It's nigh onto ten o'clock now."

"Prunella! Will you please do as I ask?"

"Yes, ma'am," she said sadly.

Fabienne bathed hastily, gulped her breakfast and began packing the trunk the porter brought into the living room, trying not to think, not to remember Bill's voice saying, "You see, it's this way, Fab—I'm in love with you."

She should have known it long ago, prevented it's ever happening."

It was not too late now, she thought, putting sweaters in a drawer in her trunk. She'd go away and Bill would soon forget her and turn back to Ellen.

Her throat was beginning to ache with the pressure of the pain in her heart. It would be better for her to have that pain than for Ellen, who was the best friend she ever had, the finest person she had ever known.

She heard a bell ringing again. "Prunella, if that's the doctor, tell him I'm still asleep. I don't want to talk to him."

"That ain't no telephone. That's the doorbell."

Fabienne looked about her wildly, seeking escape. If that was Bill—

She couldn't see him again!

It was Ellen. Ellen, dumb with surprise when she saw Fabienne kneeling before the trunk with her arms filled with clothes.

"I'm all well this morning, darling," Fabienne said brightly. "Will you ever forgive me for what I've done to you?"

"I thought we'd got that all settled last night. What are you doing, Fab? Where are you going?"

"Paris."

"Paris?" Ellen repeated, sitting down suddenly.

"Um hum." She put shoes in a drawer with her sweaters. "It ought to be easy to get passage for tomorrow. The boats aren't crowded at this time of year."

"But, Fab—"

"Will you hand me that silk negligee, darling? I can roll some bottles up in it."

"Fab, what are you going to Paris for?"

Prunella opened the bedroom door. "Mah goodness, you still hungry, chile?"

Fabienne sat back on her heels. "A change, Ellen. Don't you think I need one? I've done enough harm around here."

"You haven't done any harm at all! Chris explained everything. You couldn't have done anything else."

"Look what Bill had to do."

"That's all right with Bill, and what anybody else thinks of it makes no difference. He's going away soon, anyway. And even if he were not, he's big enough to get away with it."

"You think a lot of Bill, don't you, Ellen?"

"Of course."

Fabienne smiled at her. "He thinks lot of you, too, Ellen. Don't ever forget that."

Ellen gave her a perplexed glance. She said, "Will you be gone long?"

"Some time."

"But you'll be coming back to . . . to me and to the settlement house?"

Fabienne shook her head and smiled at her brightly, with a hard smile. "No, Ellen, no more charity work for me. I'm fed up with being a humanitarian. There's nothing in it. Look where it landed me."

After a long minute, "Ellen said, "I don't believe you, Fab. I know you too well."

"This is the real me you're seeing now. The other was a girl playing a game. Well, the game's finished, Ellen. You and I are of a different caliber. I'm a butterfly."

"That's not true!"

"Oh, yes it is," Fabienne said, tossing her head. "You'll soon find out."

"What do you mean? This isn't like you, darling."

"But it is! The old Fabienne! I'm going to Paris, see mother and lots of my old friends, have a whirl and buy a trousseau and come back—"

"A trousseau?" Ellen's eyes lighted up with pleasure and she got up and went to sit beside Fabienne on the floor.

Fabienne nodded and finished, "And come back and marry Nicky."

The light went out of Ellen's eyes. She was absolutely still as if she were cast in marble.

"Nicky hasn't proposed to me for a long time, but he's always wanted to marry me," Fabienne said gaily, and laughed a little uncertainly.

Ellen got up, very slowly. In a toneless voice, she said, "I see."

"I haven't told him yet. I'm going to ring him in a little while and tell him. He'll still make a respectable woman of me. Don't you think so?"

Ellen did not turn from the window where she was looking out, seeing nothing. "Of course he will, Fab. Nicky'd never, never let you down." Her voice caught in her throat.

Fabienne was hanging a dress on her trunk rack, while Ellen was speaking. She arranged its folds and then, quite suddenly, her eyes turned to Ellen's back as shocked realization spread over her face. She got up hurriedly and went to the window, turning Ellen to face her. "Ellen, you and Nicky are in love with each other?" Ellen dropped her eyes. "You are! Why was I so blind! It was because of YOU that Nicky went to work! You old beau-snatcher! Where are my coat and hat?"

Ellen ran after her, "Please, Fabienne. Let me explain."

"Explain!" Fabienne cried joyoutly. "I haven't got any time for explanations. I've got a date with a dream! Would you mind unpacking that trunk? No! I'll be taking it to Colorado!" She kissed Ellen hurriedly, gave her a great hug and was gone.

She was breathless when she got to St. Joseph's hospital and saw that it was six minutes to eleven.

A nurse at the desk asked her if she wished to see someone.

Fabienne nodded. "Yes. But I can wait. I've been waiting a long time. I can wait a little longer. Do you know when Dr. Mallory will be down?"

"About an hour."

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

By Marie Blizard

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

FABIENNE heard the telephone ring and came out of a deep, peaceful sleep to hear Prunella's muffled voice in the other room.

She called: "Prunella! I'm awake and I'm starving!"

Prunella, with a broad smile on her face, opened the bedroom door. "Mah goodness, you still hungry, chile? After all that food you et las' night? I'll have you brekfuss in a minute."

"Run the tub first, Prunella."

"You ain't gonna git up, Miz Fabienne? Miz Ellen sez you is to stay abed this mawnin'. She had to go to the settlemen' house fo' a little while, but she's comin' home any minute."

"I can't stay in bed. I've got things to do. Get the porter and have him bring my trunk up here."

"You goin' away?" Prunella asked, her smile disappearing into the cloud of her face.

Fabienne nodded. "Go along, Prunella. Bath first, trunk and then breakfast."

"All mawnin' the telephome's bin ringin' and people askin' for you, Miz Fabienne."

"I don't want to talk to anyone, Prunella."

"Doctor Mallory, he say you is to call him when you wakes up."

Fabienne's heart turned over with a bitter-sweet pain.

"He sez you kin git him at his office up to ha'pas' ten. He's operatin' at St. Joseph's hospital at 'leben o'clock. You best hurry, honey. It's nigh onto ten o'clock now."

"Prunella! Will you please do as I ask?"

"Yes, ma'am," she said sadly.

Fabienne bathed hastily, gulped her breakfast and began packing the trunk the porter brought into the living room, trying not to think, not to remember Bill's voice saying, "You see, it's this way, Fab—I'm in love with you."

She should have known it long ago, prevented it's ever happening."

It was not too late now, she thought, putting sweaters in a drawer in her trunk. She'd go away and Bill would soon forget her and turn back to Ellen.

Her throat was beginning to ache with the pressure of the pain in her heart. It would be better for her to have that pain than for Ellen, who was the best friend she ever had, the finest person she had ever known.

She heard a bell ringing again. "Prunella, if that's the doctor, tell him I'm still asleep. I don't want to talk to him."

"That ain't no telephone. That's the doorbell."

Fabienne looked about her wildly, seeking escape. If that was Bill—

She couldn't see him again!

It was Ellen. Ellen, dumb with surprise when she saw Fabienne kneeling before the trunk with her arms filled with clothes.

"I'm all well this morning, darling," Fabienne said brightly. "Will you ever forgive me for what I've done to you?"

"I thought we'd got that all settled last night. What are you doing, Fab? Where are you going?"

"Paris."

"Paris?" Ellen repeated, sitting down suddenly.

"Um hum." She put shoes in a drawer with her sweaters. "It ought to be easy to get passage for tomorrow. The boats aren't crowded at this time of year."

"But, Fab—"

"Will you hand me that silk negligee, darling? I can roll some bottles up in it."

"Fab, what are you going to Paris for?"

Prunella opened the bedroom door. "Mah goodness, you still hungry, chile?"

Fabienne sat back on her heels. "A change, Ellen. Don't you think I need one? I've done enough harm around here."

"You haven't done any harm at all! Chris explained everything. You couldn't have done anything else."

"Look what Bill had to do."

"That's all right with Bill, and what anybody else thinks of it makes no difference. He's going away soon, anyway. And even if he were not, he's big enough to get away with it."

"You think a lot of Bill, don't you, Ellen?"

"Of course."

Fabienne smiled at her. "He thinks lot of you, too, Ellen. Don't ever forget that."

Ellen gave her a perplexed glance. She said, "Will you be gone long?"

"Some time."

"But you'll be coming back to . . . to me and to the settlement house?"

Fabienne shook her head and smiled at her brightly, with a hard smile. "No, Ellen, no more charity work for me. I'm fed up with being a humanitarian. There's nothing in it. Look where it landed me."

After a long minute, "Ellen said, "I don't believe you, Fab. I know you too well."

"This is the real me you're seeing now. The other was a girl playing a game. Well, the game's finished, Ellen. You and I are of a different caliber. I'm a butterfly."

"That's not true!"

"Oh, yes it is," Fabienne said, tossing her head. "You'll soon find out."

"What do you mean? This isn't like you, darling."

"But it is! The old Fabienne! I'm going to Paris, see mother and lots of my old friends, have a whirl and buy a trousseau and come back—"

"A trousseau?" Ellen's eyes lighted up with pleasure and she got up and went to sit beside Fabienne on the floor.

Fabienne nodded and finished, "And come back and marry Nicky."

The light went out of Ellen's eyes. She was absolutely still as if she were cast in marble.

"Nicky hasn't proposed to me for a long time, but he's always wanted to marry me," Fabienne said gaily, and laughed a little uncertainly.

Ellen got up, very slowly. In a toneless voice, she said, "I see."

"I haven't told him yet. I'm going to ring him in a little while and tell him. He'll still make a respectable woman of me. Don't you think so?"

Ellen did not turn from the window where she was looking out, seeing nothing. "Of course he will, Fab. Nicky'd never, never let you down." Her voice caught in her throat.

Fabienne was hanging a dress on her trunk rack, while Ellen was speaking. She arranged its folds and then, quite suddenly, her eyes turned to Ellen's back as shocked realization spread over her face. She got up hurriedly and went to the window, turning Ellen to face her. "Ellen, you and Nicky are in love with each other?" Ellen dropped her eyes. "You are! Why was I so blind! It was because of YOU that Nicky went to work! You old beau-snatcher! Where are my coat and hat?"

Ellen ran after her, "Please, Fabienne. Let me explain."

"Explain!" Fabienne cried joyoutly. "I haven't got any time for explanations. I've got a date with a dream! Would you mind unpacking that trunk? No! I'll be taking it to Colorado!" She kissed Ellen hurriedly, gave her a great hug and was gone.

She was breathless when she got to St. Joseph's hospital and saw that it was six minutes to eleven.

A nurse at the desk asked her if she wished to see someone.

Fabienne nodded. "Yes. But I can wait. I've been waiting a long time. I can wait a little longer. Do you know when Dr. Mallory will be down?"

Stocks Register Fractional Gains After Liquidation Early in Day

Short Covering Apparently Principal Reason for Advances

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—A stock market tired of small liquidation turned around in late trading today and enabled leaders to erase early losses and even push ahead for fractional gains in many cases.

The reversal came, brokers said not on account of any particularly favorable new items, but because offerings failed to appear at near the bid prices and shorts, who had counted on further decline, began to cover.

Transfers totalled only 599,250 shares against 671,350 yesterday. The Associated Press average of sixty stocks added .1 of a point at 51.2.

Market gainers included Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Studebaker, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of New Jersey, American Smelting, Chesapeake & Ohio, Westinghouse Electric, du Pont and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Associated Gas & Electric Co. bonds dropped sharply in the Curb following news the S.E.C. had refused the company permission to pay dividends on its capital stock. The company later filed for reorganization under Chapter 10 of the bankruptcy law in the Utica, N. Y., Federal Court.

Others lower included Niles-Bement-Pond and Electric Bond & Share. Turnover of 135,000 shares compared with 148,000 Tuesday.

Attorney Says Racing Service Is Operated In Indianapolis

Los Angeles, Jan. 10 (AP)—Samuel Klaus, special assistant to William J. Campbell, United States Attorney in Chicago, declared in an affidavit Tuesday that a nation-wide wire service is being operated from Indianapolis to distribute horse race results.

A number of new horse racing "scratch sheets" have been started in various cities, he charged, since M. L. Annenberg agreed recently to discontinue his racing wire service.

"The information in the possession of the United States Attorney indicates that the new scratch sheets are merely a blind and a sham that are not even intended in any substantial way to compete with existing scratch sheets but are only intended as a device to cover up the perpetuation and continuance of the wire service," his affidavit said.

The Indianapolis wire service is operated by much of the personnel of the Annenberg Service, Klaus declared.

Committee To Meet

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP)—The first meeting of a committee named to recommend rules and regulations governing the administration of state funds allocated ta state-aided hospuitals will be held Jan. 18.

J. Milton Patterson, director of the State Department of Public Welfare at whose office the meeting will be held, said the committee would select a chairman and outline its work at the first meeting.

Members of the commission are Dr. H. Winifred Smith, Dr. A. J. Lomas, Miss A. R. Rosenthal and Dr. Walter D. Wise of Baltimore; Harvey H. Weiss of Cumberland; Grady J. Dayton, Salisbury, and J. W. Bird, Sandy Spring.

The majority of the ten-gallon hats bought by tourists in the west as cowboy equipment, are made in Philadelphia, Pa.

Short Covering Apparently Principal Reason for Advances

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—A stock market tired of small liquidation turned around in late trading today and enabled leaders to erase early losses and even push ahead for fractional gains in many cases.

The reversal came, brokers said, not on account of any particularly favorable new items, but because offerings failed to appear at near the bid prices and shorts, who had counted on further decline, began to cover.

Transfers totalled only 599,250 shares against 671,350 yesterday. The Associated Press average of sixty stocks added .1 of a point at 51.2.

Market gainers included Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Etudebaker, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of New Jersey, American Smelting, Chesapeake & Ohio, Westinghouse Electric, du Pont and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Associated Gas & Electric Co. bonds dropped sharply in the Curb following news the S.E.C. had refused the company permission to pay dividends on its capital stock. The company later filed for reorganization under Chapter 10 of the bankruptcy law in the Utica, N. Y., Federal Court.

Others lower included Niles-Bement-Pond and Electric Bond & Share. Turnover of 135,000 shares compared with 148,000 Tuesday.

Attorney Says Racing Service Is Operated In Indianapolis

Los Angeles, Jan. 10 (AP)—Samuel Klaus, special assistant to William J. Campbell, United States Attorney in Chicago, declared in an affidavit Tuesday that a nation-wide wire service is being operated from Indianapolis to distribute horse race race results.

A number of new horse racing "scratch sheets" have been started in various cities, he charged, since M. L. Annenberg agreed recently to discontinue his racing wire service.

"The information in the possession of the United States Attorney indicates that the new scratch sheets are merely a blind and a sham that are not even intended in any substantial way to compete with existing scratch sheets but are only intended as a device to cover up the perpetuation and continuance of the wire service," his affidavit said.

The Indianapolis wire service is operated by much of the personnel of the Annenberg Service, Klaus declared.

Committee To Meet

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP)—The first meeting of a committee named to recommend rules and regulations governing the administration of state funds allocated ta state-aided hospuitals will be held Jan. 18.

J. Milton Patterson, director of the State Department of Public Welfare at whose office the meeting will be held, said the committee would select a chairman and outline its work at the first meeting.

Members of the commission are Dr. H. Winifred Smith, Dr. A. J. Lomas, Miss A. R. Rosenthal and Dr. Walter D. Wise of Baltimore; Harvey H. Weiss of Cumberland; Grady J. Dayton, Salisbury, and J. W. Bird, Sandy Spring.

The majority of the ten-gallon hats bought by tourists in the west as cowboy equipment, are made in Philadelphia, Pa.

Kettering Will Speak and Symphony Orchestra Will Play

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

New York, Jan. 10—"March of Men and Motors" is the listing given a special program announced for the WJZ-NBC list at 10:30 Thursday night. It will come from Detroit, and be celebratory of the 25,000,000 car to come from the G. M. assembly line. Charles F. Nettering will talk, a drama will tell the story of the automobile and the Detroit symphony orchestra is to play.

Grady, Taber, in Debate

Henry F. Grady, assistant secretary of state, and Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, speak in the debating part of America's Town meeting on WJZ-NBC, beginning at 9:30. They will take sides on the question "Should we extend the reciprocal trade act?"

A couple of program changes are coming up. One of them is George Hessel's guest period on WEAF-NBC which transfers from Fridays to Thursdays at 8, the time used by One Man's Family before its move to Sundays. The other is the CBS Workshop drama on WABC-CBS, to be heard earlier at 10:15 hereafter for the time being.

Other Specialties

Features here and there: WABC-CBS 4:15, Adventures in Science, How to Avoid Accidents, on the Road or at Home;" WABC-CBS 8:30 The Vox Poppers conducting their interviews backstage at the Hilsen and Johnson Broadway show; WOR-MBS—east 8, Kay Kyser's recorded repeat of his Wednesday night NBC broadcast now being heard on a group of 15 or so MBS stations in place of WOR only; WJZ-NBC 9, Rochester Philharmonic orchestra, Jose Iturbi conducting.

Europe schedule: NBC chains 8 a. m.; WABC-CBS 8 a. m., 6:30, 8:55, 1 p. m.; MBS chain 9; MBS 10:15 Senator R. R. Reynolds on "Immigration."

Two Merry Kitchen Helpers

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9911

Let fashion enter through the kitchen—in these charmingly gay little aprons. Both versions are made from Marion Martin's Pattern 9911; both are finished in a flash with the aid of the accompanying Sew Chart. See how the waistline "points up" the spirited style. The back view shows you the expert arrangement that keeps the shoulder straps firmly up. You may cut the entire top front in one piece. Or make an attractively shaped plastron which, together with the sash, would look striking in contrast. Do add ric-rac or ruffing and mows or buttons.

Pattern 9911 maw be ordered only in sizes small, medium and large. Small size, with ric-rac, requires two yards 35 inch fabric and 3½ yards ric-rac; with ruffing, 1⅞ yards 35 inch fabric and one yard ruffing.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Here's exciting news! Our new Marian Martin spring pattern book is just out, with a gay preview of easy-to-sew styles for every age from tiny mite to matron including "grown-ups," debs and career girls. There are country casuals and town tailoreds . . . clothes for day and night glamor . . . costumes for the bride . . . outfits for school wear . . . new fashions for Spring seasoned cottons, tweeds, prints and, looking ahead to Easter, cruise modes. Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Adolescent Is Great Problem, Physician Says

Advises Routine Examination and Blood Check Once a Year

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A great problem of adolescence is anemia. This may be very insidious and entirely escape attention, but I think anyone who deals with large groups of adolescent children must notice the high incidence of pallor. This probably indicates anemia whether the blood examination shows it or not.

The anemia of adolescence is usually one in which the number of red cells is not reduced although the coloring matter of the blood shows a more or less significant reduction.

The old-fashioned "green sickness" in girls was a form of primary anemia called "chlorosis." We are told on eminent authority that this has disappeared off the earth. The explanation of the disappearance of chlorosis has been that the nutrition of the modern age is better than that of other periods. We have a large supply of fresh foods during the winter, including fresh meats, which was not true in our parents' time, and we also have green vegetables and fruits with a high iron content all the year 'round now. All of which goes to prevent the development of chlorosis.

Iron Deficiency

Chlorosis is due to iron deficiency and its treatment is very simple; it consists in the feeding of iron. The argument for the reasons of the disappearance of chlorosis, that we have more iron in our food now, is therefore plausible.

I am not sure, however, that chlorosis has disappeared quite as much as we are led to believe. I see cases every once in a while in the clinic, and I find that they are not recognized because the subject of chlorosis is not taught emphatically to modern physicians.

The principal symptoms of chlorosis are digestive, consisting of loss of appetite and a liking for particular kinds of foods. This appetite change may be more cause than effect because the foods which are preferred are candy and other processed foods which contain little iron or vitamins.

Blood May Not Show It

The examination of the blood, as it is done in a routine way by a technician in a laboratory, may show little indication to a physician that chlorosis exists. The old clinicians who made the diagnosis of chlorosis did so because they made their own blood examinations, a custom, which, unfortunately, in modern times has largely gone out of fashion.

Anemia, then, is a problem of adolescence which is often overlooked and disregarded. The diagnosis can be as much on the appearance of the child as on technical blood examinations.

I think it is proper to advise, however, that in the routine examination of the adolescent, the blood should be checked at least once a year.

The other important routine examination of the adolescent is for tuberculosis and it is, of course, possible that adolescent anemia may have tuberculosis as its causative background.

In all events, there can be no harm in careful attention to the adolescent's nutrition, particularly with reference to seeing that he has plenty of iron in the food.

Questions and Answers

K. E. T.: "Have I any reason to be worried about running a temperature of ninety-nine to 100, that is, off and on, all winter? It is normal in the morning and evening. It goes up about 11 and stays up till 5 o'clock. I am not weak and have no cough."

Answer: Such a condition certainly demands investigation, including an x-ray of the chest. It suggests a chronic infection, possibly early tuberculosis. Do not wait until cough and weakness appear.

Council Members Installed by Reich In Meyersdale

William H. Holzshu Elected New President For 1940-41

Meyersdale, Pa., Jan. 10 — The Meyersdale borough council reorganized last night for the 1940-41 term following the closing session of the retiring council.

Burgess Joe F. Reich administered the oaths to the incoming members and presided at the meeting until after the president and secretary had been elected.

The following are the new officers: William H. Holzshu, president; W. A. Shoemaker, secretary; R. H. Philson, treasurer, and H. A. Pfeiffer, budget secretary. The borough attorney and street foreman, will be chosen later when, also, the standing committees of council will be announced by President Holzshu.

With the resignation of John M. Weimer as a member of the Board of Health, S. Frank Miller was recommended by the board to succeed Mr. Weimer, who was approved by council. The health board also recommended Mr. Weimer to serve as health officer, which recommendation was also approved.

The present council is made up of the following members: W. H. Holzshu, James E. Leckemby, James L. Wilson, Albert C. Saylor, Albert F. Lintz, Henry C. Younkin and John E. Fullem.

Births Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Werner, Olinger street, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMurdo, Cumberland, Md., announce the birth of daughters at the Wenzel hospital, Salisbury street.

Meyersdale Briefs

Dorothy Saylor, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Saylor, R. D., Meyersdale, and Dorothy Jane Bittner, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bittner, Pleasant Union, yesterday underwent operations for the removal of tonsils and adenoids.

Billy Wenzel, 7, son of Mrs. Ellen Wenzel, Large street, a pneumonia patient, was discharged yesterday.

Mrs. C. R. Feichtner, Davis, W. Va., formerly of Eglon, W. Va., was admitted to the hospital Monday for medical treatment.

David Barnhart, Somerset, head of the National Youth Administration in Somerset county, was in Meyersdale yesterday and spent some time inspecting the woodworking plant sponsored by the NYA, which is now in operation.

Robert Wilson, veteran watchman at the cut on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad near Philson, is reported quite ill of grip and bronchitis.

Stewart Donges, Center street, who had the misfortune several days ago to fracture his right wrist in a fall on the icy roads, is now seriously ill of grip.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brant, 84, Salisbury street, widow of the late Nelson Brant, is reported critical ill of asthma at her home on Salisbury street.

Miss Clara Stacer returned yesterday to Pittsburgh, where she is employed as a nurse, following a visit of several days with her brothers and sisters at the Stacer home on High street.

Adolescent Is Great Problem, Physician Says

Advises Routine Examination and Blood Check Once a Year

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A great problem of adolescence is anemia. This may be very insidious and entirely escape attention, but I think anyone who deals with large groups of adolescent children must notice the high incidence of pallor. This probably indicates anemia whether the blood examination shows it or not.

The anemia of adolescence is usually one in which the number of red cells is not reduced although the coloring matter of the blood shows a more or less significant reduction.

The old-fashioned "green sickness" in girls was a form of primary anemia called "chlorosis." We are told on eminent authority that this has disappeared off the earth. The explanation of the disappearance of chlorosis has been that the nutrition of the modern age is better than that of other periods. We have a large supply of fresh foods during the winter, including fresh meats, which was not true in our parents' time, and we also have green vegetables and fruits with a high iron content all the year 'round now. All of which goes to prevent the development of chlorosis.

Iron Deficiency

Chlorosis is due to iron deficiency and its treatment is very simple; it consists in the feeding of iron. The argument for the reasons of the disappearance of chlorosis, that we have more iron in our food now, is therefore plausible.

I am not sure, however, that chlorosis has disappeared quite as much as we are led to believe. I see cases every once in a while in the clinic, and I find that they are not recognized because the subject of chlorosis is not taught emphatically to modern physicians.

The principal symptoms of chlorosis are digestive, consisting of loss of appetite and a liking for particular kinds of foods. This appetite change may be more cause than effect because the foods which are preferred are candy and other processed foods which contain little iron or vitamins.

Blood May Not Show It

The examination of the blood, as it is done in a routine way by a technician in a laboratory, may show little indication to a physician that chlorosis exists. The old clinicians who made the diagnosis of chlorosis did so because they made their own blood examinations, a custom, which, unfortunately, in modern times has largely gone out of fashion.

Anemia, then, is a problem of adolescence which is often overlooked and disregarded. The diagnosis can be as much on the appearance of the child as on technical blood examinations.

I think it is proper to advise, however, that in the routine examination of the adolescent, the blood should be checked at least once a year.

The other important routine examination of the adolescent is for tuberculosis and it is, of course, possible that adolescent anemia may have tuberculosis as its causative background.

In all events, there can be no harm in careful attention to the adolescent's nutrition, particularly with reference to seeing that he has plenty of iron in the food.

Questions and Answers

K. E. T.: "Have I any reason to be worried about running a temperature of ninety-nine to 100, that is, off and on, all winter? It is normal in the morning and evening. It goes up about 11 and stays up till 5 o'clock. I am not weak and have no cough."

Answer: Such a condition certainly demands investigation, including an x-ray of the chest. It suggests a chronic infection, possibly early tuberculosis. Do not wait until cough and weakness appear.

Council Members Installed by Reich In Meyersdale

William H. Holzshu Elected New President For 1940-41

Meyersdale, Pa., Jan. 10 — The Meyersdale borough council reorganized last night for the 1940-41 term following the closing session of the retiring council.

Burgess Joe F. Reich administered the oaths to the incoming members and presided at the meeting until after the president and secretary had been elected.

The following are the new officers: William H. Holzshu, president; W. A. Shoemaker, secretary; R. H. Philson, treasurer, and H. A. Pfeiffer, budget secretary. The borough attorney and street foreman, will be chosen later when, also, the standing committees of council will be announced by President Holzshu.

With the resignation of John M. Weimer as a member of the Board of Health, S. Frank Miller was recommended by the board to succeed Mr. Weimer, who was approved by council. The health board also recommended Mr. Weimer to serve as health officer, which recommendation was also approved.

The present council is made up of the following members: W. H. Holzshu, James E. Leckemby, James L. Wilson, Albert C. Saylor, Albert F. Lintz, Henry C. Younkin and John E. Fullem.

Barrow's Waiver Wizardry Costs Slapnicka a Player

By JOHN LARDNER
Released by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

New York, Jan. 10—A familiar cry rang out in the office of the Cleveland Indians the other day.

"Where are the papers?" shouted Cyril C. (where are the papers) Slapnicka, scholarly business chief of the Cleveland ball club.

"Sounds like Cy has lost another ball player," said one of the neighbors, and, sure enough, such was the case.

Thanks to a sordid chain of coincidences, several ball players have slipped through the Indians' hands in the last few years. Tom Henrich was the most famous case. Bob Feller came close to being an even more famous example. Mr. Slapnicka was hard pressed to explain the presence of Feller on his payroll, and there was some question as to whether he had the papers or didn't have the papers, but Judge Landis thoughtfully shut one eye and permitted Bobby to stay in Cleveland. This was indeed fortunate for Mr. Slapnicka.

Slapnicka System Is Suspect

Cy lost another decision to the Giants year before last, when the contract of a Minor League ball player turned up missing. In fact, so many papers have been missing that the people of Cleveland began to suspect that Mr. Slapnicka borrowed his filing system from W. C. Fields.

Last week the Indians lost another ball player through an oversight, but this time it is hard to place the blame on Mr. Slapnicka. He was hoodwinked by the woolly waiver tactics of Edward G. Barrow, president of the New York Yankees and the most celebrated illusionist and sleight-of-hand expert in the waivers racket.

Quicker eyes than Mr. Slapnicka's have been deceived by Mr. Barrow's work with waivers. The vaudeville stage lost a great trouper, the escape business a great artist, when Mr. Barrow applied himself to waivers.

Under the waiver system, a baseball executive sends out the names of players whom he might be willing to dispense with at the waiver price of $7,500, if one of the other clubs in the league wants to claim them. If all the other clubs waive, he can ship these citizens out of the league and sell them elsewhere.

Should somebody put in a claim, however, the owner can yank them back like marionettes and decide to keep them. In other words, the waiver list is sometimes no more than a feeler. And no one has felt more probingly, and hoaxed his neighbors more skillfully, than E. G. Barrow, known to his chums as the waiver wizard.

Mr. Barrow had a spare pitcher on his payroll named Joe Beggs. He also had his eye on a pitcher in the National League, Lee Grissom. His idea was to swap Beggs for Grissom. The trick was to get Beggs out of his own league.

Waiver Wizard in Action

The waiver wizard promptly began to flood the market with requests for waivers on Beggs. He put Beggs' name on the list. Mr. Slapnicka immediately claimed the youth for Cleveland. So did Cornelius Mack, in behalf of Philadelphia. Mr. Barrow laughed nonchalantly.

"I don't blame you boys for wanting this sterling young athlete," he said, "but I have decided to keep him myself."

Mr. Slapnicka had no sooner sat down in his corner again than another waiver list came popping out of the Yankee office, with forty names on it. Just as he was about to heave it in the waste-basket, his eye caught the name of Beggs halfway down the list.

"I claim that man!" barked Mr. Slapnicka, via telegraph.

"But we like him ourselves," chuckled Mr. Barrow. He pretended to turn away, but, as he did so, he fired another waiver list from under his left arm. Mr. Slapnicka was badly winded, but he managed to catch it on the fly. There were fifty-four names this time, including, I understand, Babe Ruth, Bob Meusel, and Honus Wagner. Also Beggs.

"I claim him!" panted Mr. Slapnicka.

"No dice," said Mr. Barrow gently.

You can figure out the rest of the story for yourself. Mr. Barrow kept firing waiver lists in there at odd times, sometimes with Beggs's name, sometimes not. He had Mr. Slapnicka spinning like a top. The telegraph tolls were terrific. Finally, inevitably, he shot one under Slapnicka's guard. The Cleveland tycoon awoke next morning to read in the newspapers that Joe Beggs had been traded to Cincinnati, of the National League.

"We obtained waivers," stated Mr. Barrow proudly to a palpitating press.

"Where are the papers?" yelled Mr. Slapnicka in dismay, rummaging through his desk. Sure enough, there was a waiver list on which the name of Beggs appeared eighty-fifth from the top.

I woud not blame Mr. Slapnicka at all if he hauled off and socked Mr. Barrow in the jaw (via telegraph).

Central Defeats Piedmont High; Score 29 to 13

Piedmont Held Scoreless in Second and Third Quarters

Piedmont, W. Va., Jan. 10.—(Special to the NEWS)—The Central high school basketball team which had its winning streak snapped at Meyersdale Tuesday night went back into the win column here tonight by defeating Piedmont 29 to 13.

The game was close and hard fought in the first quarter with Central on the long end of an 8 to 6 score. However, it was a different ball game in the second and third quarters as Central scored fifteen points while holding the home team scoreless.

Piedmont outscored the visitors 7 to 6 in the final period but they never threatened after the first quarter.

Frizzell, Central center, scored 15 points to take individual scoring honors.

Central Girls Swamp Piedmont 77 to 9

Piedmont, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Special to The News)—The Central high school girl's basketball team was too powerful for Piedmont tonight and swamped the locals 77 to 9.

Muster went on a scoring rampage making thirty-one points; Izat tallied nineteen and Clark ten.

Racing Commissioners Re-elect Officers

Miami, Fla., Jan. 10 (AP)—Re-electing their full slate of officers, State Racing Commissioners in National convention here held a brief roundtable discussion on thoroughbred racing problems today and then went out to witness the opening of Hialeah Park.

Renamed to head the organization through 1940 were John Sloan, New York, president; Beverley Broun, West Virginia, first vice president; Leonard Richards, Delaware, second vice president and Tom Underwood, Kentucky, secretary.

Discussing the campaign against doping horses, Charles F. Connors of Massachusetts, declared that out of 3,850 speciments analyzed from tracks in five states, only ten contained narcotics.

Outdoor Club Elects

The Cumberland Outdoor Club elected officers at its monthly meeting Monday night for the ensuing year. The new roster is as follows: president, Edward Belfoure; first vice president, Edward McConnell; second vice president, Edward Fraley; treasurer, Charles Simpson; financial secretary, Walter Keyser; and recording secretary, Paul Gellner.

The club will hold its annual banquet and dance in the near future.

High Spots of 1939 The All-Star Game

Los Angeles — The American League team was ahead by two runs in the sixth inning, but the National League was pressing hard. Two runs back — but Tommy Bridges, who had pitched two fine innings, was weakening. With one out, a boot by Joe Cronin and two hits filled the bases. Arky Vaughan was at the bat—a dangerous hitter, with only a single needed to tie the score—a triple, or maybe even a double, to put the National League in front.

The crowd jamming the Yankee Stadium to see the all-star game was in an uproar. The American League had dominated the game after a slow start but now the National League was hitting back. Bridges was staggering and, with Vaughan moving up to the plate, the break seemed to be at hand.

It was there that Joe McCarthy motioned Bridges out of the box—and brought Bob Feller in. It was there that, so far as the outcome of the game was concerned, all was over. For Vaughan hit a fast ball sharply to Joe Gordon and a double play followed—Gordon to Cronin to Greenberg — and the National League never was in the ball game after that.

The Way It Figured

That was the way the game figured to go. With each league hurling in its best side, the edge seemed to lie with the American—and did. There were fine performances on the National League side as the innings were reeled off. Paul Derringer pitched three scoreless innings. Mel Ott made two hits. Ernie Lombardi, destined to wind up the year as the goat of the World Series, was in fine form that July day in New York, catching a great game, making two hits and, as I later learned in talking over the game with the Yankees, impressing them as an exceedingly dangerous foemen.

But power and pitching and luck were riding against the National League that day. Luck—bad luck—hit the National League team and the Reds particularly in the fourth inning, when Ival Goodman almost tore himself to pieces trying to make a diving catch of a smash by George Selkirk. The Red right-fielder hurled himself at the ball, which was low, and struck hard on left shoulder, breaking his collarbone, losing the ball and putting himself out of action for nearly two months, thereby endangering the pennant chances of the Reds.

The final count was close—3 to 1. But nobody had any doubt that the better team had won.

Derringer and Ruffing

The game opened with Derringer pitching against Red Ruffing—and the duel was as close as it figured to be. Doc Cramer, the first hitter for the American League, slapped Derringer for a single to left and in the second inning Cronin reached him for a single to right center. But those were the only hits the American League made off Derringer, who had most of the hitters popping into the air.

Ruffing slipped through the first two innings with only a single to left by Lombardi checking his progress. But in the third he ran into trouble and the National League went to the front. Vaughan, who led off, got an infield hit and after Derringer had fanned, Hack singled to left and Frey doubled to right, scoring Vaughan.

With men on second and third, first base open and only one out, Ruffing passed Goodman. Frank McCormick was the next hitter—and McCormick took a third strike. Lombardi followed and the danger still was acute—but big Botcho popped to Gordon.

Into The Lead

It was in the fourth inning that the American League took the lead. Big Bill Lee of the Cubs was pitching then. DiMaggio grounded out but Dickey walked and Greenberg singled to left. Then Cronin fanned. Here Selkirk singled to right—Goodman was hurt—Dickey scored and Greenberg pulled up at third. Gordon hit to Vaughan, who fumbled and Greenberg scored. That, although no one could know it at the moment, was the ball game.

In the fifth DiMaggio clinched the victory for the American League, hitting a home run into the left-field bleachers.

Bridges followed Ruffing for the American League, got into that jam in the sixth and was pulled out. Feller's pinch pitching stopped the National League cold and McCarthy kept him in for the balance of the game. The Van Meter schoolboy showed in that game that he had come of age. Pitching with poise and deliberation, not trying to strike everybody out but working smoothly on every hitter, he yielded one hit—a single to center by Ott in the ninth.

Only once did he need a little unusual assistance in retiring a hitter. That was in the eighth inning, when Joe Medwick hit a curve ball on a line toward right field—only to see Gordon snare it in a leaping catch.

After the game, Arthur Fletcher said, "As long as I've been around, that was the greatest play I ever saw."

Galento Can Fight In New York, but Without Jacobs

Baer-Galento Match Approved by Commission; Jacobs Still Suspended

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission gave its blessing and a slap in the face to a Tony Galento-Max Baer charity bout in ten minutes of merry-go-round action today.

They first said they would approve a March 4 Galento-Baer battle here for the joint benefit of the fight-infantile-paralysis and Finnish relief funds.

Then the fistic fathers turned right around and flatly refused to reinstate Joe Jacobs, Galento's manager, whose license was revoked last fall. Galento, at present, also is without a license to box in this state, but the commissioners said they would grant him a permit to tangle with California Max.

The Commission said it would take no action on Joe Jacob's case at "the present time." To queries as to just when Joe might expect reinstatement, the Commissioners pointed out that "there may be a new Commission a few years from now."

Jacobs repeated previous statements that Galento would refuse to fight in New York unless Joe was in his corner, and pointed out that since he had been punished with a revocation of his license since last fall, he felt the Commission could "bury the hatchet" now.

Thus the bout, as far as New York was concerned, was "out," at least temporarily. Promoter Mike Jacobs was optimistic that some way might be worked out to keep it here. There was some talk, however, of holding it in another city.

The Commission also used today's meeting to "put the slug" on Jimmy Grippo, manager of ex-light-heavyweight champion Melio Bettina of Beacon, N. Y., with a sixty-day suspension. Bettina lost a close split decision to Fred Apostoli of San Francisco last Friday and Grippo said later he thought his fighter was "robbed." The Commissioners ruled this was conduct detrimental to boxing.

Schmidt To Coach Buckeyes Again

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 10.—Assurance that he again would coach Ohio State University's football eleven next fall came today from Francis A. Schmidt himself. Back from a holiday trip to the West Coast, Schmidt put the quietus on rumors that he would sign a contract with Stanford University to replace "Tiny" Thornhill, recently dismissed.

Neely Accepts Head Coaching Position at Rice

Resigns at Clemson To Take Five Year Contract in Southwest

Houston, Tex., Jan. 10. (AP)—Jess Neely ended Rice's hunt for a head football coach today by accepting the institute's offer of a five-year contract. The salary was not disclosed.

The Clemson coach spent two days in conference here with Rice authorities, then went home last night for consultations with his family, friends and Clemson officials. Today he notified the Southwest Conference school he would accept.

J. T. McCants, chairman of Rice's committee on outdoor sports, would give no features of the pact with Neely, but the coach revealed in a telephone conversation from his South Carolina home that he was given a five-year contract and power to name his assistants. The most reasonable guess at salary appeared to be $7,500 annually.

Rice officials said no contract had been signed yet and "some details have to be worked out," but Neely resigned his Clemson post and was ready to report here about February 1.

The forty-two-year-old mentor has had fine success the past two years. His 1939 team shared the Southern Conference title with Duke and defeated Boston College 6-3 in the Cotton Bowl.

Jess Neely Resigns As Head Coach of Clemson College

Clemson, S. C., Jan. 10 (AP)—Jess Neely, athletic director and head coach at Clemson College, resigned today shortly after his arrival from Houston, Tex., where he conferred yesterday with Rice Institute officials about the head coaching job.

Neely's Clemson team divided the 1939 Southern Conference title with Duke.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITEY MARTIN

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—The sign on the door reads: "Brooklyn National League Baseball Club," but you steal another quick look to be sure you haven't walked into Borough Hall branch of the Stock Exchange by mistake.

A huge blackboard covers an entire wall of an office right off the foyer, but a closer look reveals that instead of listing the high, low and close of A. B. & T. and Amalgamated Doorknobs, it lists the names and business addresses of some 300 members of the Brooklyn Dodgers and affiliated clubs.

Larry McPhail's reputation for left-handed ideas might lead a citizen to expect an atmosphere of whistling telephones and revolving typewriters, but the big blackboard is the only unexpected sight in a bustling baseball office.

That blackboard is intriguing, and it really gives a quick idea as to just how big this baseball business is and what a job it is to keep all the players spotted.

The board is in charge of two junior members—Branch Rickey, Jr., head of the farm system, and Ed Smith, Jr., who business managed the Pine Bluff, Ark., club last year.

It was Rickey's pa who devised the blackboard system at St. Louis. MacPhail just took it with him, as did other Rickey graduates. Warren Giles is using the Rickey system at Cincinnati, and he won his conference title last year, but was blanked in the bowl series.

Anyway, the board tells who are the Dodger hired hands, where they are, and where they are going, and would be a handy gadget in pocket size for some ball players who aren't sure.

"Of course," Smith explains, "the board is just supplementary to give a quick panoramic view of the organization. The card index gives the history of the players, with the comments of the scouts.

"When MacPhail came here two years ago Brooklyn just owned one club—Elmira—and had working agreements with Dayton and Winston-Salem. Now we own the Americus, Ga., Olean, N. Y.; Dayton, O., and the Elmira clubs, and have working agreements with Montreal, Nashville, Macon, Ga., Johnstown, Pa., and Superior Wis.

"That means about 300 players to keep tab on, and I've switched around names on that board until I'm dizzy. Between now and May 15 there'll be hundreds of changes.

Smith couldn't even guess at the value of the playing talent represented, but pointed out that the approximate 125 men on the four Class "D" clubs were worth a minimum of $100 each, making a total of $12,500, which is a lot of pickles, and is only the beginning.

:MacPhail, the rugged individualist who can keep a balmy idea bouncing around until it sticks, with benefit of all concerned, in two years has run the Brooklyn club from shoestrings into big business. And they once called them the daffy Dodgers.

Reds Sign Another Johnny Mize Catcher

Cincinnati—Johnny Mize has signed with the Cincinnati Reds—but it isn't the Johnny Mize.

He's a 6-foot-plus, heavy-hitting catcher signed up from California semi-pro ranks and will report to the Reds' Durham (N. C.) farm club.

The National League champions once had $65,000 invested in Mr. Mize No. 1, first baseman with the St. Louis Cards.

Longshot Wins Feature Race At Hialeah

Maetall Pays $38.40 as 16,298 Fans Attend Opening Day Program

Miami, Fla., Jan. 10 (AP)—Dewitt Page's five-year-old Maetall, a longshot tabbed as a chronic runner-upper, came driving home in a camera finish today to win the $5,000 added Inaugural Handicap that ushered in swank Hialeah Park's forty-six-day meeting.

A record opening crowd of 16,293, including notables from throughout the country, saw Maetall run the favorites into the ground to pay $38.40 for $2. The bay horse, which had finished second in his previous six starts over a three-year period, was a head in front of P. L. Kelley's Cardinalis at the finish, with Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Great Union three lengths back in third position.

The gaily dressed crowd, which included Jack Dempsey, Al Joison, Ben Bernie, Russell Firestone and George Ade, overflowed the grandstand and clubhouse onto the lawns.

The pari-mutuel "handle" on the eight races was $449,902, a twenty per cent increase over last year's opening day.

Lexington, Va., Jan. 20. (AP)—Washington and Lee wrestlers, victors by a 33-3 score in their first meet of the year, will travel to Morgantown, W. Va., Saturday to face the strong West Virginia mat squad.

The Generals, coached again by Archie Mathis, whose top notch teams have become a tradition at W. and L., opened their 1940 campaign by throwing the Richmond Y. M. C. A. wrestlers for a one-sided loss.

Barrow's Waiver Wizardry Costs Slapnicka a Player

Released by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

New York, Jan. 10—A familiar cry rang out in the office of the Cleveland Indians the other day.

"Where are the papers?" shouted Cyril C. (where are the papers) Slapnicka, scholarly business chief of the Cleveland ball club.

"Sounds like Cy has lost another ball player," said one of the neighbors, and, sure enough, such was the case.

Thanks to a sordid chain of coincidences, several ball players have slipped through the Indians' hands in the last few years. Tom Henrich was the most famous case. Bob Feller came close to being an even more famous example. Mr. Slapnicka was hard pressed to explain the presence of Feller on his payroll, and there was some question as to whether he had the papers or didn't have the papers, but Judge Landis thoughtfully shut one eye and permitted Bobby to stay in Cleveland. This was indeed fortunate for Mr. Slapnicka.

Slapnicka System Is Suspect

Cy lost another decision to the Giants year before last, when the contract of a Minor League ball player turned up missing. In fact, so many papers have been missing that the people of Cleveland began to suspect that Mr. Slapnicka borrowed his filing system from W. C. Fields.

Last week the Indians lost another ball player through an oversight, but this time it is hard to place the blame on Mr. Slapnicka. He was hoodwinked by the woolly waiver tactics of Edward G. Barrow, president of the New York Yankees and the most celebrated illusionist and sleight-of-hand expert in the waivers racket.

Quicker eyes than Mr. Slapnicka's have been deceived by Mr. Barrow's work with waivers. The vaudeville stage lost a great trouper, the escape business a great artist, when Mr. Barrow applied himself to waivers.

Under the waiver system, a baseball executive sends out the names of players whom he might be willing to dispense with at the waiver price of $7,500, if one of the other clubs in the league wants to claim them. If all the other clubs waive, he can ship these citizens out of the league and sell them elsewhere.

Should somebody put in a claim, however, the owner can yank them back like marionettes and decide to keep them. In other words, the waiver list is sometimes no more than a feeler. And no one has felt more probingly, and hoaxed his neighbors more skillfully, than E. G. Barrow, known to his chums as the waiver wizard.

Mr. Barrow had a spare pitcher on his payroll named Joe Beggs. He also had his eye on a pitcher in the National League, Lee Grissom. His idea was to swap Beggs for Grissom. The trick was to get Beggs out of his own league.

Waiver Wizard in Action

The waiver wizard promptly began to flood the market with requests for waivers on Beggs. He put Beggs' name on the list. Mr. Slapnicka immediately claimed the youth for Cleveland. So did Cornelius Mack, in behalf of Philadelphia. Mr. Barrow laughed nonchalantly.

"I don't blame you boys for wanting this sterling young athlete," he said, "but I have decided to keep him myself."

Mr. Slapnicka had no sooner sat down in his corner again than another waiver list came popping out of the Yankee office, with forty names on it. Just as he was about to heave it in the waste-basket, his eye caught the name of Beggs halfway down the list.

"I claim that man!" barked Mr. Slapnicka, via telegraph.

"But we like him ourselves," chuckled Mr. Barrow. He pretended to turn away, but, as he did so, he fired another waiver list from under his left arm. Mr. Slapnicka was badly winded, but he managed to catch it on the fly. There were fifty-four names this time, including, I understand, Babe Ruth, Bob Meusel, and Honus Wagner. Also Beggs.

"I claim him!" panted Mr. Slapnicka.

"No dice," said Mr. Barrow gently.

You can figure out the rest of the story for yourself. Mr. Barrow kept firing waiver lists in there at odd times, sometimes with Beggs's name, sometimes not. He had Mr. Slapnicka spinning like a top. The telegraph tolls were terrific. Finally, inevitably, he shot one under Slapnicka's guard. The Cleveland tycoon awoke next morning to read in the newspapers that Joe Beggs had been traded to Cincinnati, of the National League.

"We obtained waivers," stated Mr. Barrow proudly to a palpitating press.

"Where are the papers?" yelled Mr. Slapnicka in dismay, rummaging through his desk. Sure enough, there was a waiver list on which the name of Beggs appeared eighty-fifth from the top.

I woud not blame Mr. Slapnicka at all if he hauled off and socked Mr. Barrow in the jaw (via telegraph).

Central Defeats Piedmont High; Score 29 to 13

Piedmont Held Scoreless in Second and Third Quarters

Piedmont, W. Va., Jan. 10.—(Special to the NEWS)—The Central high school basketball team which had its winning streak snapped at Meyersdale Tuesday night went back into the win column here tonight by defeating Piedmont 29 to 13.

The game was close and hard fought in the first quarter with Central on the long end of an 8 to 6 score. However, it was a different ball game in the second and third quarters as Central scored fifteen points while holding the home team scoreless.

Piedmont outscored the visitors 7 to 6 in the final period but they never threatened after the first quarter.

Frizzell, Central center, scored 15 points to take individual scoring honors.

Central Girls Swamp Piedmont 77 to 9

Piedmont, W. Va., Jan. 10 (Special to The News)—The Central high school girl's basketball team was too powerful for Piedmont tonight and swamped the locals 77 to 9.

Muster went on a scoring rampage making thirty-one points; Izat tallied nineteen and Clark ten.

Racing Commissioners Re-elect Officers

Miami, Fla., Jan. 10 (AP)—Re-electing their full slate of officers, State Racing Commissioners in National convention here held a brief roundtable discussion on thoroughbred racing problems today and then went out to witness the opening of Hialeah Park.

Renamed to head the organization through 1940 were John Sloan, New York, president; Beverley Broun, West Virginia, first vice president; Leonard Richards, Delaware, second vice president and Tom Underwood, Kentucky, secretary.

Discussing the campaign against doping horses, Charles F. Connors of Massachusetts, declared that out of 3,850 speciments analyzed from tracks in five states, only ten contained narcotics.

Outdoor Club Elects

The Cumberland Outdoor Club elected officers at its monthly meeting Monday night for the ensuing year. The new roster is as follows: president, Edward Belfoure; first vice president, Edward McConnell; second vice president, Edward Fraley; treasurer, Charles Simpson; financial secretary, Walter Keyser; and recording secretary, Paul Gellner.

The club will hold its annual banquet and dance in the near future.

THE Sportlight BY GRANTLAND RICE

The All-Star Game

Los Angeles — The American League team was ahead by two runs in the sixth inning, but the National League was pressing hard. Two runs back — but Tommy Bridges, who had pitched two fine innings, was weakening. With one out, a boot by Joe Cronin and two hits filled the bases. Arky Vaughan was at the bat—a dangerous hitter, with only a single needed to tie the score—a triple, or maybe even a double, to put the National League in front.

The crowd jamming the Yankee Stadium to see the all-star game was in an uproar. The American League had dominated the game after a slow start but now the National League was hitting back. Bridges was staggering and, with Vaughan moving up to the plate, the break seemed to be at hand.

It was there that Joe McCarthy motioned Bridges out of the box —and brought Bob Feller in. It was there that, so far as the outcome of the game was concerned, all was over. For Vaughan hit a fast ball sharply to Joe Gordon and a double play followed—Gordon to Cronin to Greenberg — and the National League never was in the ball game after that.

The Way It Figured

That was the way the game figured to go. With each league hurling in its best side, the edge seemed to lie with the American— and did. There were fine performances on the National League side as the innings were reeled off. Paul Derringer pitched three scoreless innings. Mel Ott made two hits. Ernie Lombardi, destined to wind up the year as the goat of the World Series, was in fine form that July day in New York, catching a great game, making two hits and, as I later learned in talking over the game with the Yankees, impressing them as an exceedingly dangerous foemen.

But power and pitching and luck were riding against the National League that day. Luck—bad luck—hit the National League team and the Reds particularly in the fourth inning, when Ival Goodman almost tore himself to pieces trying to make a diving catch of a smash by George Selkirk. The Red right-fielder hurled himself at the ball, which was low, and struck hard on left shoulder, breaking his collarbone, losing the ball and putting himself out of action for nearly two months, thereby endangering the pennant chances of the Reds.

The final count was close—3 to 1. But nobody had any doubt that the better team had won.

Derringer and Ruffing

The game opened with Derringer pitching against Red Ruffing—and the duel was as close as it figured to be. Doc Cramer, the first hitter for the American League, slapped Derringer for a single to left and in the second inning Cronin reached him for a single to right center. But those were the only hits the American League made off Derringer, who had most of the hitters popping into the air.

Ruffing slipped through the first two innings with only a single to left by Lombardi checking his progress. But in the third he ran into trouble and the National League went to the front. Vaughan, who led off, got an infield hit and after Derringer had fanned, Hack singled to left and Frey doubled to right, scoring Vaughan.

With men on second and third, first base open and only one out, Ruffing passed Goodman. Frank McCormick was the next hitter—and McCormick took a third strike. Lombardi followed and the danger still was acute—but big Botcho popped to Gordon.

Into The Lead

It was in the fourth inning that the American League took the lead. Big Bill Lee of the Cubs was pitching then. DiMaggio grounded out but Dickey walked and Greenberg singled to left. Then Cronin fanned. Here Selkirk singled to right—Goodman was hurt—Dickey scored and Greenberg pulled up at third. Gordon hit to Vaughan, who fumbled and Greenberg scored. That, although no one could know it at the moment, was the ball game.

In the fifth DiMaggio clinched the victory for the American League, hitting a home run into the left-field bleachers.

Bridges followed Ruffing for the American League, got into that jam in the sixth and was pulled out. Feller's pinch pitching stopped the National League cold and McCarthy kept him in for the balance of the game. The Van Meter schoolboy showed in that game that he had come of age. Pitching with poise and deliberation, not trying to strike everybody out but working smoothly on every hitter, he yielded one hit—a single to center by Ott in the ninth.

Only once did he need a little unusual assistance in retiring a hitter. That was in the eighth inning, when Joe Medwick hit a curve ball on a line toward right field—only to see Gordon snare it in a leaping catch.

After the game, Arthur Fletcher said, "As long as I've been around, that was the greatest play I ever saw."

Galento Can Fight In New York, but Without Jacobs

Baer-Galento Match Approved by Commission; Jacobs Still Suspended

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission gave its blessing and a slap in the face to a Tony Galento-Max Baer charity bout in ten minutes of merry-go-round action today.

They first said they would approve a March 4 Galento-Baer battle here for the joint benefit of the fight - infantile - paralysis and Finnish relief funds.

Then the fistic fathers turned right around and flatly refused to reinstate Joe Jacobs, Galento's manager, whose license was revoked last fall. Galento, at present, also is without a license to box in this state, but the commissioners said they would grant him a permit to tangle with California Max.

The Commission said it would take no action on Joe Jacob's case at "the present time." To queries as to just when Joe might expect reinstatement, the Commissioners pointed out that "there may be a new Commission a few years from now."

Jacobs repeated previous statements that Galento would refuse to fight in New York unless Joe was in his corner, and pointed out that since he had been punished with a revocation of his license since last fall, he felt the Commission could "bury the hatchet" now.

Thus the bout, as far as New York was concerned, was "out," at least temporarily. Promoter Mike Jacobs was optimistic that some way might be worked out to keep it here. There was some talk, however, of holding it in another city.

The Commission also used today's meeting to "put the slug" on Jimmy Grippo, manager of ex-light-heavyweight champion Melio Bettina of Beacon, N. Y., with a sixty-day suspension. Bettina lost a close split decision to Fred Apostoli of San Francisco last Friday and Grippo said later he thought his fighter was "robbed." The Commissioners ruled this was conduct detrimental to boxing.

Schmidt To Coach Buckeyes Again

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 10.—Assurance that he again would coach Ohio State University's football eleven next fall came today from Francis A. Schmidt himself. Back from a holiday trip to the West Coast, Schmidt put the quietus on rumors that he would sign a contract with Stanford University to replace "Tiny" Thornhill, recently dismissed.

Neely Accepts Head Coaching Position at Rice

Resigns at Clemson To Take Five Year Contract in Southwest

Houston, Tex., Jan. 10. (AP)—Jess Neely ended Rice's hunt for a head football coach today by accepting the institute's offer of a five-year contract. The salary was not disclosed.

The Clemson coach spent two days in conference here with Rice authorities, then went home last night for consultations with his family, friends and Clemson officials. Today he notified the Southwest Conference school he would accept.

J. T. McCants, chairman of Rice's committee on outdoor sports, would give no features of the pact with Neely, but the coach revealed in a telephone conversation from his South Carolina home that he was given a five-year contract and power to name his assistants. The most reasonable guess at salary appeared to be $7,500 annually.

Rice officials said no contract had been signed yet and "some details have to be worked out," but Neely resigned his Clemson post and was ready to report here about February 1.

The forty-two-year-old mentor has had fine success the past two years. His 1939 team shared the Southern Conference title with Duke and defeated Boston College 6-3 in the Cotton Bowl.

Jess Neely Resigns As Head Coach of Clemson College

Clemson, S. C., Jan. 10 (AP)—Jess Neely, athletic director and head coach at Clemson College, resigned today shortly after his arrival from Houston, Tex., where he conferred yesterday with Rice Institute officials about the head coaching job.

Neely's Clemson team divided the 1939 Southern Conference title with Duke.

By WHITEY MARTIN

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—The sign on the door reads: "Brooklyn National League Baseball Club," but you steal another quick look to be sure you haven't walked into Borough Hall branch of the Stock Exchange by mistake.

A huge blackboard covers an entire wall of an office right off the foyer, but a closer look reveals that instead of listing the high, low and close of A. B. & T. and Amalgamated Doorknobs, it lists the names and business addresses of some 300 members of the Brooklyn Dodgers and affiliated clubs.

Larry McPhail's reputation for left-handed ideas might lead a citizen to expect an atmosphere of whistling telephones and revolving typewriters, but the big blackboard is the only unexpected sight in a bustling baseball office.

That blackboard is intriguing, and it really gives a quick idea as to just how big this baseball business is and what a job it is to keep all the players spotted.

The board is in charge of two junior members—Branch Rickey, Jr., head of the farm system, and Ed Smith, Jr., who business managed the Pine Bluff, Ark., club last year.

It was Rickey's pa who devised the blackboard system at St. Louis. MacPhail just took it with him, as did other Rickey graduates. Warren Giles is using the Rickey system at Cincinnati, and he won his conference title last year, but was blanked in the bowl series.

Anyway, the board tells who are the Dodger hired hands, where they are, and where they are going, and would be a handy gadget in pocket size for some ball players who aren't sure.

"Of course," Smith explains, "the board is just supplementary to give a quick panoramic view of the organization. The card index gives the history of the players, with the comments of the scouts.

"When MacPhail came here two years ago Brooklyn just owned one club—Elmira—and had working agreements with Dayton and Winston-Salem. Now we own the Americus, Ga., Olean, N. Y.; Dayton, O., and the Elmira clubs, and have working agreements with Montreal, Nashville, Macon, Ga., Johnstown, Pa., and Superior Wis.

"That means about 300 players to keep tab on, and I've switched around names on that board until I'm dizzy. Between now and May 15 there'll be hundreds of changes.

Smith couldn't even guess at the value of the playing talent represented, but pointed out that the approximate 125 men on the four Class "D" clubs were worth a minimum of $100 each, making a total of $12,500, which is a lot of pickles, and is only the beginning.

:MacPhail, the rugged individualist who can keep a balmy idea bouncing around until it sticks, with benefit of all concerned, in two years has run the Brooklyn club from shoestrings into big business. And they once called them the daffy Dodgers.

Reds Sign Another Johnny Mize Catcher

Cincinnati—Johnny Mize has signed with the Cincinnati Reds—but it isn't the Johnny Mize.

He's a 6-foot-plus, heavy-hitting catcher signed up from California semi-pro ranks and will report to the Reds' Durham (N. C.) farm club.

The National League champions once had $65,000 invested in Mr. Mize No. 1, first baseman with the St. Louis Cards.

Longshot Wins Feature Race At Hialeah

Maetall Pays $38.40 as 16,298 Fans Attend Opening Day Program

Miami, Fla., Jan. 10 (AP)—Dewitt Page's five-year-old Maetall, a longshot tabbed as a chronic runner-upper, came driving home in a camera finish today to win the $5,000 added Inaugural Handicap that ushered in swank Hialeah Park's forty-six-day meeting.

A record opening crowd of 16,293, including notables from throughout the country, saw Maetall run the favorites into the ground to pay $38.40 for $2. The bay horse, which had finished second in his previous six starts over a three-year period, was a head in front of P. L. Kelley's Cardinalis at the finish, with Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Great Union three lengths back in third position.

The gaily dressed crowd, which included Jack Dempsey, Al Jolson, Ben Bernie, Russell Firestone and George Ade, overflowed the grandstand and clubhouse onto the lawns.

The pari-mutuel "handle" on the eight races was $449,902, a twenty per cent increase over last year's opening day.

W.&L. Wrestlers Go To Morgantown for Match Saturday

Lexington, Va., Jan. 20. (AP)—Washington and Lee wrestlers, victors by a 33-3 score in their first meet of the year, will travel to Morgantown, W. Va., Saturday to face the strong West Virginia mat squad.

The Generals, coached again by Archie Mathis, whose top notch teams have become a tradition at W. and L., opened their 1940 campaign by throwing the Richmond Y. M. C. A. wrestlers for a one-sided loss.

Touchdown Club To Show Films of Major Bowl Games

Atlanta Group Arranges Impressive Program for 600 Fans

Atlanta, Jan. 10 (AP)—Admitting at last that the 1939 football season is dead, Atlanta's Touchdown Club came up today with a super wake to console the rabid mourners until their fickle affections shift to 1940 spring practice.

The organization of college letter men lined up official films on all four of the major bowl games and will show them with fixings, after a dinner at a hotel January 19 to 600 male fans of the kind who think spring, summer and winter were put on the calendar to give the coach a chance to find fresh material.

Everett Strupper, hefty club president and former Georgia Tech backfield star, gleefully announced the signing of Notre Dame's Elmer Layden as the No. 1 guest speaker and declared:

"We've got the most comprehensive bowl review ever arranged for the 'Monday quarterbacks' of any city.

Slated to explain the action and give the "inside" as each picture is run off are Tulane's Towell Dawson, whose lads were edged in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl, 13-14, by Texas A. and M.; Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech, whose suave Engineers defeated Missouri at Miami, 21-7; Jess Neely, who piloted Clemson to a 6-3 verdict over Boston College at Dallas' cotton party, and Head Coach Bob Neyland or Assistant Bill Britton of the Tennessee club that bowed to Southern California, 0-14, in the Rose tournament.

Before the picture show, Howard Ector, Georgia Tech's brilliant quarterback, will receive the club's annual trophy as the Southeastern conference's most valuable player.

Duke Beats Navy

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 10, (AP)—Navy fell apart in the second half to let Duke's Blue Devils romp to a 40-27 basketball victory today.

The Midshipmen made a fight of it in the first half, a ding-dong battle that saw the lead change hands six times. Navy led 18-17 at the half.

After the rest period, the lead seesawed until Duke tied it at 22-22. Then the Blue Devils, sparked by Bill Parsons, forward, began to roll.

Norman (Little Jeep) Ackley, Navy forward, led the Midshipmen throughout the scrap. Ray Brown and Parsons were scoring lights for the Carolinans, Parsons counting ten and Brown nine. Ackley led Navy with six.

Baseball Family

Ed Teusser, veteran right-hander bought by the Athletics from Memphis, comes from a baseball family his father and three uncles having played in the Snake River League, Idaho, in 1905. Ed himself now resides in Bountiful, Utah.

Parsons Faces Strong Teams

Parsons, W. Va., Jan. 10 — The Parsons high school Panthers are facing a tough ten days ahead of them, which will include two of the hardest games of the season. They will journey to Petersburg Friday night for a game with Coach Whitney Kendall's outfit.

Tuesday night will probably be their hardest game of the season when they meet their age old rivals, Elkins high, in the gymnasium here at 8 o'clock. The referee will be Caldwell, of Fairmont.

The Elkins game is always the outstanding game of the season for Parsons and each year the Randolph countians have been victorious. This year Coach Myrl Kepner says he has a good chance to turn the tables on the visitors.

Saturday night of next week, Shinnston high school will play in the Parsons gym. This will be their first appearance in Tucker county.

Moorefield high school will be met on the floor at Thomas tomorrow night by Coach Emil Suder's Thomas high team. The game will start at 8 o'clock. The Thomas team will go to Mill Creek on Friday night for a game with the Tygarts Valley high school.

Davis and Thomas will clash at Thomas January 18.

DeLuca, Fogtman Top Trozzo A. C. Bowlers

Sam DeLuca and Frank Fogtman shared first-half pin-spilling honors in the Trozzo A. C. Bowling League with averages of 160, according to records announced today. DeLuca rolls for the Outs and Fogtman for the Assists. Each appeared in 39 games with DeLuca scattering 13 more pins than Fogtman.

Third place went to Johnny Thomas of the Balks with 150 while Joe Geatz of the Walks and Wiseman, who paced Captain Rosenmerkle's Hits to the first half championship, shared fourth position with 147's.

Albert "Bunny" Saum of the Assists, who averaged 140, had high game with 245 while Fogtman with 598 turned in the best set during the race. Averages follow:

Some Good Coaches From Small Schools

New York,—Year after year professional football proves that a player doesn't have to come from a big-name school to be a top-notch pro performer. But coaching may be something else again.

A check of the list shows only a few coaches ranking at the top who came from small schools. Most notable are Carl Snavely at Cornell a graduate of Lebanon Valley; California's Stub Allison, from Carleton, and Colgate's Andy Kerr, who went to school at Dickinson.

Club Recreation pinmen had an off day last Sunday and for the second time this season were shut out as Diamond won three on its home alleys to tie for first place in the City Bowling League.

Four of the Club's five men failed to roll over 400 as the South Enders, led by P. Smith with 194-501, broke Recreation's winning streak of nine matches. It was Club's second defeat of the season with the other setback also coming at the hands of the Diamonds in a third-week contest. Stakem with 431 was high for the losing combination.

Padgett Thinks Cards Will Win

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 10. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals are early season favorites down here to dethrone the Cincinnati Reds in the 1940 National League pennant race.

Don Padgett, who might be a little prejudiced since he's first string catcher for the Gas House gang, said so today .

"I don't see how we can miss," said the receiver whose 1939 batting average of .399 in 92 games is almost as large as his 218-pound, six-foot, two-inch frame.

"Our outfield is set. Ducky Medwick should go great again—and by the way, the fans in St. Louis would never let Medwick be traded, unless something as good as Medwick is received in return.

"As for the rest of the team, a couple of good pitchers and a keystone man for our infield and we'll be ready to go to town. Remember that it was only the bad first month that ruined us last season. The Reds got off to a twelve-game lead and twelve games is twelve games in anybody's league.

"We were slow in getting started and then almost overtook Cincinnati. If we could have licked them that first day of our important four-game series, we'd have won the pennant. They were scared stiff."

Touchdown Club To Show Films of Major Bowl Games

Atlanta Group Arranges Impressive Program for 600 Fans

Atlanta, Jan. 10 (AP)—Admitting at last that the 1939 football season is dead, Atlanta's Touchdown Club came up today with a super wake to console the rabid mourners until their fickle affections shift to 1940 spring practice.

The organization of college letter men lined up official films on all four of the major bowl games and will show them with fixings, after a dinner at a hotel January 19 to 600 male fans of the kind who think spring, summer and winter were put on the calendar to give the coach a chance to find fresh material.

Everett Strupper, hefty club president and former Georgia Tech backfield star, gleefully announced the signing of Notre Dame's Elmer Layden as the No. 1 guest speaker and declared:

"We've got the most comprehensive bowl review ever arranged for the 'Monday quarterbacks' of any city.

Slated to explain the action and give the "inside" as each picture is run off are Tulane's Towell Dawson, whose lads were edged in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl, 13-14, by Texas A. and M.; Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech, whose suave Engineers defeated Missouri at Miami, 21-7; Jess Neely, who piloted Clemson to a 6-3 verdict over Boston College at Dallas' cotton party, and Head Coach Bob Neyland or Assistant Bill Britton of the Tennessee club that bowed to Southern California, 0-14, in the Rose tournament.

Before the picture show, Howard Ector, Georgia Tech's brilliant quarterback, will receive the club's annual trophy as the Southeastern conference's most valuable player.

Saint Junior Pinmen Trim La Vale Outfit

After being nosed out by 18 pins in the first game, the SS. Peter & Paul Junior bowling team rallied in the last two tilts to defeat the LaVale All-Stars, 2,035 to 1,838 in a recent match on the SS. Peter and Paul alleys.

Duke Beats Navy

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 10. (AP)—Navy fell apart in the second half to let Duke's Blue Devils romp to a 40-27 basketball victory today.

The Midshipmen made a fight of it in the first half, a ding-dong battle that saw the lead change hands six times. Navy led 18-17 at the half.

After the rest period, the lead seesawed until Duke tied it at 22-22. Then the Blue Devils, sparked by Bill Parsons, forward, began to roll.

Norman (Little Jeep) Ackley, Navy forward, led the Midshipmen throughout the scrap. Ray Brown and Parsons were scoring lights for the Carolinans, Parsons counting ten and Brown nine. Ackley led Navy with six.

Baseball Family

Ed Teusser, veteran right-hander bought by the Athletics from Memphis, comes from a baseball family his father and three uncles having played in the Snake River League, Idaho, in 1905. Ed himself now resides in Bountiful, Utah.

Parsons Faces Strong Teams

Parsons, W. Va., Jan. 10 — The Parsons high school Panthers are facing a tough ten days ahead of them, which will include two of the hardest games of the season. They will journey to Petersburg Friday night for a game with Coach Whitney Kendall's outfit.

Tuesday night will probably be their hardest game of the season when they meet their age old rivals, Elkins high, in the gymnasium here at 8 o'clock. The referee will be Caldwell, of Fairmont.

The Elkins game is always the outstanding game of the season for Parsons and each year the Randolph countians have been victorious. This year Coach Myrl Kepner says he has a good chance to turn the tables on the visitors.

Saturday night of next week, Shinnston high school will play in the Parsons gym. This will be their first appearance in Tucker county.

Moorefield high school will be met on the floor at Thomas tomorrow night by Coach Emil Suder's Thomas high team. The game will start at 8 o'clock. The Thomas team will go to Mill Creek on Friday night for a game with the Tygarts Valley high school.

Davis and Thomas will clash at Thomas January 18.

DeLuca, Fogtman Top Trozzo A. C. Bowlers

Sam DeLuca and Frank Fogtman shared first-half pin-spilling honors in the Trozzo A. C. Bowling League with averages of 160, according to records announced today. DeLuca rolls for the Outs and Fogtman for the Assists. Each appeared in 39 games with DeLuca scattering 13 more pins than Fogtman.

Third place went to Johnny Thomas of the Balks with 150 while Joe Geatz of the Walks and Wiseman, who paced Captain Rosenmerkle's Hits to the first half championship, shared fourth position with 147's.

Albert "Bunny" Saum of the Assists, who averaged 140, had high game with 245 while Fogtman with 598 turned in the best set during the race. Averages follow:

Paced by Evelyn Harris who set two records, the Shooting Stars added three more games to their list of wins in the SS. Peter & Paul Ladies League in last week's matches over the Saints' drives. Mrs. Harris broke records held by Betty Schlinger and Helen Blackman for a single game and a 423 set mark held by Miss Blackman, by registering 185-426 scores. Her single game score shattered the old record by 22 pins.

Some Good Coaches From Small Schools

New York,—Year after year professional football proves that a player doesn't have to come from a big-name school to be a top-notch pro performer. But coaching may be something else again.

A check of the list shows only a few coaches ranking at the top who came from small schools. Most notable are Carl Snavely at Cornell a graduate of Lebanon Valley; California's Stub Allison, from Carleton, and Colgate's Andy Kerr, who went to school at Dickinson.

Club Recreation pinmen had an off day last Sunday and for the second time this season were shut out as Diamond won three on its home alleys to tie for first place in the City Bowling League.

Four of the Club's five men failed to roll over 400 as the South Enders, led by P. Smith with 194-501, broke Recreation's winning streak of nine matches. It was Club's second defeat of the season with the other setback also coming at the hands of the Diamonds in a third-week contest. Stakem with 431 was high for the losing combination.

Padgett Thinks Cards Will Win

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 10. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals are early season favorites down here to dethrone the Cincinnati Reds in the 1940 National League pennant race.

Don Padgett, who might be a little prejudiced since he's first string catcher for the Gas House gang, said so today .

"I don't see how we can miss," said the receiver whose 1939 batting average of .399 in 92 games is almost as large as his 218-pound, six-foot, two-inch frame.

"Our outfield is set. Ducky Medwick should go great again—and by the way, the fans in St. Louis would never let Medwick be traded, unless something as good as Medwick is received in return.

"As for the rest of the team, a couple of good pitchers and a keystone man for our infield and we'll be ready to go to town. Remember that it was only the bad first month that ruined us last season. The Reds got off to a twelve-game lead and twelve games is twelve games in anybody's league.

"We were slow in getting started and then almost overtook Cincinnati. If we could have licked them that first day of our important four-game series, we'd have won the pennant. They were scared stiff."

McINTYRE'S

MASTER AND STAR PUPILS

"REMEMBER" OPENS TODAY AT MARYLAND

Theaters Today

"The Man in the Iron Mask" and "Raw Timber"

Closing today at the Embassy theater will be the double feature attraction with Joan Bennett and Louis Hayward in "The Man In The Iron Mask", with Warren William, Joseph Schildkraut and Alan Hale in the supporting roles. The second feature being Tom Keene in the action hit "Raw Timber."

"Southward Ho" and "Good Girls Go to Paris"

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater will be the twin hit attraction with Roy Rogers and Mary Hart in the western hit "Southward Ho." Second feature being Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell in "Good Girls Go To Paris."

"Remember" Opens Today at Maryland

Robert Taylor and Greer Garson with Lew Ayers in "Remember?" This is the season's most popular and timely romantic teaming of stars in a gay comedy of married life today, which opens today at the Maryland theater for an engagement of four days. Ever since her introduction to motion picture audiences in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," a search has been made for a story that would reveal Miss Garson's talent for comedy as well as drama. It was found in an original story by Corey Ford, national magazine writer, and Norman Z. McLeod who also directed the film.

Brightly modern, with New York as its action background, it was written especially for Taylor, Miss Garson and Ayers. While it is highlighted with sparkling dialogue and amusing comedy situations, the picture has a serious and warmly human theme running through it. Briefly, it deals with two young people who fall in love "at sight." Married in haste, their romance is threatened by misunderstandings. Too proud to admit that they are still in love, they are divorced. Then, by a surprising twist of the plot, they get a second chance and this time make the most of it.

The picture is brought to the screen by Milton Bren who with McLeod formed the successful producer - director combination that made the hilarious "Topper" pictures. Surrounding the stars is an outstanding supporting cast, featuring Billie Burke, Reginald Owen, George Barbier, Henry Travers, Laura Hope Crews, Richard Carle and Sara Haden.

Other Woman's Plight Probed by 'In Name Only'

The plight of an attractive young widow who meets and falls desperately in love with a married man offers a pulsating dramatic highlight about which pivots one of the screen's most appealing stories in "In Name Only," co-starring Carole Lombard, Cary Grant and Kay Francis. The picture is now showing at the Garden.

The wife in this case is a hartless and selfish socialite whose only interest in the man she married is money and prestige. Accordingly, she refuses to grant him a release when he frankly asks for his freedom to marry the widow. Further she threatens the two lovers with an unbearable scandal.

With their castles crashing about their ears the husband and his sweetheart find it impossible to carry on and agree to separate forever.

Here the story takes an unexpected turn, mounting with dramatic rapidity to a soul-stirring climax.

Said to be one of the season's most significant films, "In Name Only" is a powerful vehicle for its stellar trio. In addition to Carole Lombard, Cary Grant and Kay Francis, the RKO Radio picture has a distinguished cast, among whom are Charles Coburn, Helen Vinson, Katherine Alexander, Jonahtan Hale and Maurice Moscovich, directed by John Cromwell, renowned for "Of Human Bondage."

"Victor Herbert" Rousing Tribute to Ace Composer

Victor Herbert, America's favorite composer and the man who first taught the world how to sing about love, comes to life on the screen in a festival of song, laughter and romance, in the first film based on his personality, "The Great Victor Herbert," which Paramount presented yesterday at the Strand. It continues thru Sunday.

If "great" is the right word to describe Herbert — and who have listened to his songs will deny it?— it can also be safely applied to the picture that now glorifies him. In its cast, story, back-ground and selection of music, "The Great Victor Herbert" is a film that would surely suit the exacting taste of the maestro himself.

Realizing rightly that a story of Herbert's own career would not pack sufficient drama and excitement to make a great picture, Producer-Director Andrew Stone solved his problem neatly by building his film around Herbert's influence on the Broadway of his day and his beautiful friendship with a young actor and actress who rise to fame in his immortal operettas.

Mary Martin, who a season ago made the song "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" practically a national anthem, is equally adept at playing drama and singing songs of a more serious nature, in her role of the stage-struck girl of the early 1900's. In her stormy romance with Allan Jones, who plays the matinee idol of his day, she is vivacious and convincing. Walter Connolly, as the third of the leading trio, portrays Victor Herbert with a sureness and vigor that bring the great Irish-American right back into the theatre!

Dealing with the unscrupulous methods of land-thieves of sixty years ago in forcing owners of Spanish grants to abandon their land, and with one group of a band of vagabonds who made their living by hiring their guns, "The Fighting Gringo" now showing at the Liberty presents George O'Brien in one of his most exciting outdoor dramas.

Taking part of its story plot from actual happenings in early Western history, the film shows O'Brien as the leader of a band of professional gun-fighters who are engaged to apprehend a wanted murderer. When he learns that the wanted man is a Spaniard whose grant of land has been unscrupulously taken from him by land-thieves, O'Brien spends every effort to capture the Spaniard, at the same time adroitly investigating the situation until the real murderer is caught.

During his mission of establishing the innocence of the accused man, O'Brien encounters many obstacles, including frequent gun-battles and chases, hand-to-hand combats, misunderstandings and suspicions cast upon him from both factions, climaxing in a stirring fight at the ranch.

Lupita Tovar, attractive Mexican actress, furnishes the romantic interest in "The Fighting Gringo," while such players as Lucio Villegas, William Royle, Glen Strange, LeRoy Mason, Slim Whittaker and Mary Field are seen in prominent supporting roles.

David Howard directed this Bert Gilroy production for RKO Radio from Oliver Drake's original screen play.

MASTER AND STAR PUPILS

"REMEMBER" OPENS TODAY AT MARYLAND

Theaters Today

"The Man in the Iron Mask" and "Raw Timber"

Closing today at the Embassy theater will be the double feature attraction with Joan Bennett and Louis Hayward in "The Man In The Iron Mask", with Warren William, Joseph Schildkraut and Alan Hale in the supporting roles. The second feature being Tom Keene in the action hit "Raw Timber."

"Southward Ho" and "Good Girls Go to Paris"

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater will be the twin hit attraction with Roy Rogers and Mary Hart in the western hit "Southward Ho." Second feature being Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell in "Good Girls Go To Paris."

"Remember" Opens Today at Maryland

Robert Taylor and Greer Garson with Lew Ayers in "Remember?" This is the season's most popular and timely romantic teaming of stars in a gay comedy of married life today, which opens today at the Maryland theater for an engagement of four days. Ever since her introduction to motion picture audiences in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," a search has been made for a story that would reveal Miss Garson's talent for comedy as well as drama. It was found in an original story by Corey Ford, national magazine writer, and Norman Z. McLeod who also directed the film.

Brightly modern, with New York as its action background, it was written especially for Taylor, Miss Garson and Ayers. While it is highlighted with sparkling dialogue and amusing comedy situations, the picture has a serious and warmly human theme running through it. Briefly, it deals with two young people who fall in love "at sight." Married in haste, their romance is threatened by misunderstandings. Too proud to admit that they are still in love, they are divorced. Then, by a surprising twist of the plot, they get a second chance and this time make the most of it.

The picture is brought to the screen by Milton Bren who with McLeod formed the successful producer - director combination that made the hilarious "Topper" pictures. Surrounding the stars is an outstanding supporting cast, featuring Billie Burke, Reginald Owen, George Barbier, Henry Travers, Laura Hope Crews, Richard Carle and Sara Haden.

Other Woman's Plight Probed by 'In Name Only'

The plight of an attractive young widow who meets and falls desperately in love with a married man offers a pulsating dramatic highlight about which pivots one of the screen's most appealing stories in "In Name Only," co-starring Carole Lombard, Cary Grant and Kay Francis. The picture is now showing at the Garden.

The wife in this case is a hartless and selfish socialite whose only interest in the man she married is money and prestige. Accordingly, she refuses to grant him a release when he frankly asks for his freedom to marry the widow. Further she threatens the two lovers with an unbearable scandal.

With their castles crashing about their ears the husband and his sweetheart find it impossible to carry on and agree to separate forever.

Here the story takes an unexpected turn, mounting with dramatic rapidity to a soul-stirring climax.

Said to be one of the season's most significant films, "In Name Only" is a powerful vehicle for its stellar trio. In addition to Carole Lombard, Cary Grant and Kay Francis, the RKO Radio picture has a distinguished cast, among whom are Charles Coburn, Helen Vinson, Katherine Alexander, Jonahtan Hale and Maurice Moscovich, directed by John Cromwell, renowned for "Of Human Bondage."

Known throughout the south seas for their skillful interpretation of tropical melodies, Sol Hoopii and his Hawaiian string band share musical honors with Matty Malneck's popular radio orchestra in Universal's musical drama, "Hawaiian Nights," now at the Garden theater.

"Victor Herbert" Rousing Tribute to Ace Composer

Victor Herbert, America's favorite composer and the man who first taught the world how to sing about love, comes to life on the screen in a festival of song, laughter and romance, in the first film based on his personality, "The Great Victor Herbert," which Paramount presented yesterday at the Strand. It continues thru Sunday.

If "great" is the right word to describe Herbert — and who have listened to his songs will deny it?— it can also be safely applied to the picture that now glorifies him. In its cast, story, back-ground and selection of music, "The Great Victor Herbert" is a film that would surely suit the exacting taste of the maestro himself.

Realizing rightly that a story of Herbert's own career would not pack sufficient drama and excitement to make a great picture, Producer-Director Andrew Stone solved his problem neatly by building his film around Herbert's influence on the Broadway of his day and his beautiful friendship with a young actor and actress who rise to fame in his immortal operettas.

Mary Martin, who a season ago made the song "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" practically a national anthem, is equally adept at playing drama and singing songs of a more serious nature, in her role of the stage-struck girl of the early 1900's. In her stormy romance with Allan Jones, who plays the matinee idol of his day, she is vivacious and convincing. Walter Connolly, as the third of the leading trio, portrays Victor Herbert with a sureness and vigor that bring the great Irish-American right back into the theatre!

Dealing with the unscrupulous methods of land-thieves of sixty years ago in forcing owners of Spanish grants to abandon their land, and with one group of a band of vagabonds who made their living by hiring their guns, "The Fighting Gringo" now showing at the Liberty presents George O'Brien in one of his most exciting outdoor dramas.

Taking part of its story plot from actual happenings in early Western history, the film shows O'Brien as the leader of a band of professional gun-fighters who are engaged to apprehend a wanted murderer. When he learns that the wanted man is a Spaniard whose grant of land has been unscrupulously taken from him by land-thieves, O'Brien spends every effort to capture the Spaniard, at the same time adroitly investigating the situation until the real murderer is caught.

During his mission of establishing the innocence of the accused man, O'Brien encounters many obstacles, including frequent gun-battles and chases, hand-to-hand combats, misunderstandings and suspicions cast upon him from both factions, climaxing in a stirring fight at the ranch.

Lupita Tovar, attractive Mexican actress, furnishes the romantic interest in "The Fighting Gringo," while such players as Lucio Villegas, William Royle, Glen Strange, LeRoy Mason, Slim Whittaker and Mary Field are seen in prominent supporting roles.

List of Fatalities Climb to Eight in W. Va. 11-Day Cold Snap

Low Temperatures Recorded at Keyser, Other Cities

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—The list of fatalities for West Virginia's 11-day wintry spell climbed to eight today with the deaths of two more persons, one from sleigh riding injuries and another from asphyxiation.

Record low temperatures were recorded in at least two places as most of the state experienced continued cold but no more snow.

Joseph Amania, 36-year-old Columbus, O., truck driver, was found unconscious in the cab of his truck near Huntington and died a short time later. The motor was running and the windows were closed.

At Welch, Floyd Garman Christian, 9, of Thorpe, died of a fractured skull received Monday when his sled went over a high wall.

In all, there have been three coasting deaths, one child burned to death, one person fatally injured in a fall, one exposure death and two asphxiations from carbon monoxide since December 31.

Charleston, Huntington and Keyser had the lowest temperatures, all of them close to the freezing mark.

The coldest spot in the state was Bramwell, Mercer county, which had a low reading of zero. Martinsburg also had a season low of nine degrees.

Poison Food Death Investigated by State

Buckhannon, W. Va., Jan. 10. (AP)—The State Health Department sent a representative ot Buckhannon today to investigate the food poisoning death of Dante Peraldo, 18, of Beckley.

Dr. A. M. Price of the preventable disease division began his inquiry at Webster Springs, where young Peraldo was working for his father, contractor for a Huntington building firm, on the construction of the Webster county jail.

Meanwhile, doctors here already had begun analyzing samples of the pickled beef and the plate from which it was eaten.

Pete Peraldo, 48, the father, is in serious condition at the hospital in Buckhannon.

Another son, William Peraldo, said he also ate some of the meat but suffered no ill effects.

Corp. Benjamin Franklin

Benjamin Franklin, Pennsylvania state police corporal, arrives at court in Mauch Chunk, Pa., where he is on trial for the fatal shooting of Joan Stevens, 14. Franklin contends he shot, eight times, in self-defense when the girl threatened him with a pistol. The gun was later found to be a toy.

Mineral Docket Unusually Light

Only Eight Witnesses Called To Testify Before Grand Jury

Keyser, W. Va., Jan. 10—Eight witnesses—the smallest number in "at least fifteen years"—have been summoned to testify before the grand jury when it convenes Tuesday, opening the January term of Mineral county circuit court here.

Prosecuting Attorney Vernon E. Rankin predicted a "very light" docket at this month's session of court. County bar members spoke of the possibility of dispensing with the services of a petit jury at this term. If no petit jurors are called, cases requiring juries will be carried over to the April term of the court.

Directors Named

All officers and directors of the National Bank of Keyser were re-elected at a stockholders' meeting yesterday.

They are: President, Joseph E. Patchett; first vice president, James A. Thrush; second vice president, E. V. Romig; cashier, Paul J. Davis, and assistant cashier, C. H. Sheetz, Jr.

Directors, besides Patchett, Thrush and Romig, are Dr. Thomas E. Bess, H. G. Shores, John A. Tice and John S. Wilson.

Hot Lunches To Be Served To School Pupils

Project To Be Sponsored By Hardy County Groups

Moorefield, W. Va., Jan. 10.—The project sponsored by the state and local boards of education and the Parent-Teacher association in co-operation with the WPA, for serving hot lunches to the children of Hardy county schools will begin to function Monday.

The project gets under way Wednesday with the appointment of cooks and the establishment of quarters.

The plan is to start with the Moorefield school and later have centers at Wardensville, Mathias, Baker and other points where there is a demand and a need.

In Moorefield the lunches will be served at the Town Hall and it is expected there will be eighty or 100 children taking advantage of the opportunity. Needy children will be served free of charge; those who can afford to pay will be charged a small fee per meal or may pay in commodities.

Mrs. R. K. McNeill is supervisor with Mrs. Edna Buena Ganoe and Mrs. Jennie Roomer as assistants.

This project offers an excellent opportunity for undernourished children to obtain needed vitamins and should be a boon to those children who are brought in on the school buses and have only a cold lunch.

Scouts To Show Planes

The Boy Scouts are looking for a store window where they can set up models of airplanes for display. They are making excellent progress in their airplane club and would like to show the people of Moorefield what they have done. All they need is display space.

On January 29, leaders and committeemen of the South Branch district of the Potomac Council will hold a dinner conference at the McNeill hotel. This district is composed of Romney, Moorefield, Lost River and Petersburg.

Safety Drive Continues

The safety campaign for the local school took a step forward last week when children in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades went on patrol duty at crossings when school is dismissed.

Raymond Sindy, who is in charge of this selects six boys every three days who have shown merit in their regular school work and the work in their safety class and sends them out on patrol duty.

These boys wear white patrolman belts and watch other children across crossings and slow up traffic for safety's sake.

John Cain Dies

John Edward Cain, 63, died suddenly at his home at Fort Run Sunday. Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at Fort Run with the Rev. P. I. Garber, Petersburg, in charge of the service and interment was in Olivet cemetery.

Mr. Cain, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Cain, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Rosa Virginia Cain; two sons, Sterling of Moorefield and Arthur of Fort Run; four daughters, Mrs. Effenger Bean, Mrs. Raymond Hines, Mrs. Vincent See, Mrs. Ray Helmick. Three sisters, Mrs. Robert Stultz, Mrs. Jake Wilson, Mrs. Will Wilson and a brother, Price Cain, all of Moorefield, also survive.

Luther Foltz Dies

Luther Ashby Foltz, 73, died at his home at the Tannery Sunday morning after an illness of several years. Funeral services were held in Lost City yesterday and interment was in the Laurel Hill cemetery.

Mr. Foltz was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foltz and was born in Virginia. His wife, the former Miss Mildred Delawder, survives, as do three daughters, Mrs. Lafe Herbaugh, Mrs. Sam Herbaugh, Mrs. R. J. Whittington of Moorefield, two sons, Owen of Moorefield and Niel of Johnstown, Pa. One sister, Mrs. Carrie See Needmore, and three brothers, Claud of Mathias, David, Needmore, and Neil, Mathias, also survive.

Mr. Foltz was a member of the Brethren church. He was employed by the Union Tanning Company from 1896 to 1936, but for the last few years had been an invalid.

Fees in Clerk's Office

Fees recorded in the office of C. C. Wise, clerk of the court, for the month of December totaled $69.55. Fees recording were $52.55 Fees administrators, $5; resident state-wide hunting and fishing licenses amounted to $12.

Cooperative Meets

The Hardy County Cooperative, Inc., held a meeting Monday night in the office of county agent S. L. Dodd and adopted that name for the successors of the Cooperative Farm Services which ran the local farm bureau prior to the purchase December 30.

At this meeting Attorney H. G. Muntzing was retained as council for the group and the articles for Frostburg, Jan. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lee Rice, this city, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Anna Elizabeth Rice, and George Carl Storm, Tuesday, Jan .16, at 7 p. m., in Zion Evangelical and Reformed church, East Main street.

Preceding the marriage ceremony, which will be performed by the Rev. Irvin F. Kracke, there will be an organ prelude, commencing at 6:45 o'clock, by Mrs. Lillian Speir Stewart, and Mrs. Harry C. Ort will sing "At Dawning" and "Because."

The bride will be attended by Mrs. Harry C. Ort, her aunt, as matron of honor, and Miss Dorothy Lloyd and Miss Mary Townsend as bridesmaids. Louis Ort, LaVale, and Thomas Lloyd, Cumberland, a cousin of the bride-elect, will be ushers. Harry C. Ort will be best man.

A reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Ort, Eckhart Flat, immediately after the ceremony.

After spending their honeymoon in New York, the couple will make their home at 72 Washington street, this city.

Mrs. Beall Dies

Mrs. Emily Beall, widow of the Rev. J. N. Beall, D. D., pastor of the Presbyterian church, this city, from 1908 to 1918, died Friday at her home in Los Angeles, Calif., and was buried Monday.

Mrs. Beall was the last member of her family, her only son, Royal Beall, having died about two years ago. Her death resulted from a long illness, beginning last June when she fell and broke her hip.

While a resident of this city, Mrs. Beall was popular among church women of the community and also in Eastern Star circles.

Frostburg Briefs

The Frostburg Chapter, Woman's Christian Temperance Union, will meet Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Karl H. Beck, Broadway.

The Frostburg fire department responded to a call yesterday from the residence of Upton B. F. Edwards, West Main street, where flames from a gas hotplate in the basement ignited the rafters. The damage was slight.

Frostburg Personals

Mrs. Cinderella Kear, Welsh Hill ill for several months from a paralytic stroke, is able to walk about her home.

Dr. J. C. Pfeiffer, dentist, is ill at his home, West Loo street.

Mrs. Herman Wilson, confined to her home, Hill street, with bronchitis, is greatly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kemp and daughter, Nancy Lee, returned to Isabella, Pa., after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Grant Durst, South Water street.

Mrs. Edward Jenkins, 92 Main street, is a patient at Memorial hospital, Cumberland.

Miss Betty Benson, Springfield, W. Va., and Miss Nancy Lee Kemp, Isabella, Pa., were guests of Miss Betty Price, West Mechanic street.

Principal's Sister Dies

Arthur W. Taylor, principal of Beall high school, received word today of the sudden death of his sister, Mrs. Esther Walters, Newport News, Va. She and her husband, Joseph Walters, were guests at the Taylor residence, Frost avenue, last summer. Mr. Taylor left to attend the funeral.

West Virginia Gets Quantity of Foodstuff

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—West Virginia received 29,102,792 pounds of foodstuffs from the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation for distribution to persons on relief during the last fiscal year.

The report of the FSCC for the year ended last June 30 disclosed its donations of surplus foodstuffs for relief purposes in all states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands amounted to 1,970,079,155 pounds purchased at a cost of about $66,500,000 to relieve depressed agricultural markets.

In states near West Virginia these amounts were distributed: Ohio, 96,345,463 pounds; Kentucky, 42,498,757 pounds; Pennsylvania, 90,104,910 pounds; Maryland, 12,383,060 pounds; Virginia, 15,570,254 pounds.

Theater Owners Back Neely's Booking Bill

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—The Independent Theater Owners Association of West Virginia endorsed today Senator M. M. Neely's bill to outlaw block booking of motion pictures and urged support of the measure.

The proposal sponsored by the West Virginia senator would make it illegal to contract for pictures "blind."

Central Leads County Schools In Attendance

Lonaconing School High in Senior Division; Tied in Two Others

Lonaconing, Jan. 10 — Central senior high school last month led the county in attendance for the second consecutive month.

In the two other departments the local school was also high, although tied in one by Barton and in the other by Ellerslie.

Within the school, Miss Elizabeth Meyer's room, with a percentage of 99, received first place. Miss Martha Engle's room ranked first in the high school section with 98.4 per cent, and Miss Nora Geary's room first in the junior high with 96.7 per cent.

In the high school grades, John H. Armstrong's room ranked second in attendance, with 97.8 per cent. Mrs. Lois MacMannis' room was third with 97.7 per cent and Mrs. Hilda Byers' room fourth. For the junior high grades Miss Elizabeth Love's room was second, with a 96.3 per cent. In the elementary division Miss Margaret Hohing's room took second honors with a percentage of 98.4.

Up until this year the Barton high school had been leading the county in the senior high school attendance for fourteen consecutive months. Since the opening of the present term, Central and Barton have been on top together until the last two months, when Central came through for two high percentages.

Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Stewart entertained Monday in honor of the second birthday of their son, Gene.

Attending were: Mrs. William Stewart, Cumberland; Mrs. John Lookbaugh, Mrs. Evan Humphrey, Mr. and Mrs. John Pastor, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Saville, Mrs. Pheobe Robey, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart.

Hi-Y Meets

The regular meeting of the Hi-Y Club of Central high school Monday evening was featured by a quiz on aviation by James Gowans.

New Year resolution for the Hi-Y club in 1940 were presented by Earl Kelly. William Getson presented the discoveries of 1939, and jokes were given by James Nichols. Prayer and Scripture were conducted by Eddie Nolan.

Sledding Made Safe in Midland By Commissioners

Officials Ask WPA for 600 Foot Flood Control Wall

Midland, Jan. 10.—The mayor and commissioners met in regular session Monday evening. The first act of business to be decided upon was the closing of Big Lane to vehicular traffic so that children may sled ride in safety.

This was promptly carried and parents may now feel more secure in allowing their children to use their sleds. Traffic on Paradise street is being detoured via the lane by the Presbyterian church and up the dairy road.

An application has been sent to Henry W. Tarring, resident WPA engineer, Cumberland, for a project to erect a 600-foot flood control wall along George's Creek. The proposed site of the wall is from the rear of the Thomas H. Taylor residence to the ball park. The height of the structure is to be six feet.

A new law, titled Ordinance No. 35, will soon go into effect. The final draft of the bill is being made by Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, county health director.

It will allow the dairies delivering milk in the town limits to label their milk as Grade A milk if the requirements set forth in the state laws are being complied with. Inspection of these dairies will remain a duty of the county health office.

It was announced that a total of $57.50 had been raised by subscription for the past Christmas Community Fund. After the children's treat, $16.50 still remains in the hands of the council. The council has decided to make this affair an annual event and will spend the residue of this year's fund for a set of Christmas tree light stringers.

Flue Fire Squelched In Opera House

A flue fire last evening at the Midland Opera House caused a great deal of excitement but little damage. Flying sparks threatened neighboring buildings for a while but they were quickly extinguished by the firemen. No financial loss was reported. This is the fourth fire that has been attended by the fire company this year.

Firemen To Dance

The dance at the Firemen's hall this Friday night will be featured by a floor show at 10 o'clock. Samuel Washington, Rebecca Davis, Clifton Green and Roena Washington, of Piedmont, will show the audience how dancing should be done. Gilmore's orchestra will play.

Contracts Made

James Taylor and Joseph Jones, operators of the Midland Opera House theater, announce the completion of several new studio contracts. Patrons of the theater will see pictures supplied by Fox, Paramount, Metro Goldwyn Mayer, Warner Bros., Columbia, United Artists and Republic Studios. As has been the custom in the past, movies will be shown from time to time for the benefit of the local churches.

Societies Protest High-Lift Dams

Parkersburg, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—Historical socities have added their protests to those of steamboat operators and pilots against construction of further high-lift dams on the Ohio river.

The historians fear the United States Engineers proposal to erect one of four projected dams in the central part of the Ohio valley may cause the inundation of famed Blennerhasset Island.

Engineers retort, however, that the site of the roller-type dam is only tenative and that congress has yet to authorize the work. Such a dam creates deeper pools backing up water for 10 or 20 miles.

Pay Day Wednesday For 127 Law Makers

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—Next Wednesday is pay day for the 127 members of the West Virginia legislature and the bill comes to $63,000.

For all but 16 "holdover" senators (elected two years ago), it will be the last pay before the general elections.

Senators and delegates are paid $500 a year—on the third Wednesday in January.

Crossing Crash Kills Two Women Near Pine Grove

B. & O. Locomotive Drags Car 600 Feet over Trestle

Pine Grove, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—A railroad crossing crash killed two women and critically injured two other persons today three miles east of Pine Grove. A fifth occupant of the automobile apparently was unhurt.

The Baltimore and Ohio locomotive dragged the car for 600 feet and over a small trestle.

The dead:

Mrs. Mary Toothman, 72, Jacksonburg, Wetzel county, fractured skull.

Mrs. Loretta Mansfield, 42, Jacksonburg, formerly of Menningo, broken neck.

Clifford Mansfield, 47, World War veteran and husband of Mrs. Mansfield, suffered a badly crushed foot. He was taken to a Martinsville hospital, where doctors said amputation might be necessary.

Miss Goldie Toothman, 30, daughter of the other dead woman, was taken to the hospital for treatment of undetermined injuries.

Barbara Dean Mansfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield, apparently was not hurt in the crash.

State Trooper W. E. Oldham said Mrs. Toothman had asked Mansfield to drive her daughter Miss Spencer for hospital treatment and that the others went along for the trip.

List of Fatalities Climb to Eight in W. Va. 11-Day Cold Snap

Low Temperatures Recorded at Keyser, Other Cities

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—The list of fatalities for West Virginia's 11-day wintry spell climbed to eight today with the deaths of two more persons, one from sleigh riding injuries and another from asphyxiation.

Record low temperatures were recorded in at least two places as most of the state experienced continued cold but no more snow.

Joseph Amania, 36-year-old Columbus, O., truck driver, was found unconscious in the cab of his truck near Huntington and died a short time later. The motor was running and the windows were closed.

At Welch, Floyd Garman Christian, 9, of Thorpe, died of a fractured skull received Monday when his sled went over a high wall.

In all, there have been three coasting deaths, one child burned to death, one person fatally injured in a fall, one exposure death and two asphxiations from carbon monoxide since December 31.

Charleston, Huntington and Keyser had the lowest temperatures, all of them close to the freezing mark.

The coldest spot in the state was Bramwell, Mercer county, which had a low reading of zero. Martinsburg also had a season low of nine degrees.

Hot Lunches To Be Served To School Pupils

Project To Be Sponsored By Hardy County Groups

Moorefield, W. Va., Jan. 10.—The project sponsored by the state and local boards of education and the Parent-Teacher association in cooperation with the WPA, for serving hot lunches to the children of Hardy county schools will begin to function Monday.

The project gets under way Wednesday with the appointment of cooks and the establishment of quarters.

The plan is to start with the Moorefield school and later have centers at Wardensville, Mathias, Baker and other points where there is a demand and a need.

In Moorefield the lunches will be served at the Town Hall and it is expected there will be eighty or 100 children taking advantage of the opportunity. Needy children will be served free of charge; those who can afford to pay will be charged a small fee per meal or may pay in commodities.

Mrs. R. K. McNeill is supervisor with Mrs. Edna Buena Ganoe and Mrs. Jennie Roomer as assistants.

This project offers an excellent opportunity for undernourished children to obtain needed vitamins and should be a boon to those children who are brought in on the school buses and have only a cold lunch.

Scouts To Show Planes

The Boy Scouts are looking for a store window where they can set up models of airplanes for display. They are making excellent progress in their airplane club and would like to show the people of Moorefield what they have done. All they need is display space.

On January 29, leaders and committeemen of the South Branch district of the Potomac Council will hold a dinner conference at the McNeill hotel. This district is composed of Romney, Moorefield, Lost River and Petersburg.

Safety Drive Continues

The safety campaign for the local school took a step forward last week when children in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades went on patrol duty at crossings when school is dismissed.

Raymond Sindy, who is in charge of this selects six boys every three days who have shown merit in their regular school work and the work in their safety class and sends them out on patrol duty.

These boys wear white patrolman belts and watch other children across crossings and slow up traffic for safety's sake.

Central Leads County Schools In Attendance

Lonaconing School High in Senior Division; Tied in Two Others

Lonaconing, Jan. 10 — Central senior high school last month led the county in attendance for the second consecutive month.

In the two other departments the local school was also high, although tied in one by Barton and in the other by Ellerslie.

Within the school, Miss Elizabeth Meyer's room, with a percentage of 99, received first place. Miss Martha Engle's room ranked first in the high school section with 98.4 per cent, and Miss Nora Geary's room first in the junior high with 96.7 per cent.

In the high school grades, John H. Armstrong's room ranked second in attendance, with 97.8 per cent. Mrs. Lois MacMannis' room was third with 97.7 per cent and Mrs. Hilda Byers' room fourth. For the junior high grades Miss Elizabeth Love's room was second, with a 96.3 per cent. In the elementary division Miss Margaret Hohing's room took second honors with a percentage of 98.4.

Up until this year the Barton high school had been leading the county in the senior high school attendance for fourteen consecutive months. Since the opening of the present term, Central and Barton have been on top together until the last two months, when Central came through for two high percentages.

Sledding Made Safe in Midland By Commissioners

Officials Ask WPA for 600 Foot Flood Control Wall

Midland, Jan. 10.—The mayor and commissioners met in regular session Monday evening. The first act of business to be decided upon was the closing of Big Lane to vehicular traffic so that children may sled ride in safety.

This was promptly carried and parents may now feel more secure in allowing their children to use their sleds. Traffic on Paradise street is being detoured via the lane by the Presbyterian church and up the dairy road.

An application has been sent to Henry W. Tarring, resident WPA engineer, Cumberland, for a project to erect a 600-foot flood control wall along George's Creek. The proposed site of the wall is from the rear of the Thomas H. Taylor residence to the ball park. The height of the structure is to be six feet.

A new law, titled Ordinance No. 35, will soon go into effect. The final draft of the bill is being made by Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, county health director.

It will allow the dairies delivering milk in the town limits to label their milk as Grade A milk if the requirements set forth in the state laws are being complied with. Inspection of these dairies will remain a duty of the county health office.

It was announced that a total of $57.50 had been raised by subscription for the past Christmas Community Fund. After the children's treat, $16.50 still remains in the hands of the council. The council has decided to make this affair an annual event and will spend the residue of this year's fund for a set of Christmas tree light stringers.

Flue Fire Squelched In Opera House

A flue fire last evening at the Midland Opera House caused a great deal of excitement but little damage. Flying sparks threatened neighboring buildings for a while but they were quickly extinguished by the firemen. No financial loss was reported. This is the fourth fire that has been attended by the fire company this year.

Firemen To Dance

The dance at the Firemen's hall this Friday night will be featured by a floor show at 10 o'clock. Samuel Washington, Rebecca Davis, Clifton Green and Roena Washington, of Piedmont, will show the audience how dancing should be done. Gilmore's orchestra will play.

Contracts Made

James Taylor and Joseph Jones, operators of the Midland Opera House theater, announce the completion of several new studio contracts. Patrons of the theater will see pictures supplied by Fox, Paramount, Metro Goldwyn Mayer, Warner Bros., Columbia, United Artists and Republic Studios. As has been the custom in the past, movies will be shown from time to time for the benefit of the local churches.

Societies Protest High-Lift Dams

Parkersburg, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—Historical socities have added their protests to those of steamboat operators and pilots against construction of further high-lift dams on the Ohio river.

The historians fear the United States Engineers proposal to erect one of four projected dams in the central part of the Ohio valley may cause the inundation of famed Blennerhasset Island.

Engineers retort, however, that the site of the roller-type dam is only tenative and that congress has yet to authorize the work. Such a dam creates deeper pools backing up water for 10 or 20 miles.

Pay Day Wednesday For 127 Law Makers

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 10 (AP)—Next Wednesday is pay day for the 127 members of the West Virginia legislature and the bill comes to $63,000.

For all but 16 "holdover" senators (elected two years ago), it will be the last pay before the general elections.

Senators and delegates are paid $500 a year—on the third Wednesday in January.

Barton Library Report Made

Sponsors, WPA Given Report by Mildred Kirkpatrick

Barton, Jan. 10—Yearly report of the Barton School-Community library to its sponsors and the Works Projects Administration, for 1939, has been made known by the librarian, Mrs. Mildred Kirkpatrick.

The library was opened Feb. 9, 1939, and the circulation from that time until December 31, 1939, was 19,564 books. The number of books mended was 2,048. Total books accessioned 2,101, and the total number of books cataloged, 999.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, also held throughout the different grades of the elementary and junior high school, 317 Story Hours during the year. She put on during Book Week an Assembly program pertinent to the story hour.

The largest circulation for any month was during March, 1939, when 2,643 books were read by the boys and girls of the school and members of the community.

This is only part of the service the library has performed. They receive daily newspapers and most of the approved magazines. From now on the library will be open Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 until 9 o'clock. With NYA assistance they are now mounting some 20,000 pictures of educational value for the Allegany County Board of Education.

Each month during the past year the librarian has made a special bulletin board display which has attracted a great deal of favorable comment. A large number of new books are being purchased and will be upon the shelves in the next several weeks.

Scouts to Hike and Ski

The Barton Boy Scouts, Troop No. 10, at its last meeting, Tuesday evening, decided to spend a number of Sunday afternoons during the next two months at the New Germany Winter Playground.

Here the boys will undergo a series of lessons to learn the art of skiing and skating. Tobaggan rides and different scout tests, accompanied by a series of hikes will complete the winter program. Transportation will be furnished after church service each Sunday, for the active members of the troop.

Scoutmaster Cooper announced that all the active boys had earned their re-registration fees and enough money to pay their dues up to December 31, 1939. During the past two years each Boy Scout has earned enough money to purchase his uniform, take two camping trips, six over-night hikes, and to conduct numerous other activities. Because of the cooperation of the school and community, any boy who has been willing to work has had an opportunity to enjoy all the activities. Besides earning money for their own needs and entertainment, the scouts have also assisted in various money raising plays and have donated a number of pine trees to the community and planted same.

During the hard winter the local scouts have assisted the game wardens and assistant scoutmasters in preparing and keeping many game shelters.

In as small a town as Barton, the scouts have made a name for themselves and today hold the distinction of being one of the largest troops in the country in accord with population.

Kiwanis Group Plans Big Program At Petersburg

Prominent Grant County Citizens To Address Organization

Petersburg, Jan. 10 — Chairman Eston K. Feaster of the local Kiwanis program committee has announced the following important plans of his committee for the year 1940:

Once each month, and continuing throughout the year, an outstanding citizen of Grant County will be invited to address the Petersburg Kiwanis group at its regular weekly meetings and thus represent the home community before the club.

Selected to inaugurate this series of addresses will be Mayor S. O. Feaster, Maysville, who will speak before the club, Friday evening, January 12, at the Hermitage Inn.

A special Kiwanis anniversary week program will be held by the local club on Friday evening, January 19. The feature of this meeting, in addition to special musical numbers, will be the formal reception of new members into the Club.

In keeping with the objective of Kiwanis International and the local club of citizenship responsibility during the year 1940, plans have been laid for the holding of an essay contest open to all high school and elementary pupils of Grant county, with suitable first and second awards for each group, on the subject: "My Responsibilities As An American Citizen".

Three members of the Kiwanis club will constitute the grading board and all essays must be submitted by April 26th with awards being made at Graduation Exercises.

4-H Club Meets

The Alleghany Chieftains 4-H Club met Monday at the Mt. Storm school. The meeting was called to order by the president, Elizabeth Head, and was opened by singing "West Virginia Boys and Girls."

Dorothy Buchanan led the club in repeating the 4-H Pledge. The following program was given: "O, Come All Ye Faithful," by the Club; Poem, Waneda Cosner; Demonstrations "How to Wrap Gifts Attractively", Elizabeth Head; Story, Jean Elrick, and song by Club. Games were played following the meeting.

Prepare for Ball

Preparations are underway here for the President's Birthday Ball, given throughout the country January 30, for the benefit of infantile paralysis cases.

T. J. Grove will head the local committee and has appointed the following to assist: James Breathed, music; Donald Baker, decorations, Justin Arnold, tickets and Ralph Welton, publicity. For Hardy County, John McNeil; Pendleton County, Edwin Johnson and Hampshire County, Junior Baker, have been appointed as chairmen. Eighty percent of the proceeds from the ball will be left for local work among our needy children in Grant County, which has been used under the direction of the Kiwanis Club in the past.

Petersburg Briefs

Mrs. W. T. Moomau was rushed to the Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg, Va., for an appendix operation. Her husband, W. T. Moomau, accompanied her and will remain there for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Muntzing and Justin Arnold attended a meeting at Clarksburg last night of the Kiwanis Club for District Installation at the Stonewall Jackson Hotel.

Grant Patterson, Maysville, was operated on yesterday morning at the office of Doctor V. L. Dyer, and his wife is nursing him.

Mid-semester examinations are being given today, tomorrow and Friday in the high schools of the county.

Miss Elizabeth Smith, Roy Harman and Merlin Bergdoll have returned to Morgantown where they are attending school at the West Virginia University.

Mrs. Maggie Sites is a patient in the King Clinic Hospital here for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Snyder and children have returned to Bayard after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Noah Snyder, Lahmansville, W. Va.

Miss Wilda Bergdoll, R. N., Cincinnati, Ohio, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bergdoll, has returned.

Brook Hogbin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hogbin, Petersburg, W. Va., and Miss Dorothy Ruble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ruble, Martinsburg, W. Va., were married in Winchester, Virginia, Saturday. Mrs. Hogbin was an assistant at the Ritz Beauty Salon

Noah Brennan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Brennan, Arthur, W. Va., and Miss Lyda Kessel, Lahmansville, W. Va., were married at Keyser, W. Va., December 23 it has just been announced. They will reside at Arthur.

Mrs. Bessie Cornell, Arthur, W. Va., who has been visiting in Baltimore, has returned home.

Cecil Sites, Franklin, W. Va., is having erected on his lot in Jefferson Heights a dwelling house.

Mrs. Susan Anna Leach is teaching as substitute for Mrs. Jerry Markwood in the Open Ridge school on Alleghany Mountain for several months.

Mrs. L. M. Hutson who was operated on at the Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, several weeks ago, was able to be removed to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Bright, Keyser, W. Va., recently, where she will remain for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Strawderman have returned from Baltimore, Maryland, on business.

Born last night to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dayton, Lahmansville, W. Va., twins. Mrs. Dayton before her marriage was Miss Nellie Dettinburn.

News Will Forward Funds to the Finns

To make possible the collection of funds without cost for relief of suffering and destitution in Finland, the Cumberland News will be happy to forward contributions promptly to the national headquarters of the campaign undertaken by former president Herbert Hoover in co-operation with the Red Cross.

All gifts and checks should be addressed:

Finnish Relief Fund,
c-o Cumberland News
Cumberland, Md.

Every gift to the Finnish people is welcomed in the spirit of Mr. Hoover's appeal: "I hope those who can afford it will contribute generously. Contributions, no matter how small, are evidences of our sympathy."

Hot Lunches

the constitution and by-laws were discussed.

Plans were made to call in the Cooperative Farm Service stock for which they will issue receipts until stock in the local company can be issued. It was decided to make par value on the new stock $10 and to issue ten shares for one share of the $100 par value stock.

Incorporation will be completed as quickly as the legal formalities can be complied with.

Appointment Made

Mrs. Rose McWhorter has been appointed county chairman for the celebration for the President's birthday. Grant county has planned a birthday ball to be held January 30, and since it would be difficult to have two such balls so close together, Mrs. McWhorter has decided to concentrate on the "Mile of Dimes" campaign.

Mrs. Joseph Frye of Wardensville and Rev. C. W. Ambrose of Lost River have been appointed to assist as co-chairman in their sections of the county.

Cards will be sent out through the Boy Scouts and all who are willing to assist in the fight against infantile paralysis are asked to send those cards with dimes to Washington. There the cards will be checked and half the amount sent in will be set aside and earmarked for Hardy county. Half will go to the national fund.

Because Hardy county has not been the scene of an epidemic does mean that infantile paralysis will never strike and it is extremely necessary that Hardy county have something credited to its account for clinics when the need arises.

The land around London was sixty to seventy feet higher in the late stone age than now, and is sinking at the rate of nine inches every century.

hey felt if bass were put in the e a large number would go down ular Lick and on to Savage r, as such had been the case h trout stocked there. If bass e put in the lake, Mr. Bucking- n suggested that fishing should prohibited except during bass son and then permit both bass trout fishing or the trout would n over-run the lake. However, as stocking is done by the Con- vation Commission, the matter referred to them.

Mr. Fulcher P. Smith also sub- ted a number of questions for opinion of the local sportsmen. e only one which was taken up any length was "Should we adopt State-Wide Hunting license, of $2, and abolish the present nty license." Mr. Smith was oted as being in favor of this. the local sportsmen seemed to unanimously opposed to the idea. few of the other questions were: our present squirrel law an im- vement; Should daily limits on bits be reduced to four per day; uld groundhog and fox hunting licensed; certain matters per- ning to dog licenses and training; rking of hides; Should dove sea- be closed in Garrett county.

No definite opinions were express- regarding these however and the ainder of the questions were de- red until their next meeting, Feb- ary 13. It was announced that one desiring changes in the pres- game laws should make their gestions to Harry C. Edwards, irman of the legislative commit- as early as possible.

Barton Library Report Made

Sponsors, WPA Given Report by Mildred Kirkpatrick

Barton, Jan. 10—Yearly report of the Barton School-Community library to its sponsors and the Works Projects Administration, for 1939, has been made known by the librarian, Mrs. Mildred Kirkpatrick.

The library was opened Feb. 9, 1939, and the circulation from that time until December 31, 1939, was 19,564 books. The number of books mended was 2,048. Total books accessioned 2,101, and the total number of books cataloged, 999.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, also held throughout the different grades of the elementary and junior high school, 317 Story Hours during the year. She put on during Book Week an Assembly program pertinent to the story hour.

The largest circulation for any month was during March, 1939, when 2,643 books were read by the boys and girls of the school and members of the community.

This is only part of the service the library has performed. They receive daily newspapers and most of the approved magazines. From now on the library will be open Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 until 9 o'clock. With NYA assistance they are now mounting some 20,000 pictures of educational value for the Allegany County Board of Education.

Each month during the past year the librarian has made a special bulletin board display which has attracted a great deal of favorable comment. A large number of new books are being purchased and will be upon the shelves in the next several weeks.

Scouts to Hike and Ski

The Barton Boy Scouts, Troop No. 10, at its last meeting, Tuesday evening, decided to spend a number of Sunday afternoons during the next two months at the New Germany Winter Playground.

Here the boys will undergo a series of lessons to learn the art of skiing and skating. Tobaggan rides and different scout tests, accompanied by a series of hikes will complete the winter program. Transportation will be furnished after church service each Sunday, for the active members of the troop.

Scoutmaster Cooper announced that all the active boys had earned their re-registration fees and enough money to pay their dues up to December 31, 1939. During the past two years each Boy Scout has earned enough money to purchase his uniform, take two camping trips, six over-night hikes, and to conduct numerous other activities. Because of the cooperation of the school and community, any boy who has been willing to work has had an opportunity to enjoy all the activities. Besides earning money for their own needs and entertainment, the scouts have also assisted in various money raising plays and have donated a number of pine trees to the community and planted same.

During the hard winter the local scouts have assisted the game wardens and assistant scoutmasters in preparing and keeping many game shelters.

In as small a town as Barton, the scouts have made a name for themselves and today hold the distinction of being one of the largest troops in the country in accord with population.

Kiwanis Group Plans Big Program At Petersburg

Prominent Grant County Citizens To Address Organization

Petersburg, Jan. 10 — Chairman Elston K. Feaster of the local Kiwanis program committee has announced the following important plans of his committee for the year 1940:

Once each month, and continuing throughout the year, an outstanding citizen of Grant County will be invited to address the Petersburg Kiwanis group at its regular weekly meetings and thus represent the home community before the club.

Selected to inaugurate this series of addresses will be Mayor S. O. Feaster, Maysville, who will speak before the club, Friday evening, January 12, at the Hermitage Inn.

A special Kiwanis anniversary week program will be held by the local club on Friday evening, January 19. The feature of this meeting, in addition to special musical numbers, will be the formal reception of new members into the Club.

In keeping with the objective of Kiwanis International and the local club of citizenship responsibility during the year 1940, plans have been laid for the holding of an essay contest open to all high school and elementary pupils of Grant county, with suitable first and second awards for each group, on the subject: "My Responsibilities As An American Citizen".

Three members of the Kiwanis club will constitute the grading board and all essays must be submitted by April 26th with awards being made at Graduation Exercises.

4-H Club Meets

The Alleghany Chieftains 4-H Club met Monday at the Mt. Storm school. The meeting was called to order by the president, Elizabeth Head, and was opened by singing "West Virginia Boys and Girls."

Dorothy Buchanan led the club in repeating the 4-H Pledge. The following program was given: "O, Come All Ye Faithful," by the Club; Poem, Waneda Cosner; Demonstrations "How to Wrap Gifts Attractively", Elizabeth Head; Story, Jean Elrick, and song by Club. Games were played following the meeting.

Prepare for Ball

Preparations are underway here for the President's Birthday Ball, given throughout the country January 30, for the benefit of infantile paralysis cases.

T. J. Grove will head the local committee and has appointed the following to assist: James Breathed, music; Donald Baker, decorations, Justin Arnold, tickets and Ralph Welton, publicity. For Hardy County, John McNeil; Pendleton County, Edwin Johnson and Hampshire County, Junior Baker, have been appointed as chairmen. Eighty percent of the proceeds from the ball will be left for local work among our needy children in Grant County, which has been used under the direction of the Kiwanis Club in the past.

Petersburg Briefs

Mrs. W. T. Moomau was rushed to the Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg, Va., for an appendix operation. Her husband, W. T. Moomau, accompanied her and will remain there for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Muntzing and Justin Arnold attended a meeting at Clarksburg last night of the Kiwanis Club for District Installation at the Stonewall Jackson Hotel.

Grant Patterson, Maysville, was operated on yesterday morning at the office of Doctor V. L. Dyer, and his wife is nursing him.

Mid-semester examinations are being given today, tomorrow and Friday in the high schools of the county.

News Will Forward Funds to the Finns

To make possible the collection of funds without cost for relief of suffering and destitution in Finland, the Cumberland News will be happy to forward contributions promptly to the national headquarters of the campaign undertaken by former president Herbert Hoover in co-operation with the Red Cross.

All gifts and checks should be addressed:

Finnish Relief Fund,
c-o Cumberland News
Cumberland, Md.

Every gift to the Finnish people is welcomed in the spirit of Mr. Hoover's appeal: "I hope those who can afford it will contribute generously. Contributions, no matter how small, are evidences of our sympathy."

Hot Lunches

the constitution and by-laws were discussed.

Plans were made to call in the Cooperative Farm Service stock for which they will issue receipts until stock in the local company can be issued. It was decided to make par value on the new stock $10 and to issue ten shares for one share of the $100 par value stock.

Incorporation will be completed as quickly as the legal formalities can be complied with.

Appointment Made

Mrs. Rose McWhorter has been appointed county chairman for the celebration for the President's birthday. Grant county has planned a birthday ball to be held January 30, and since it would be difficult to have two such balls so close together, Mrs. McWhorter has decided to concentrate on the "Mile of Dimes" campaign.

Mrs. Joseph Frye of Wardensville and Rev. C. W. Ambrose of Lost River have been appointed to assist as co-chairman in their sections of the county.

Cards will be sent out through the Boy Scouts and all who are willing to assist in the fight against infantile paralysis are asked to send those cards with dimes to Washington. There the cards will be checked and half the amount sent in will be set aside and earmarked for Hardy county. Half will go to the national fund.

Because Hardy county has not been the scene of an epidemic does mean that infantile paralysis will never strike and it is extremely necessary that Hardy county have something credited to its account for clinics when the need arises.

The land around London was sixty to seventy feet higher in the late stone age than now, and is sinking at the rate of nine inches every century.

Park Crew Busy Building More Picnic Tables

Cold Weather Fails To Halt Preparations For Summer Frolics

More benches and more tables are being built at Constitution Park these cold wintry days in anticipation of bigger and better picnics when summer comes, City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer said yesterday.

At the present time a crew of sixteen WPA workers is busy building the new equipment. A new fence around the baseball diamond has been completed.

Two Park Police on Duty

The fence, built of chestnut and oak, was put up mainly to keep cars and people off the diamond when the frost comes out of the ground this spring.

Two full-time policemen are now working at the park to discourage vandalism, Rizer said.

In the past, visitors have torn the legs off benches and tables for fires and have shot out the lights with rifles, Rizer said.

Vandals Warned

Any future acts of vandalism will result in vigorous prosecution, Rizer added.

STUDY IN SORROW—These are the Bartlett sisters, whose home near Oldtown was destroyed by fire yesterday and whose only brother, Roy, 9, was burned to death. The girls are Frances, 10, Margaret, 2, and Mary Ellen, 8. Their father, laid up with a broken leg, had to roll out a window. Their mother saved Margaret.—News Staff Photo.

O'Conor Reports On His First Year

Says He Is More Sure Than Ever of Accomplishing Objectives

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 10. (AP)—Governor O'Conor tonight reported on affairs of the state at the end of his first year in office, asserting his experience made him feel more certain that his objectives of a year ago could be fulfilled.

In a speech prepared for a radio broadcast, the governor summarized the improvements made during the year and declared:

"My purpose and aims, in administering your affairs, are identically the same as those which I charted one year ago.

"While I freely recognize and admit my limitations, that only should be further incentive to strive harder and reach the goal. With your help and cooperation success can unquestionably be attained for the betterment of the state of Maryland."

O'Conor declared "very frankly that we have not succeeded in accomplishing all that this administration has undertaken to achieve. Much remains to be done, but this much can be said without fear of successful contradiction—substantial progress has been made and, in addition to the reforms already completed, a measurable step has been taken toward fulfillment of the other pledges and promises made at the outset of the administration."

"At the very outset emphasis was laid upon the acute fiscal situation confronting the state, and it was promised that the unsatisfactory state of our finances then existing should be corrected. . . ."

In correcting the state's fiscal affairs, O'Conor said, the budget had been balanced and at the close of the year there had been a surplus of $4,467,625. The funded debt has been reduced more than $2,000,000.

B&O Machinist Breaks Seven Bones in Foot As Drive Shaft Falls

A 63-year-old B. and O. machinist suffered seven broken bones in his left foot late yesterday afternoon in an accident at the South Cumberland shops.

John W. Miles, of South Connellsville, Pa., was admitted to Allegany hospital after a drive shaft fell on his foot. His condition was reported "good" last night.

Second National Bank Re-Elects Officers

Directors of the Second National Bank yesterday re-elected Tasker G. Lowndes to serve as president for 1940.

Other officers re-elected were Charles E. Metz, cashier; Allan B. Spier, assistant cashier and trust officer; Ralph D. Broadup, assistant cashier, and Ralph Willard, assistant trust officer.

Republican Club To Meet At 8 O'Clock Tonight

A meeting of the Sixth District Republican Club will be held at 8 o'clock this evening at the Knights of Malta hall, Prospect Square.

Several items of interest will come up for consideration, and the officers urge all members to attend.

Republican voters of the district not yet affiliated with the club are cordially invited to be present.

Family Loses Only Son As Fire Destroys Home

Tragedy which moved in with an Oldtown road family last Aug. 7 struck again yesterday, as flames destroyed the home and its contents and burned the only son to death.

It was on Aug. 7, during the terrific cloud burst that broke over Cumberland at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, that Charles Bartlett, driving a delivery motorcycle for a super-market, smashed his left leg in a crash with a car.

Until a month ago, he was in Allegany hospital. Meanwhile, the family of six had to live, so the relief allotted them $35 a month for rent and food.

Father Still Laid Up

It takes a long time for a compound fracture to get well. Mr. Bartlett, who is 36, was still laid up, unable to help, unable to save his son, when disaster came yesterday.

The older children, Frances, 10, and Mary Ellen, 8, had left for the Oldtown school, several miles away. Charles Roy, 9, was playing around the house, Baby Margaret, 2, was playing in the kitchen, Mrs. Bartlett, 33, had put some coal in the kitchen stove and gone into the dining room.

Father Gives Alarm

Mr. Bartlett was lying in the bedroom. There's not much else a fellow with his leg in a cast can do. He was watching the crack under the door to the kitchen. A strange glow was coming through. It got brighter.

The man raised himself up in bed and opened the door. That side of the kitchen had burst into flames.

"Hey, Tillie," he called, and screamed.

Mrs. Bartlett ran into the kitchen. "I hadn't smelled smoke or heard a thing before," she said later.

Mother Saves Baby

"Run, run outside", she told the boy. Then she snatched up the baby and some clothes and fled through the blazing kitchen to safety.

The injured man, having shut the door to keep back the flames, pulled on some clothes, crawled to the window, and rolled out.

Young Thomas Davis and other neighbors came running to the scene. Was everybody out?

Roy? Where's Roy? His mother thought he had come on out. But he wasn't there. He had run into the other bedroom, his bedroom, instead of for the door to safety.

Young Davis ran to the kitchen door and kicked it in. Flames shot out and he could not enter.

Mother Held Back

Mrs. Bartlett started for the house. "Don't you can't help now," said her husband, and they held her back.

Soon the four-room house was only a heap of ashes and twisted bed frames. Neighbors were able to save a shed by throwing snow on it.

Nothing else had been saved except a bundle of clean clothes for the older girls, which the mother carried out.

The body of the boy was not recovered until late in the afternoon. The charred remains were taken to a funeral home for burial today.

Family at Relative's Home

Mrs. Bartlett and her baby waited at the home of the Shryocks nearby until the girls came home from school. Later the family was reunited at the home of Miss Mary E. Bartlett, 346 Davidson street. Miss Bartlett is a sister of Mr. Bartlett and an employe of Allegany hospital.

Miss Bartlett owned the home which was destroyed.

The boy who died in the fire was not at school because of an impediment in his speech.

"But he was healthy," his mother said, "and liked to run and play just like any other child."

Cumberland Brewing Co. Stockholders Re-Elect Officers and Directors

All officers and directors were re-elected yesterday at the fiftieth annual meeting of stockholders of the Cumberland Brewing Company at the company offices, 711 North Centre street.

Officers include G. William Bibby president; J. Harold Stitely, vice-president and treasurer; Nelly C. Kelley, secretary; and Walter G. Reighard, assistant treasurer.

Members of the board are G. William Bibby, Tasker G. Lowndes, Walter G. Distler, William R. Hubner and Thomas B. Butler.

4-H Girls Meet At Bowling Green

The Bowling Green Girls 4-H Club met yesterday at the home of Jean Hevner.

Members responded to the roll call with their favorite Christmas gifts.

Damages Granted In Death Crash

Two in Other Car Allowed $1,157

In two suits growing out of an automobile-truck crash July 10, damages totaling $1,157.50 were awarded Warren L. Twigg and his son, Gerald A. Twigg, by Circuit court juries yesterday.

The court had rendered judgments against Harry Johnson by default when he failed to answer the suits docketed by Attorney Elmer B. Gower, and the juries were impanneled only to assess the amount of damages.

The older Twigg, owner and driver of the truck, had asked $3,000 for personal injuries and damage to the vehicle as a result of a collision with a car owned by Johnson. A jury awarded him $1,000.

Damages of $157.50 were granted young Twigg, who had sought $500 for injuries he suffered in the accident.

The crash, which occurred on U S. Route 40 about twenty miles east of here, cost the lives of two: John Johnson, driver of the car and brother of the defendant; and Ruth Alma Pryor, a passenger in the car.

Cumberland Barber Asks Reversal of Judgment In Woman's Auto Death

Attorneys for Raymond H. Coffman, of Cumberland, and Paul E. Powers, of Hancock, argued yesterday before the Court of Appeals for a reversal of the judgment obtained against them by Mr. and Mrs. James W. Reynolds, of Cumberland, for the death of their daughter in an automobile crash.

Miss Mary Reynolds, 27, was kileld Nov. 12, 1938 when Powerss' car, driven by Coffman overturned on U. S. Route 40, fourteen miles east of Hancock.

Testimony was that Coffman, his wife and Miss Reynolds drove from Hancock to Hagerstown and persuaded Powers to join them at a night club. After drinking heavily, Powers, Mrs. Coffman and Miss Reynolds prevailed on Coffman to drive the car, as he had least to drink, testimony showed.

The appellants argued they were engaged in a joint adventure, and that Miss Reynolds was as much responsible for Coffman's driving as any of the party. They held the law covering damages to guests in cars was not applicable, as Mrs. Coffman and Miss Reynolds had arranged the party, and prevailed on the others to attend.

Both appellants are barbers.

Royal Arch Masons Install Officers; Luncheon Follows

William J. Hadra, as high priest, today headed the new officers of Salem Chapter No. 18, Royal Arch Masons.

Other officers installed at Masonic Temple Tuesday night included Cyril M. Croft, king; G. Wyatt Brennaman, scribe; William L. Morgan, treasurer; Douglas H. Bauer, secretary; H. U. F. Keyser, master of the first veil ;and H. Loren Elliott, sentinel.

The ceremony was conducted by John J. Robinson, grand inspector, assisted by William H. Burke as marshal and the past high priests of the chapter.

John E. Tritt, retiring high priest, was presented with a past high priest's jewel by E. Granville Shirley, grand royal arch captain of the Maryland grand chapter, on behalf of Salem chapter.

The ceremony was followed by a luncheon served by McKinley Chapter No. 12, Order of the Eastern Star.

Coal Truck Crack-Down Booms License Sales

Last week's state police crackdown on truckers selling coal without licenses continued to bring results this week in the office of Circuit Court Clerk Robert Jackson.

A total of 89 licenses has been sold since the arrest and conviction of three truckers the latter part of last week. Previously, only ten licenses had been issued since the beginning of the license year July 1.

The total of 99 sold to date exceeds by two the number sold in 1937, the first year the licensing law was in effect. In 1938, the total was only twenty-two.

Railroader Retires after 50 Years, Plans To Catch Up on His Reading

"I'm just going to catch up on my reading," 71-year-old Charles J. White, of 231 Race street, said last night when interviewed about his retirement from the B. & O. after more than fifty years of active service.

Mr. White, born at Oakland, made his last run Dec. 22 from Parkersburg, W. Va., to Cumberland on train No. 4, the crack "Diplomat Special." He was a passenger conductor.

Mr. White started to work for the railroad as a brakeman in 1889 at Keyser, W. Va. He came to Cumberland in 1896 and soon afterwards was promoted to freight conductor. In 1912 he was elevated to passenger conductor.

The death of his wife, Agnes M. White, on Christmas Day, more or less decided the question of his retirement, Mr. White said. He was married forty-eight years ago in Westernport.

Mr. White said he intends to "take it easy" and catch up on his reading matter in the future. He resides with his daughter, Miss Mary B. White, former assistant cashier of the Cumberland Savings Bank.

Masonic Officers To Be Installed

Joint Ceremonies Set for Tonight

Four Cumberland Masonic lodges will install officers for 1940 at a joint ceremony at 7:30 o'clock tonight at Masonic Temple.

R.W. Young Heads Salvation Army Advisory Board

Other Officers Named; Mortgage on Citadel To Be Reduced $1,000

Robert W. Young will serve another year as chairman of the Salvation Army advisory board.

Young was re-nominated and re-elected after Franklin H. Ankeney had been nominated for the post and declined.

Advisory Board Named

An advisory board to serve the coming year was also chosen, the number being increased by two. One member had resigned and two were dropped for non-attendance, while five were added.

The new board comprises thirty members, as follows:

To Reduce Mortgage

Chairman Young announced the appointment of Oliver, Weber and Ankeney as members of the Budget committee.

Resulting from special efforts exerted by the board during the year in raising funds for the purpose and proposals by the Mortgage Reduction committee to raise an extra $100 and by Brigadier Brice L. Phillipson to raise another $200, it was planned to slice the citadel building mortgage by another $1,000. This will bring the debt on the building down to $10,000. The mortgage was originally $20,000. In August, 1937, it amounted to $12,500, $7,500 having been paid during the previous fourteen years. Five hundred dollars was paid March 3, 1918. As a result of the 1938 Mortgage Reduction campaign, $1,000 was paid March 3, 1939.

Stays Within Budget

Through the watchfulness of Brigadier Phillipson, the Army is keeping within its annual budget, which has suffered cuts in recent years owing to a reduction of the allotments made through the Community Chest.

The Army did more work this Christmas season than ever before. Reports of the brigadier showed that 700 toys were distributed among needy children at the toy store in the basement of the citadel. Some 300 new toys were donated this season, which is more than were donated in the two preceding Christmas holidays together.

The public made greater use of the Christmas wrapping service this holiday period than in previous years. A total of 223 packages were wrapped and 361 letters were stamped by Army workers in the post-office lobby. The free will offering from the service amounted to $29.85.

Other Aid Listed

In addition to the 700 toys given children, the Army distributed 100 large baskets of food on Christmas to needy families and furnished other aid as follows:

Garments given, 399; grocery orders given, eight; pairs of shoes given, seventy - three; loaves of bread given, 500; pounds of meat given, 150; families supplied with bread and meat, fifty; office interviews given, 359; consultations with other agencies, fifty-five; aid given families, two; lodgings supplied, twenty - two; meals supplied, 207; women assisted, two; transients assisted, 145.

The other work of the Army, including numerous meetings, class sessions and the like, was continued during December as usual.

School Recreation To Be PTA Topic

The West Side Parent-Teacher Association will hold its monthly meeting Monday at 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cooper will speak on "School as a Recreational Center."

Textile Hall Crowded As Celanese Union Nominates Officers

Nominations for officers of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, were made last night at a membership meeting of the organization at Textile Hall.

The list of nominees will not be made public until Saturday at 5 p. m. Members nominated will have until that time to accept or decline to run for office.

The nominations will be mailed to the membership of the union beginning Saturday night, Jan. 20, and will be counted by the official elections committee on Jan. 30.

This year marks the first time that the Celanese union has conducted an election by mail. Purpose of the new setup is to eliminate cumbersome election machinery and the necessity of having workers come from distant points to vote on election day.

The textile union hall was filled last night for the nomination meeting, which was in charge of President James A. Dundon.

Government Urged By Bruce To Halt Fear in Business

Candidate for Senate Asks Encouragement of Private Capital

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP)—Howard Bruce, candidate for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, urged tonight that the government "remove fear and encourage in every possible way private capital investment which in turn provides employment and production."

He told the eleventh ward Democratic club "the tax bill of 1939 was certainly a step in the right direction. More moves of this character will help."

Bruce said he agreed that public expenditures such as that on WPA accelerated the nation's progress toward recovery, but added that he did not believe the country can boost national income back to $80,000,000,000 by vast spending programs.

"Such spending is not a sound substitute for the operation of private industry," he declared.

"I consider the country's total national income as the nearest approach to a yardstick for measuring its economic condition.

"Too much struggle and dissention over the proper distribution of our national income may actually retard the production and increase of such income with a resulting benefit to no one."

Private Detective's Suit against Topping Thrown Out by Judge

New York, Jan. 10. (AP)—A federal judge today threw out of court the suit filed by a private detective to collect a $5,000 bonus he said Henry J. (Bob) Topping, tin plate heir, owed him for obtaining divorce evidence against Topping's first wife.

The detective, Harold Mayhew, said Topping had promised him a $5,000 bonus "and expenses" for proof of adultry on the part of the first Mrs. Topping, the former actress-aviatrix Jane Shadduck, now Mrs. Richard Durant.

He introduced affidavits by an apartment house superintendent and a negro maid that the No. 1 Mrs. Topping had been intimate with an aviator named Cordova, even allowing servants to address him as "Mr. Topping."

In dismissing the suit and a claim by Mayhew for $235 in expenses, Judge Clarence G. Galston said he felt insufficient evidence had been shown to merit the bonus.

Topping, 26-year old heir to $14,000,000, now is married to the former Gloria Baker, the original society "glamor girls."

Lecompte Asks Aid In Feeding Birds

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP) — State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte went to bat for hungry birds today and appealed to residents in all sections to distribute grain for them while the state is covered with snow.

His department will furnish the grain, but it can't just be scattered around on the snow.

"Birds cannot find the feed on the snow," LeCompte said. "The snow must be scraped to the ground and the feed scattered on the bare ground."

Unless the public responds "the shortage of brood stock for the coming season will be very noticeable," he warned.

David J. Lewis To Stay With Mediation Board

President Roosevelt sent to the Senate yesterday the nomination of David J. Lewis, of Cumberland, former Democratic congressman from the sixth district, to succeed himself as a member of the National (Railway) Mediation Board for the term expiring Feb. 1, 1943, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington.

East Side Firemen Fight Auto Fire

East Side firemen were called yesterday at 2:35 p. m. to Baltimore avenue and Park street when a parked car owned by Mrs. Henrietta C. Naugle, 701 Frederick street, caught fire.

Firemen blamed a lighted cigaret for the blaze. Damage was slight.

Challenge Issued By Allegany's Dramatic Coach

Tell the Truth About Our Play, Says Mr. Wickard

It seems that Allegany h school has something besides a g football team. They have a d matic organization too.

H. C. Wickard, director of d matics at the Campobello insti tion, breezed into the city room the News last night to assert t the school is giving "What a Li Jan. 19 and that "it's going to good."

Issues Challenge

He then laid down a ducat s a challenge, the challenge being invitation to "come and see play and then tell the truth ab it." We hope to.

Judging from Mr. Wickard's marks, the play should prove ra interesting. It seems that teachers at the institution h been drafted to play the part teachers.

Something New

We can't recall ever having s a flock of teachers emoting bef the footlights, although we ha seen them put on some splend performances on Open House da when parents are invited in to how the classes are run.

The Behavior of the teacher interpreted by one should be w worth seeing.

Lewyn Davis, in actual life assistant principal, will play principal. Miss Pearl Eader, cha man of the English departme will depict same. Miss Doro Willison, an instructor of mu will play the part of an instruc of music. Other teachers who simply be themselves are Willia Noland and Albert Loper.

Play's about High School

It appears that Mr. Wickard h done a pretty good job of ty casting.

He observed shrewdly, "You s nobody in this play is going to ha to act. They are just going to ha to act natural and be themselve

"What a Life," according to M Wickard, is a play about a mode high school. It shows how adolescent boy can be constantly trouble and yet do nothing wron

Arthur Lancaster Has Lead

Arthur Lancaster, a senior Allegany, has been selected to pl the part of the adolescent scho boy, Henry Aldrich.

Anybody who was ever a boy w immediately sympathize with youngster going through that hort ble adolescent period. It's no jok

We would imagine that a pl about a boy in that particular sta of growing up would have its pain ful side.

When Things Matter

That's the time of developme when a boy starts eating yeast t eradicate a flood of pimples, whe his legs and arms don't seem have any particular connection wit his body, when his parents entire misunderstand his desire to join th Marines and when he is quite like to become enamored with som weird woman three times his ow age. And everything matters dread fully.

Allegany will present its play Jan 19 at the Fort Hill high scho auditorium at 8:20 p. m.

Cumberland Firm Wins $41,250 Road Contract In Washington County

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP)—Contracts on two Western Maryland highway projects were awarded today by the State Roads Commission.

The contract for a grade crossing elimination on the Norfolk and Western railroad on the Shepardstown-Sharpsburg road at Antietam in Washington county was awarded to W. N. Jackson of Roanoke, Va., on a bir of $188,201.50. It also includes approaches to the crossing.

Park Crew Busy Building More Picnic Tables

Cold Weather Fails To Halt Preparations For Summer Frolics

More benches and more tables are being built at Constitution Park these cold wintry days in anticipation of bigger and better picnics when summer comes, City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer said yesterday.

At the present time a crew of sixteen WPA workers is busy building the new equipment. A new fence around the baseball diamond has been completed.

Two Park Police on Duty

The fence, built of chestnut and oak, was put up mainly to keep cars and people off the diamond when the frost comes out of the ground this spring.

Two full-time policemen are now working at the park to discourage vandalism, Rizer said.

In the past, visitors have torn the legs off benches and tables for fires and have shot out the lights with rifles, Rizer said.

Vandals Warned

Any future acts of vandalism will result in vigorous prosecution, Rizer added.

O'Conor Reports On His First Year

Says He Is More Sure Than Ever of Accomplishing Objectives

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 10. (AP)—Governor O'Conor tonight reported on affairs of the state at the end of his first year in office, asserting his experience made him feel more certain that his objectives of a year ago could be fulfilled.

In a speech prepared for a radio broadcast, the governor summarized the improvements made during the year and declared:

"My purpose and aims, in administering your affairs, are identically the same as those which I charted one year ago.

"While I freely recognize and admit my limitations, that only should be further incentive to strive harder and reach the goal. With your help and cooperation success can unquestionably be attained for the betterment of the state of Maryland."

O'Conor declared "very frankly that we have not succeeded in accomplishing all that this administration has undertaken to achieve. Much remains to be done, but this much can be said without fear of successful contradiction — substantial progress has been made and, in addition to the reforms already completed, a measurable step has been taken toward fulfillment of the other pledges and promises made at the outset of the administration."

"At the very outset emphasis was laid upon the acute fiscal situation confronting the state, and it was promised that the unsatisfactory state of our finances then existing should be corrected. . . ."

In correcting the state's fiscal affairs, O'Conor said, the budget had been balanced and at the close of the year there had been a surplus of $4,467,625. The funded debt has been reduced more than $2,000,000.

B&O Machinist Breaks Seven Bones in Foot As Drive Shaft Falls

A 63-year-old B. and O. machinist suffered seven broken bones in his left foot late yesterday afternoon in an accident at the South Cumberland shops.

John W. Miles, of South Connellsville, Pa., was admitted to Allegany hospital after a drive shaft fell on his foot. His condition was reported "good" last night.

Republican Club To Meet At 8 O'Clock Tonight

A meeting of the Sixth District Republican Club will be held at 8 o'clock this evening at the Knights of Malta hall, Prospect Square.

Several items of interest will come up for consideration, and the officers urge all members to attend.

Republican voters of the district not yet affiliated with the club are cordially invited to be present.

STUDY IN SORROW—These are the Bartlett sisters, whose home near Oldtown was destroyed by fire yesterday and whose only brother, Roy, 9, was burned to death. The girls are Frances, 10, Margaret, 2, and Mary Ellen, 8. Their father, laid up with a broken leg, had to roll out a window. Their mother saved Margaret.—News Staff Photo.

Family Loses Only Son As Fire Destroys Home

Tragedy which moved in with an Oldtown road family last Aug. 7 struck again yesterday, as flames destroyed the home and its contents and burned the only son to death.

It was on Aug. 7, during the terrific cloud burst that broke over Cumberland at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, that Charles Bartlett, driving a delivery motorcycle for a super-market, smashed his left leg in a crash with a car.

Until a month ago, he was in Allegany hospital. Meanwhile, the family of six had to live, so the relief allotted them $35 a month for rent and food.

Father Still Laid Up

It takes a long time for a compound fracture to get well. Mr. Bartlett, who is 36, was still laid up, unable to help, unable to save his son, when disaster came yesterday.

The older children, Frances, 10, and Mary Ellen, 8, had left for the Oldtown school, several miles away. Charles Roy, 9, was playing around the house, Baby Margaret, 2, was playing in the kitchen, Mrs. Bartlett, 33, had put some coal in the kitchen stove and gone into the dining room.

Father Gives Alarm

Mr. Bartlett was lying in the bedroom. There's not much else a fellow with his leg in a cast can do. He was watching the crack under the door to the kitchen. A strange glow was coming through. It got brighter.

The man raised himself up in bed and opened the door. That side of the kitchen had burst into flames.

"Hey, Tillie," he called, and screamed.

Mrs. Bartlett ran into the kitchen. "I hadn't smelled smoke or heard a thing before," she said later.

Mother Saves Baby

"Run, run outside", she told the boy. Then she snatched up the baby and some clothes and fled through the blazing kitchen to safety.

The injured man, having shut the door to keep back the flames, pulled on some clothes, crawled to the window, and rolled out.

Young Thomas Davis and other neighbors came running to the scene. Was everybody out?

Roy? Where's Roy? His mother thought he had come on out. But he wasn't there. He had run into the other bedroom, his bedroom, instead of for the door to safety.

Young Davis ran to the kitchen door and kicked it in. Flames shot out and he could not enter.

Mother Held Back

Mrs. Bartlett started for the house. "Don't you can't help now," said her husband, and they held her back.

Soon the four-room house was only a heap of ashes and twisted bed frames. Neighbors were able to save a shed by throwing snow on it.

Nothing else had been saved except a bundle of clean clothes for the older girls, which the mother carried out.

The body of the boy was not recovered until late in the afternoon. The charred remains were taken to a funeral home for burial today.

Family at Relative's Home

Mrs. Bartlett and her baby waited at the home of the Shrycks nearby until the girls came home from school. Later the family was reunited at the home of Miss Mary E. Bartlett, 346 Davidson street. Miss Bartlett is a sister of Mr. Bartlett and an employe of Allegany hospital.

Miss Bartlett owned the home which was destroyed.

The boy who died in the fire was not at school because of an impediment in his speech.

"But he was healthy," his mother said, "and liked to run and play just like any other child."

Coal Truck Crack-Down Booms License Sales

Last week's state police crackdown on truckers selling coal without licenses continued to bring results this week in the office of Circuit Court Clerk Robert Jackson.

A total of 89 licenses has been sold since the arrest and conviction of three truckers the latter part of last week. Previously, only ten licenses had been issued since the beginning of the license year July 1.

The total of 99 sold to date exceeds by two the number sold in 1937, the first year the licensing law was in effect. In 1938, the total was only twenty-two.

Damages Granted In Death Crash

Two in Other Car Allowed $1,157

In two suits growing out of an automobile-truck crash July 10, damages totaling $1,157.50 were awarded Warren L. Twigg and his son, Gerald A. Twigg, by Circuit court juries yesterday.

The court had rendered judgments against Harry Johnson by default when he failed to answer the suits docketed by Attorney Elmer B. Gower, and the juries were impanneled only to assess the amount of damages.

The older Twigg, owner and driver of the truck, had asked $3,000 for personal injuries and damage to the vehicle as a result of a collision with a car owned by Johnson. A jury awarded him $1,000.

Damages of $157.50 were granted young Twigg, who had sought $500 for injuries he suffered in the accident.

The crash, which occurred on U S. Route 40 about twenty miles east of here, cost the lives of two: John Johnson, driver of the car and brother of the defendant; and Ruth Alma Pryor, a passenger in the car.

Cumberland Barber Asks Reversal of Judgment In Woman's Auto Death

Attorneys for Raymond H. Coffman, of Cumberland, and Paul E. Powers, of Hancock, argued yesterday before the Court of Appeals for a reversal of the judgment obtained against them by Mr. and Mrs. James W. Reynolds, of Cumberland, for the death of their daughter in an automobile crash.

Miss Mary Reynolds, 27, was kileld Nov. 12, 1938 when Powerss' car, driven by Coffman overturned on U. S. Route 40, fourteen miles east of Hancock.

Testimony was that Coffman, his wife and Miss Reynolds drove from Hancock to Hagerstown and persuaded Powers to join them at a night club. After drinking heavily, Powers, Mrs. Coffman and Miss Reynolds prevailed on Coffman to drive the car, as he had least to drink, testimony showed.

The appellants argued they were engaged in a joint adventure, and that Miss Reynolds was as much responsible for Coffman's driving as any of the party. They held the law covering damages to guests in cars was not applicable, as Mrs. Coffman and Miss Reynolds had arranged the party, and prevailed on the others to attend.

Both appellants are barbers.

Two Injured as Car Skids on Icy Road

Two Pennsylvanians were injured, neither seriously, yesterday morning when their car skidded on an icy stretch of road near Mt. Savage and crashed into a culvert.

The driver, Harry C. Lichty, 26, of Salisbury, Pa., and Albert D. Clites, 41, of Lake Gordon Dam, Bedford road, sustained lacerations about the head and face.

Both men were treated at Allegany hospital. They were able to leave the hospital.

Railroader Retires after 50 Years, Plans To Catch Up on His Reading

"I'm just going to catch up on my reading," 71-year-old Charles J. White, of 231 Race street, said last night when interviewed about his retirement from the B. & O. after more than fifty years of active service.

Mr. White, born at Oakland, made his last run Dec. 22 from Parkersburg, W. Va., to Cumberland on train No. 4, the crack "Diplomat Special." He was a passenger conductor.

Mr. White started to work for the railroad as a brakeman in 1889 at Keyser, W. Va. He came to Cumberland in 1896 and soon afterwards was promoted to freight conductor. In 1912 he was elevated to passenger conductor.

The death of his wife, Agnes M. White, on Christmas Day, more or less decided the question of his retirement, Mr. White said. He was married forty-eight years ago in Westernport.

Mr. White said he intends to "take it easy" and catch up on his reading matter in the future. He resides with his daughter, Miss Mary B. White, former assistant cashier of the Cumberland Savings Bank.

R.W. Young Heads Salvation Army Advisory Board

Other Officers Named; Mortgage on Citadel To Be Reduced $1,000

Robert W. Young will serve another year as chairman of the Salvation Army advisory board.

Young was re-nominated and re-elected after Franklin H. Ankeney had been nominated for the post and declined.

Advisory Board Named

An advisory board to serve the coming year was also chosen, the number being increased by two. One member had resigned and two were dropped for non-attendance, while five were added.

The new board comprises thirty members, as follows:

To Reduce Mortgage

Chairman Young announced the appointment of Oliver, Weber and Ankeney as members of the Budget committee.

Resulting from special efforts exerted by the board during the year in raising funds for the purpose and proposals by the Mortgage Reduction committee to raise an extra $100 and by Brigadier Brice L. Phillipson to raise another $200, it was planned to slice the citadel building mortgage by another $1,000. This will bring the debt on the building down to $10,000. The mortgage was originally $20,000. In August, 1937, it amounted to $12,500, $7,500 having been paid during the previous fourteen years. Five hundred dollars was paid March 3, 1918. As a result of the 1938 Mortgage Reduction campaign, $1,000 was paid March 3, 1939.

Stays Within Budget

Through the watchfulness of Brigadier Phillipson, the Army is keeping within its annual budget, which has suffered cuts in recent years owing to a reduction of the allotments made through the Community Chest.

The Army did more work this Christmas season than ever before. Reports of the brigadier showed that 700 toys were distributed among needy children at the toy store in the basement of the citadel. Some 300 new toys were donated this season, which is more than were donated in the two preceding Christmas holidays together.

The public made greater use of the Christmas wrapping service this holiday period than in previous years. A total of 223 packages were wrapped and 361 letters were stamped by Army workers in the post-office lobby. The free will offering from the service amounted to $29.85.

Other Aid Listed

In addition to the 700 toys given children, the Army distributed 100 large baskets of food on Christmas to needy families and furnished other aid as follows:

Garments given, 399; grocery orders given, eight; pairs of shoes given, seventy - three; loaves of bread given, 500; pounds of meat given, 150; families supplied with bread and meat, fifty; office interviews given, 359; consultations with other agencies, fifty-five; aid given families, two; lodgings supplied, twenty - two; meals supplied, 207; women assisted, two; transients assisted, 145.

The other work of the Army, including numerous meetings, class sessions and the like, was continued during December as usual.

School Recreation To Be PTA Topic

The West Side Parent-Teacher Association will hold its monthly meeting Monday at 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cooper will speak on "School as a Recreational Center."

Textile Hall Crowded As Celanese Union Nominates Officers

Nominations for officers of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, were made last night at a membership meeting of the organization at Textile Hall.

The list of nominees will not be made public until Saturday at 5 p. m. Members nominated will have until that time to accept or decline to run for office.

The nominations will be mailed to the membership of the union beginning Saturday night, Jan. 20, and will be counted by the official elections committee on Jan. 30.

This year marks the first time that the Celanese union has conducted an election by mail. Purpose of the new setup is to eliminate cumbersome election machinery and the necessity of having workers come from distant points to vote on election day.

The textile union hall was filled last night for the nomination meeting, which was in charge of President James A. Dundon.

Candidate for Senate Asks Encouragement of Private Capital

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP)—Howard Bruce, candidate for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, urged tonight that the government "remove fear and encourage in every possible way private capital investment which in turn provides employment and production."

He told the eleventh ward Democratic club "the tax bill of 1939 was certainly a step in the right direction. More moves of this character will help."

Bruce said he agreed that public expenditures such as that on WPA accelerated the nation's progress toward recovery, but added that he did not believe the country can boost national income back to $80,000,000,000 by vast spending programs.

"Such spending is not a sound substitute for the operation of private industry," he declared.

"I consider the country's total national income as the nearest approach to a yardstick for measuring its economic condition.

"Too much struggle and dissention over the proper distribution of our national income may actually retard the production and increase of such income with a resulting benefit to no one."

Private Detective's Suit against Topping Thrown Out by Judge

New York, Jan. 10. (AP)—A federal judge today threw out of court the suit filed by a private detective to collect a $5,000 bonus he said Henry J. (Bob) Topping, tin plate heir, owed him for obtaining divorce evidence against Topping's first wife.

The detective, Harold Mayhew, said Topping had promised him a $5,000 bonus "and expenses" for proof of adultry on the part of the first Mrs. Topping, the former actress-aviatrix Jane Shadduck, now Mrs. Richard Durant.

He introduced affidavits by an apartment house superintendent and a negro maid that the No. 1 Mrs. Topping had been intimate with an aviator named Cordova, even allowing servants to address him as "Mr. Topping."

In dismissing the suit and a claim by Mayhew for $235 in expenses, Judge Clarence G. Galston said he felt insufficient evidence had been shown to merit the bonus.

Topping, 26-year old heir to $14,000,000, now is married to the former Gloria Baker, the original society "glamor girls."

Lecompte Asks Aid In Feeding Birds

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP) — State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte went to bat for hungry birds today and appealed to residents in all sections to distribute grain for them while the state is covered with snow.

His department will furnish the grain, but it can't just be scattered around on the snow.

"Birds cannot find the feed on the snow," LeCompte said. "The snow must be scraped to the ground and the feed scattered on the bare ground."

Unless the public responds "the shortage of brood stock for the coming season will be very noticeable," he warned.

David J. Lewis To Stay With Mediation Board

Firemen blamed a lighted cigaret for the blaze. Damage was slight.

Challenge Issue By Allegany's Dramatic Coach

Tell the Truth About Our Play, Says Mr. Wickard

It seems that Allegany h school has something besides a g football team. They have a d matic organization too.

H. C. Wickard, director of d matics at the Campobello insti tion, breezed into the city room the News last night to assert t the school is giving "What a Li Jan. 19 and that "it's going to good."

Issues Challenge

He then laid down a ducat a a challenge, the challenge being invitation to "come and see play and then tell the truth ab it." We hope to.

Judging from Mr. Wickard's marks, the play should prove rat interesting. It seems that f teachers at the institution ha been drafted to play the part teachers.

Something New

We can't recall ever having se a flock of teachers emoting bef the footlights, although we ha seen them put on some splend performances on Open House da when parents are invited in to s how the classes are run.

The Behavior of the teacher interpreted by one should be w worth seeing.

Lewyn Davis, in actual life assistant principal, will play t principal. Miss Pearl Eader, cha man of the English departmen will depict same. Miss Dorot Willison, an instructor of mus will play the part of an instruct of music. Other teachers who w simply be themselves are Willia Noland and Albert Loper.

Play's about High School

It appears that Mr. Wickard h done a pretty good job of ty casting.

He observed shrewdly, "You se nobody in this play is going to ha to act. They are just going to ha to act natural and be themselve

"What a Life," according to M Wickard, is a play about a mode high school. It shows how a adolescent boy can be constantly trouble and yet do nothing wron

Arthur Lancaster Has Lead

Arthur Lancaster, a senior Allegany, has been selected to pla the part of the adolescent schoo boy, Henry Aldrich.

Anybody who was ever a boy wi immediately sympathize with youngster going through that horr ble adolescent period. It's no jok

We would imagine that a pla about a boy in that particular sta of growing up would have its pain ful side.

When Things Matter

That's the time of developmen when a boy starts eating yeast t eradicate a flood of pimples, whe his legs and arms don't seem t have any particular connection wit his body, when his parents entire misunderstand his desire to join th Marines and when he is quite likel to become enamored with som weird woman three times his ow age. And everything matters dread fully.

Allegany will present its play Jan 19 at the Fort Hill high schoo auditorium at 8:20 p. m.
